Vietnam Marines Reenter Quang Tri

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese Marines racing a Wednesday deadline have broken the bloody stalemate at Quang Tri City by storming the walls of the 19th Century Citadel and linking up inside its high brick walls, field reports said today.

While the Marines scored their impressive victory at Quang Tri City over North Vietnamese ordered to battle to the death, the U.S. Command was reporting what it called the most destructive raids over North Vietnam since heavy bombing was resumed more than five months ago. The U.S. planes using "smart" bombs hit three bridges within 28 miles of China.

The military situation worsened below Da Nang, however, and field reports today said a battalion of 250 South Vietnamese troops at Tien Phuoc, 38 miles south of Da Nang, broke and ran under a furious Communist assault that included a 200 rounds of 130 mm artillery.

Initial reports from Quang Tri said contact with Communist troops was light inside the Citadel, but the biggest guns in the North Vietnamese arsenal were pounding the advancing marines while U.S. B52s bombed to keep North Vietnamese reinforcements away.

The first Marine units entered Sunday night through a hole blasted in the southeast corner of the Citadel by a U.S. Air Force laser-guided "smart" bomb July 10, UPI reporter Ted Kurrus said. On Monday night, reinforcements plunged through the hole in the 15-foot-high wall while another unit scaled over the opposite northeast corner, he said.

The two units, totaling about 300 men, soon joined up along the eastern wall and began pushing toward the heavy bunkers in the western sector. Communists have held the Citadel for 135 days.

President Nguyen Van Thieu has set Sept. 19 as the deadline for the recapture of all occupied territory. Kurrus said military sources told him the marines at Quang Tri were ordered to secure the forbidding citadel by Wednesday.

The Citadel, captured by the Communists May 1, loomed clearly today against blue skies as the highest point in battle-flattened Quang Tri City. Kurrus said more than 15 attacks by low-flying American and South Vietnamese planes hit Communist bunkers on the floor and along the western wall today.

North Vietnamese troops, under orders to "hold until death," have defied all government efforts to retake the Citadel until now. South Vietnamese airborne troops reentered the outskirts of Quang Tri City July 4 as the first big step of the government's counteroffensive.

After 21 days of agonizing house-to-house fighting, the para-troopers got some men inside the Citadel July 25 and even raised a flag at the highest point. But they were pulled out suddenly in heavy fighting and the marines took over the Quang Tri assignment two days later. The attempt to take the Citadel was abandoned temporarily in favor of cleaning up resistance in the heavy bunkers planted in almost every destroyed house in the city.

The Marines slowly moved toward the 500-yard-square Citadel from the north and south sides since assuming the task July 27. Kurrus said they have put three-man scouting teams inside the walls during the past week to spot Communist strong-

Golda: Smite Terrorists; Cairo Warns Of Attack

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said today in Jerusalem that Israel would smite terrorists "wherever it can reach them." And official Cairo Radio said Israel in agreement with the United States is about to carry out a large scale military operation against Syria and Lebanon.

Lebanese residents of the southern Lebanese city of Sidon said two Israeli warplanes broke the sound barrier over the town today. They told UPI in Beirut the planes came in from the sea and headed for Israeli-occupied Syrian territory where there was a minor border incident this morning.

Cairo Radio made its charge in a commentatry and urged Arab countries and peoples to be on maximum alert. It cited reports from Beirut, Damascus and Tel Aviv about large Israeli military mobilization near the border and called the mobilization "thick and unusual."

"In light of all this, we can conclude that Israel, in agreement with the United States, is on its way to carry out large scale military operations against Lebanon and Syria," the radio said.

The Beirut newspaper An Nahar also reported an increase of Israeli military patrols along the border and said Israeli workers had stopped picking apples at orchards near the border and that civilian cars had disappeared from the roads in that region.

In Beirut, the French-language newspaper l'Orient le Jour said the Syrian government had lifted restrictions

San Rafael Adopts Pay Scale Despite Mishandling Admission

By NELS JOHNSON

A shocked San Rafael City Council last night agreed with safety empolyees that salary negotiations had been mishandled but nevertheless adopted a pay scale established weeks ago. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 19)

One dismayed councilman said the possibility that the salary and fringe benefit offer was based on inaccurate figures was appalling.

Both the council and safety employees agreed that city staff had handled the salary matter in an unsatisfactory manner.

"The figures as presented are not correct. . . the city manager's figures are not accurate," declared police representative Sgt. Henry W. Ingwersen shortly before the unanimous vote.

Ingwersen said that the city ranked thirteenth on a list of 18 benchmark cities in California as populated as San Rafael, and not eighth as the council had found last Thursday.

The council after a closed session Thursday reaffirmed a previous offering of a 5 per cent salary increase effective Sept. 1 and a $2 monthly increase in benefits. Mayor C. Paul Bettini said then that the council's position was firm because the benchmark ranking supplied by staff "forced us to take the course of fiscal responsibility."

Ingwersen said that staff's comparison of the benchmark cities made San Rafael safety employees seem better off than they are because "certain items had been left out." Discrepancies ranged from $737 to $10, he said, adding that social security benefits had been dropped completely from one benchmark city tabulation.

Finance Director John B. Averett said the tabulation was the result of a phone survey compiled by a competent accountant.

Ingwersen said that the 5 per cent hike and $2 benefit increase would place San Rafael police on a scale equal to Nova-

Report Condemns Attica Shooting

Blue-Ribbon Probe Blasts Rockefeller

ALBANY (UPI) — The citizens' commission named to investigate the Attica prison riot reported today there was "no justification" for the "clearly indiscriminate firing" which put an end one year ago to the nation's bloodiest prison riot in which 43 men died.

"With the exception of the Indian massacres in the late 19th Century," the commission said, "the state police assault which ended the four-day prison uprising was the bloodiest encounter between Americans since the Civil War."

Releasing its findings on the first anniversary of the rebellion, the blue ribbon McKay Commission also held that the revolt was spontaneous, not planned; that the demand for amnesty was the main barrier to a peaceful solution; and that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller should have gone to the scene.

It recommended a series of prison reforms, but also suggested that in case of such outbreaks prisons be retaken quickly, if possible, or that negotiations not include outside influences.

Highlights of the 550-page report, plus photographs and films were scheduled for viewing Wednesday night at 8:30 p.m. over National Educational Television.

The nine-member panel, headed by Robert B. McKay, dean of the New York University Law School, spent 10 months interviewing 2,500 persons in both public and private sessions.

The commission warned a prison riot could happen again at Attica. It said it saw some improvements in prison life since the riot, but little reduction of the hostilities and frustrations that led to the riot.

The commission noted that the best evidence that things had not changed greatly at Attica was this summer's strike by 900 of the 1,200 Attica inmates over the firing of a nurse and other conditions at the prison. The demonstration was peaceful.

"The cycle of misunderstanding, protest and reaction continues and confrontation remains the only language in which the inmates feel they can call attention to the system," the report said.

"The possibility the Attica

Hilltop Homes Fight Brews

The Marin County Planning Commission approved a controversial hilltop housing development near Tiburon yesterday afternoon, and last night the Tiburon City Council reacted with anger, declaring it will carry the fight to the county board of supervisors. (Other county planning commission and Tiburon council stories, page 36.)

Approved unanimously by the commission was a 128-unit project on 32 acres overlooking the Reedlands and Bel Aire subdivisions.

As in the past, the Highlands — as the development is called — drew criticism from nearby residents who said 128 homes on the 32-acre site would be too dense and would add to already bad sewage, traffic and drainage conditions.

However, the commission voted to approve the master plan for the development, which originally called for 148 single-family and townhouse dwellings.

"I think it's a suitable density and a suitable type of development (for the area)," commented Commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo in moving for adoption of the plan.

She said it provided muchneeded, moderate-income housing in an area composed of predominantly higher income families. Other commissioners agreed.

The Tiburon City Council last night denounced the planning commission for approving the project adjacent to the city and agreed to appeal "as forcibly as possible" to the board of supervisors to reject it.

Councilman Branwell D. Fanning, saying the hilltop project would be "visible from practically the whole Bay Area," suggested the city could block access to it by closing city streets. The streets were not designed to carry the heavy loads the project would bring, he said.

The council agreed to act after an appeal by citizens in the area. Edward R. Middendorf, president of Reedlands Property Owners Association, objected to the prospect of heavy traffic from the project through Reedlands. He also said the project would overburden Bel Aire School, forcing children from the area to be bused to other schools.

Middendorf also argued that no soil test had been made on the property. "The county public works department walked

Council Told Estate Unsuitable For Park

San Rafael's director of parks and recreation told the city council last night that the Robert Dollar estate is not suitable for park purposes and a hired consultant urged the estate be excluded from redevelopment plans.

The council received the recommendations in writing from Andrew J. Snyder, parks and recreation director, and Steven H. Goldfarb, redevelopment consultant.

Snyder said ti would be neither economically feasible nor recreationally wise to acquire the historic estate and grounds on Mission Avenue.

Although noting the main house could be used as a museum, Snyder wrote that all of the existing structures on the property "are in old and dilapidated condition."

Initial improvements, care, maintenance and upkeep would make the building unacceptable for recreational purposes, Snyder said, also citing problems involving vandalism and seniors negotiating stairs.

He estimated the cost of mintaining the grounds alone would be more than $30,000 annually.

Goldfarb recommended the property not be included in redevelopment plans, saying it does not lie within the redevelopment area.

Councilman Lawrence F. Mulryan had proposed the property be included in the city's redevelopment plans.

The San Rafael Planning Commission will consider a proposal to raze the mansion and develop the estate today at 7:30 p.m. in city hall.

'CITY' IS OUT

Fairfax Aims To Bolster Its Small-Town Image

Fairfax's city council decided last night to emphasize that it runs a town and not a city. (Another Fairfax City Council story, page 19.)

The confusion over what Fairfax is is the state's fault, according to City Atty. Wallace S. Myers. California law, he said, does not distinguish between towns and cities.

"Within the meaning of the state code we are a city, but we call gurselves a town," he said. He noted that resolutions are passed by the City Council of the Town of Fairfax.

"I think it would be just fine wherever you want to use the word, 'town,' " Myers said.

The council wanted to do just that. It unanimously voted to join the ranks of Marin towns, already occupied by Ross and Corte Madera.

The new emphasis was instigated by Councilman Frank J. Egger who said, "Our small-town environment is our No. 1 asset. We should emphasize the word 'town' since it more reflects what Fairfax is."

He noted the village in 1931 was incorporated as a town, not a city.

The city staff was directed to begin killing the city image by replacing "city" with "town" on stationery, signs, police cars and wherever else it appears as items are replaced.

Stans' Reaction- 'A Pack Of Lies'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans has labeled a "scurrilous pack of lies" Democratic charges he diverted $114,000 in President Nixon's campaign funds to pay a squad of political spies and then destroyed the records.

The charges were lodged as the Democratic party named Stans, now Nixon's campaign finance chief, as one of several new codefendants in a civil damage suit stemming from the alleged bugging of the offices of the Democratic National Committee last June 17.

The Democrats said the five men arrested in the party headquarters with what police described as bugging gear in their possession were "paid secret agents" of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President (CRP). They charged that Stans provided the money for this "political espionage squad" and in fact "embarked upon a conspiracy" to form it.

The charges were to be filed formally today with the U.S. District Court here in the form of an amended complaint in the civil suit, lodged in June by former Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien against the men caught in the headquarters. O'Brien also upped the party's demands for damages from $1 million to $3.2 million.

"Mr. O'Brien's allegations against me are a scurrilous pack of lies and he knows it," Stans said in a statement. "They amount to nothing more than a contemptible maneuver to use the court for his own base political purpose—and the American people will recognize it."

Similar harsh words came from Clark MacGregor, Nixon's campaign manager. He said O'Brien's allegations were nothing but "political libel and slander" and said he would slap a countersuit for malicious prosecution on the Democrats.

Meanwhile, Maine Democratic Chairman Severin M. Beliveau told UPI he would file another suit against alleged participants in the political spy ring later this week. Beliveau said the phone of the Association of Democratic State Chairmen, which he heads, was one of two tapped at the national headquarters.

Sources close to the Democratic investigation said that O'Brien's was the other.

Kissinger Adds To Talk Agenda

MOSCOW (UPI)—President Nixon's chief adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, continued talks with Soviet leaders today and added to his travel agenda conferences with British and French officials en route home the latter part of this week.

Kissinger thus will have touched bases with America's three major European allies either before or after the Moscow visit. En route to Moscow, he met with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt in Munich.

In Washington, the White House hinted that while in Paris Friday to confer with French President Georges Pompidou, Kissinger might have another in his series of meetings with Le Duc Tho, chief North Vietnamese negotiator at the Paris peace talks.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Guard Hospital

BELFAST (UPI) — British troops guarded Belfast's Royal Victoria Hospital today against threatened attacks on the huge medical complex by the extremist Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA).

Northern Ireland's two major loyalist organizations joined forces under former Home Affairs Minister William Craig to press for the restoration of Protestant rule over the province.

A statement issued last night by the Provisionals said unless troops were withdrawn from the 1,200-bed hospital "any type of attack on the hospital is now possible."

Curfew Ends

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (UPI) — City officials ended a curfew last night after meeting with black leaders to settle differences that sparked a weekend of racial violence.

Boost For KP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee describes military kitchen police (KP) as "wholesome and character building" and wants to scrap the program of turning the work over to civilians.

Pentagon officials fear this could hamper their efforts to get enough recruits for all-volunteer services. They also argue it will put thousands of "minority members and poor people" out of work.

The House committee axed the civilian kitchen police system Monday when it cut $4.9 billion out of the Defense epartment budget for the current fiscal year. The decision still must be approved by the full house and Senate.

Waning Storm

MIAMI (UPI) — Tropical storm Dawn was downgraded to a depression today as it dawdled off the Northeast Florida coast with peak winds of 35 miles per hour in squalls.

The National Hurricane Center said that the season's fourth tropical storm had weakened during the night and "conditions are not favorable for any strengthening."

Welfare Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal welfare officials are considering possible national use of an experiment that distributes welfare aid through banks to avoid the theft of checks from the mails.

The plan has won enthusiastic endorsement from recipients, bankers and welfare officials in Philadelphia and in Nassau County, N.Y., where it has been tried, with variations, among selected groups, said Ludwig Guckenheimer of the federal Assistance Payments Administration.

In Seoul

SEOUL (UPI) — A delegation of North Koreans arrived in Seoul today for the first official visit to the South Korea in 27 years and pledged to "heal the deep scars" that have separated the two Koreas since World War II.

The 34-member Red Cross delegation, accompanied by 20 North Korean newsmen, crossed the border into Panmunjom truce village and then drove to Seoul, where thousands of citizens lined the streets during the lunch hour to welcome them.

Historical Site?

DALLAS (UPI) — The city council has killed a proposal to demolish the former Texas School Book Depository and repeated its intention to have the building preserved as a historical site.

Councilman Fred Zeder Monday said he would continue his fight to raze the building, from which the Warren Commission said Lee Harvey Oswald assassinated President John F. Kennedy in November 1963.

Zeder said he wants the former depository destroyed because of the image of the city it perpetuates and suggests a park or historical center be built on the grounds.

Ordered Out

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — Uganda has ordered Britain to withdraw its 17-man military mission from the country by noon Friday.

Uganda Radio said yesterday the Defense Council headed by President Idi Amin had decided the mission must leave "due to security reasons pertaining to the security of all people in Uganda."

Alien Ring

TIJUANA, Mexico (UPI) — The largest alien-smuggling ring ever discovered here specialized in sneaking Central Americans, apparently hundreds of them, into the United States, police said today.

City and federal police said 47 persons were in custody, including two Salvadorans and a Mexico City man allegedly involved in the racket, and more arrests were expected.

Police arrested 20 aliens at a home near the border with the United States Saturday, and picked up another 24 who arrived Monday. Authorities seized 275 forged U.S. immigratioc cards, 174 passports from El Salvador and 46 from Guatemala, indicating the ring had smuggled hundreds of Central Americans into the United States.

The going price was $225 a head, officials said.

Five Still Sought

CHRISTIANSTED, St. Croix, V.I. (UPI) — Two suspects were in jail but five others were still at large as a search entered its seventh day today for the killers who gunned down eight persons at a posh golf course.

Police said yesterday they believe the five wanted men are still on the island and will be captured. Gov. Melvin H. Evans expressed similar confidence in a statement. He said the island-wide search for the men was "augmented," but would not elaborate.

A spokesman at the attorney general's office said Gereau and Meral Orlando Smith, 21, of St. Croix — who are in jail in lieu of more than $1 million bail —will be arraigned on eight counts of first-degree murder later this week.

Canal Dispute

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — The Panamanian People's Assembly, voting amid a chorus of shouts of "Down with Yankee Imperialism," yesterday urged rejection of the $1.9 million the United States annually pays for using the Canal Zone.

The resolution passed by the 505-member assembly said Panama is demonstrating to the world that the Canal Zone "has not been purchased or conquered or annexed or ceded or leased or its sovereignty transferred by the Republic of Panama to the United States of America."

The vote asked Panama's executive branch to turn down the next payment. The two nations are in the process of negotiating a new treaty to replace the original canal treaty of 1903. Panama has said frequently it will accept nothing less than full sovereignty over the Canal Zone.

McGovern, Kennedy In The Midwest

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) —Sen. George S. McGovern, with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy campaigning at his side, today hammered away at his peace-and-economics theme in the big cities of the Midwest.

McGovern and Kennedy were to campaign together at rallies in Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland during a hectic day scheduled to have them on the go for 15 hours even in the unlikely event that everything runs on time.

Kennedy joined the McGovern cavalcade Monday night in Minneapolis, and promptly got standing ovations from essentially the same speech for which McGovern has been receiving polite applause.

"I stand with George McGovern for the rights of all the people, and we want all of you beside us," Kennedy said.

In a statement prepared for a noontime rally in the heart of the Chicago Loop, McGovern accused President Nixon of using the totalitarian logic of George Orwell's novel "1984."

"For three years they have told us that war is peace," McGovern said. "For a year, they have told us that a recession is the new prosperity. Now they tell us that a value-added-tax is not a tax."

This was a reference to an administration pledge that if Nixon is re-elected there will be no new taxes although a value-added levy — a sort of national sales tax—may be proposed to replace some revenue now raised by property taxes.

"But it looks like a tax, it sounds like a tax...and it will certainly feel like a tax to the families of this country when it costs each of them at least $200 a year," McGovern said.

A standing-room-only crowd of more than 10,000 crammed into the 8,500-seat Minneapolis Auditorium to see the first joint McGovern-Kennedy appearance since the South Dakota senator won the nomination. The mostly youthful audience sat in the aisles and stood along the walls after all the seats were filled. At least another 2,000 persons were turned away.

"I used to be just one of 100 doing my job in the United States Senate," Kennedy quipped. "Then came time for the selection of the vice presidential candidate. It just shows what its like to have a famous brother-in-law."

An aide said Kennedy plans to campaign on behalf of McGovern and Democratic candidates for the Senate and House most weekends and daily in the last two weeks before the election. He will appear jointly with McGovern Wednesday and Thursday but most of his other appearances will be separate from the nominee.

When Kennedy was introduced by Minnesota Gov. Wendell Anderson the crowd stood and cheered for 40 seconds. When Kennedy finished his speech and introduced McGovern, the ovation— spiced with cries of "We want George"—lasted for 105 seconds.

McGovern responded with more emotion than he usually employs. The audience gave him his biggest cheers when he stressed the antiwar theme that marked his successful campaign for the nomination.

ON THE TRAIL — Sen. George McGovern appeared yesterday in Minneapolis with Sen. Edward Kennedy (right). The rally drew an overflow crowd of 10,000 persons, with another 2,000 milling around outside the auditorium.

Shriver Targets Nixon, Reagan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Sargent Shriver said yesterday President Nixon issued one of the most "sanctimonious and inaccurate statements in the history of the country" when he accused Sen. George McGovern of advocating a welfare ethic.

"There is no American who prefers the welfare ethic," said Shriver, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, "except maybe Mr. (Gov. Ronald) Reagan who prefers it because he doesn't pay any taxes. He lets all you work for him."

After campaigning in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Sacramento Monday, Shriver planned today to visit the home of a Mexican-American hard hit by property taxes, then fly to Portland, Ore.

In Sacramento, Shriver spoke to 1,200 persons who blocked a downtown street on a chilly night to attend a campaign headquarters opening.

Shriver protested Nixon's Labor Day statement that "we are faced this year with the choice between the 'work ethic' that built this nation's character and the 'welfare ethic' that could cause the American character to weaken."

"This man has not only added unemployment, added to the cost of welfare, raised your taxes, but at the same time he comes out with one of the most sanctimonious and inaccurate statements in the history of this country," Shriver said. He said it also "is one of the most unethical statements in the history of the country."

"I've been in more ghettoes than Nixon and (Vice President Spiro) Agnew put tggether," he said, "and I have yet to see the American male or female who prefers to beg rather than work."

In Los Angeles, Shriver spoke to 2,000 members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers and received several standing ovations. The 908,000-member union last week endorsed the McGovern-Shriver ticket.

If elected, Shriver said, the McGovern administration will name "a labor man as secretary of labor in contrast to the captains of industry who run the Department of Labor under the Nixon administration."

EAST BERLIN (AP) — Angela Davis has received East Germany's Great Star of International Friendship, according to ADN, the East German news agency.

The presentation of the gold award was made Monday by Walter Ulbricht, chairman of the State Council.

August Report Shows Sales Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Commerce Department report shows August retail sales were 9.5 per cent ahead of the same month in 1971.

The department said Monday preliminary figures estimated August retail sales at $38 billion after seasonal adjustments. This was 1.5 per cent above the July figure of $37.1 billion.

The report said June through August sales were 2 per cent ahead of the previous three-month period and 10 per cent ahead of the comparable period last year.

Larkspur City Manager Rebuked

Larkspur City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst received a token slap on the wrist from his city council at 1:30 a.m. today, for ineffectual policing of illegal grading on Little King Mountain early in May.

After the council emerged from a two and one-half hour closed session, Mayor William G. Fleckles reported councilmen found that Bathurst and other city staff members had been guilty of an "error of judgement" in the Little King controversy.

The closed session was the belated aftermath of letters written May 14 by Arthur M. Sestak, husband of Councilman Joan B. Sestak, and on May 12 by Victor J. Van Flint, an engineer whose home overlooks the top of Little King.

Van Flint complained that contractor Paul Vincilione was cutting trees and excavating soil from Little King without a permit — while the application by Vincilione and his wife Alice to scrape 360,000 cubic yards from the hill's crown was still pending before the city council.

Sestak's letter said that if Van Flint's allegations were true, city officials were guilty of either collusion or gross incompetence, and "somebody should be asked to leave."

The councilmen last night reviewed the two letters, plus Bathurst's chronological report of the excavation quarrel, Fleckles reported. Neither Sestak nor Flint was present. A videotape recording city officials made the excavation work in progress was brought out of the files but was not viewed by the council.

After the lengthy debate, councilmen emerged to an audience consisting of three city officials and one reporter. Councilmen nodded agreement as Fleckles announced, "we found no evidence of collusion, no evidence of gross incompetency, but we did find an error of judgement on the part of the city staff — and particularly on the part of the city manager, who has accepted responsibility —" in respect to policing the grading.

"We intend to take no further action," Fleckles announced, but he and other councilmen than agreed to Councilman Neil R. Brixon's suggestion that an official letter be placed in Bathurst's personnel file.

Councilmen took no public vote on their action, but Brixon later revealed the decision was unanimous.

The city took the Vinciliones to court on an illegal grading charge in May, and secured an injunction against further grading until May 1973. Meanwhile, however, the Vinciliones have sued to city to overtune the council and planning commission denials of the grading permit they sought. The decision is still pending.

The family wants to grade potential building sites on the mountain, and to fill some 25 acres of lowlands between Magnolia Avenue and Corte Madera Creek near the Safeway store.

Fleckles revealed that the marathon closed session also included discussion of a letter from outgoing City Atty. Robert W. Elliott, concerning another lawsuit against the city by the MGM Construction Co. of Concord. The council decided no response to the letter was necessary, Fleckles said.

Goats Slaughtered To Inaugurate Jet

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI)—Nepal slaughtered two goats Sunday to mark its entry into the jet age.

The ceremony marked government purchase of a Boeing 727, Nepal's first jet flag carrier. Two employees of the Royal Nepal Airlines sprinkled the blood of the goats around the plane's cockpit, which according to Nepalese tradition will protect the plane from the "evil eye."

Student Returns After Year Off

SUTTER CREEK, Calif. (UPI)—David Godman went back to school Monday after a year off because he wouldn't cut his long hair, but his younger brother isn't giving in yet to the school district's hair length standards.

David, 10, and Nick, 6, were prohibited from attending classes last year unless they cut their hair. They refused to do so and were tutored by their mother at home.

Clarke Godman, the boys' father, arranged at David's request to have him go back to classes at a different school.

David visited a professional hair stylist and returned to class with a shorter and more conventional cut.

Nick said he's going to "wait and see" before deciding whether he will return to school.

Pier Plan Loses In Corte Madera

A 3-1 Larkspur City Council vote last night torpedoed one developer's plans to jut finger piers into Corte Madera Creek.

The vote followed a two-hour and 40-minute rehash of a hearing originally held last Wednesday, when Councilman Joan L. Sestak was absent on vacation. When Councilman Neil R. Brixon declared he would abstain to avoid conflict of interests — he owns an existing pier in the creek — and councilmen learned at least three votes were necessary to reach a decision on the controversy, it was continued to last nigh's adjourned meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moran had won a conditional permit in July from the city planning commission, to build finger piers for their Nara Garden condominium development. Larkspur Parks and Recreation Commission Chairman Theresa Campbell, acting as an individual citizen, appealed the commission action to the council. She declared it violated a policy decision June 13 by the commission against such piers in the creek.

Mayor William G. Fleckles, after closing last night's hearing, asked the council to postpone decision on Mrs. Campbell's appeal until the parks and recreation, planning and council officials could hammer out an overall policy on pier development in the creek.

Malvino moved to honor Fleckles's request, but failed to find a second.

Mrs. Sestak then moved to uphold the appeal. She voiced fears that the creek's public waterways status could be jeopardized by piers and storage for more than 350 boats if a precedent was set.

Councilmen Robert H. Lee and Alfred Malvino sided with her, but Fleckles voted aginst the appeal on grounds the policy had not yet been adopted.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

COMMISSIONER — Refused Planning Commission Vice Chairman Leonard S. Rubin's request for a leave of absence until Jan. 25, 1973 to take special courses required by his federal job. Fleckles said Rubin would be given to Sept. 18 or 19 to decide whether he could attend the commission's sessions or resign. Brixon reported that commission chairman Otto Hoefler said he would be unable to function with only four members, on such important pending matters as the city's general plan.

REZONING — Continued a public hearing on introducing an ordinance putting all of the R-3 residential areas along Magnolia Avenue into a "S" study zone, to Oct. 4.

APPOINTMENTS — Routinely reappointed park and recreation commission youth representatives Daniel Cochran and William Bradley to new terms — but then discovered that Cochran was over the 22-year age limit set in council policy. Asst. City Mgr. Harlan Berry was told to inform Cochran that the city may amend its policy if another, suitable younger commissioner cannot be found. Cochran "has been doing a good job," Berry reported.

ADJOURNED — At 1:34 a.m. to the council's next regular meeting, 8 p.m. Oct. 4 in the city hall.

Schmitz Fails To Make Ballot

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI)—The American Independent Party has lost its appeal to get on the Rhode Island ballot in November.

The party's forces had appealed the disqualification of a number of signatures to the state Board of Elections. The board reviewed the decisions made by local canvassing boards and reinstated 17 signatures which had been rejected.

However, this brought the party's total to only 489, 11 short of the needed 500 to get on the ballot.

Court To Sentence Hijacker After Plea

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI)—Frederick William Hahneman, 49, an engineer from Easton, Pa., will be sentenced in U.S. District Court Sept. 29 on charges he hijacked an airliner to Honduras last May after collecting $303,000 ransom.

Hahneman pleaded guilty Monday and faces a maximum of 20 years in prison. He was charged with taking over an Eastern Airlines plane near Allentown, Pa., and forcing the crew to fly him to Central America where he bailed out over Honduras. He later surrendered to U.S. diplomatic officials there.

against Palestine guerrilla operations against Israel and had even encouraged commandos based in Syria to escalate their attacks against Israel. It quoted unidentified Syrian officials in Damascus.

Mrs. Meir, in an address to the Israeli Knesset (Parliament) called to discuss the guerrilla murder of 11 Israelis at the Munich Olympic Games said the incident threatened Middle East peace efforts.

She commended the West German government for its decision to use force against the guerrillas but said there was "room for criticism" for the way the rescue attempt was carried out. She did not elaborate, but nine Israelis died in the shootout. "The new wave of terrorism threatens peace efforts," she said. "It will not force us to change our policies towards peace. Israel has no choice but to smite the terrorists wherever it can reach them," she said. "That is its national duty to itself and peace."

Menahem Begin, the leader of the opposition Gahal bloc, called for a special squad to be set up for this purpose.

Yitzhak Rabin, the Israeli ambassador to Washington, said on nationwide television that Israel may make the elimination of Arab terrorism a precondition to the continuation of peace efforts.

In Cairo, Arab League sources said Arab foreign ministers meeting there have failed to reach agreement on proposals for a unified plan of action against Israel.

The ministers instead shunted the whole issue, including proposals for an Arab summit.

Homes Group Backs Bond Vote

The Peacock Gap Homeowners Association last night endorsed San Rafael's Sept. 19 bond election for open space.

Board secretary Mary Carpou said the association believed passage of the $2.25 million measure was essential for preservation of the city's open space.

She said a slate of directors for 1972-73 was nominated last night, including Charles E. Dowdy, Tina Ferris, Richard K. Ives, Charles A. Madsen, Robert C. Winters and Jack Wodell. The new directors will be confirmed at an association meeting at 8 p.m. Nov. 1 in Peacock Gap Country Club.

Sonoma State Sessions Planned

Organizations ranging from social service departments to recycling centers will send representatives to campus-community congress sessions from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. each day. Displays and booths will be set up around the quadrangle at Stevenson Hall.

Agencies will recruit student volunteers and inform students on what services the agencies can provide for them. The Community Involvement Project, which coordinates student volunteers, will sponsor the sessions.

up there and took a look and passed it without driling a hole," he said.

He added that the project developer would be Security Capital Corp. of Walnut Creek, which "gave us Shelter Ridge" the apartment project above the freeway at Mill Valley.

Middendorf said the corporation had failed to provide amenities such as landscaping at the Mill Valley project, thus could fail to complete its obligation at the new project as well.

Middendorf said the developers turned to the county after the city early this year rejected plans for 131 units, and asked the county planning commission for 148 units.

The rezoning came despite the city's plea for a density that would have allowed only 64 units. Last night, however, the council agreed to seek a maximum density that would allow 70 units.

Frazier Leaves Death Row — 8 More Remain

SAN QUENTIN (UPI)—John Linley Frazier, convicted of slaying five persons after he accused them of spoiling the environment, has been moved from Death Row at San Quentin Prison.

Frazier was the 99th occupant of Death Row when he was sent here early this year but only eight remained after his transfer Monday in line with the U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawing the death penalty.

Frazier, 25, was moved to the Adjustment Center, a prison spokesman said, where his performance will be reviewed each month to see whether he should go into the prison's general population.

The former mechanic and high school dropout was convicted for the slaying of Dr. Victor Ohta, his wife, two young sons and a secretary at Ohta's $200,000 mansion in the Santa Cruz mountains on Oct. 19, 1970.

WAR

The Marines inside the Citadel now have come under heavy fire from 130 mm artillery guns and huge 160 mm mortars, the largest weapons in the Hanoi arsenal. The Saigon high command said more than 1,700 rounds landed in Quang Tri Monday.

U.S. and Vietnamese warplanes—including B52 bombers—raked the area across the Thach Han River, which runs by the west wall, to prevent North Vietnamese reinforcements from crossing. Pilots said antiaircraft fire was light.

Kurrus said marine actions in the Citadel have been mostly at night because of attacks by Communist artillery and the deadly direct-fire accuracy of recoilless rifles mounted in bunkers in the southwest and western reaches of the huge, walled structure. He said one artillery round hit a South Vietnamese ammunition dump a half-mile northeast of the Citadel Monday night, and a huge mushroom cloud laced with glowing tracers as rounds "cooked off" lighted the rainy, black sky.

SALARY

to's police pay and $332 lower per year than received by Marin County sheriffs. The council Thursday said the increase would make San Rafael police the highest paid force in Marin.

"This is appalling," said Councilman Lawrence F. Mulryan, who nevertheless agreed with council colleagues that the city probably couldn't afford any more of an increase anyway.

"The city has done as much as it can," said Mayor Bettini, noting that reserve funds were down to $100,000. Bettini, however, said that the city had "handled this matter in an unsatisfactory manner" and expressed regret.

The mayor asked Ingwersen to provide him with a written criticism of staff's handling of salary negotiations.

In setting safety employee salaries as previously pledged, the council made final its rejection of a mediation team's report which urged a 5 per cent salary increase retroactive to July 1 and a $15 monthly increase in benefits. The report cost $4,250, the city putting up half the one money, the police and firemen's associations each contributing one-fourth.

Brochures listing the full range of fall activities sponsored by the Petaluma Recreation Department are available at city hall, the library and all schools.

Programs for youngsters include drama, arts and crafts, baton, ballet, modern dance, judo, guitar, folk dancing and preschool programs. The department will also offer after school recreation programs at McNear, Bernard Eldredge, McKinley and La Tercera schools from 3 to 5 p.m. on weekdays and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays beginning Oct. 2.

Adult activities include candlemaking, yoga, basketball, golden-agers and weight loss through swimming. Aquatics programs include swimming lessons, canoeing and skin diving townspeople will again hear the dread sounds of the powerhouse whistle is very real," the report said.

The recreation department will also handle private rentals of the municipal swim center for organizations and individuals.

ATTICA

It added: "Attica is every prison, and every prison is Attica...that the explosion occurred first at Attica was probably chance."

The report did not name anyone still subject to criminal prosecution. Volumes of private testimony are still being sought, however, by Deputy Attorney General Robert E. Fischer, for his grand jury investigation of the riot.

There was no immediate reaction to the report from either Rockefeller or Correction Commissioner Russell G. Oswald, who had command at Attica.

The McKay Commission was appointed by the state's top five judges to investigate "the events leading up to, during and following the riot."

The assault force of 211 state troopers (and unauthorized correction officers) had .270 caliber hunting rifles, .38 caliber pistols, and .12 gauge shotguns, the report said.

Most of the shotguns used 00 shells, each of which has nine or 12 pellets—" each a lethal missile," the report said. With 1,200 inmates holding the 38 hostages in "D" yard, it said, conditions "should have prohibited the use of shotguns."

With troopers given individual discretion to fire if "overt acts" of violence were committed, the force attacked under clouds of tear gas dropped by helicopters.

The report said 2,200 lethal missiles (counting each shotgun pellet) were fired. Almost 10 per cent of those in the yard were killed or wounded, including 13 of the hostages.

"There was clearly indiscriminate firing into congested areas by men who did not value the inmates' lives," it said.

Although many officers made reports of being attacked, the panel said, "the conclusion is inescapable that many of them were exaggerated."

The assault team recovered 1,400 weapons, including two tear gas guns, spears, molotov cocktails, baseball bats, scissors, knives, razors and clubs, but no firearms.

"A spontaneous burst of violent anger...not planned or organized in advance," caused the riot, the report said.

A group of inmates attacked a lieutenant they believed was involved in putting a comrade into isolation. A bad weld in the central "Times Square" gate gave the initial group access to the whole prison. Because of bad communications and lack of planning among guards, the inmates had their hostages grouped in "D" yard within 90 minutes, the report said.

Fearing loss of the hostages, Oswald tried to negotiate—but an observers' committee of more than 30 members was "unwieldy", the report said. Oswald's final offer of 28 points did not include amnesty, and inmates feared "mass prosecutions," after the death of an injured guard, William Quinn.

Rockefeller refused amnesty because it would "undermine the very essence of our free society," the report said. Although observers and Oswald asked Rockefeller to fly to Attica from New York City to meet with them—not the prisoners—the governor said he doubted his presence would "contribute to a peaceful settlement."

In testimony before the commission, Rockefeller, noting the growth of political kidnapings, said an official "would be betraying his trust to the people he serves if he were to sanction or condone such criminal acts by negotiating under such circumstances."

But the commission concluded that Rockefeller "should not have committed the state's armed forces against the rebels without first appearing on the scene and satisfying himself that there was no other alternative and that all precautions against excessive force had been taken."

Pleads Innocent To Manslaughter

A 22-year-old transient charged with manslaughter as a result of a drunken knife fight, in which one man was killed Thursday and another wounded, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Robert A. Smallman set a preliminary hearing for next Tuesday for Carlos Rico, of no fixed address.

He is charged with killing Dean Russell Ironcloud, 25, also a transient, during the fight near the heliport on Richardson Bay Paul Earl 44, 44 also was knifed.

Sheriff's investigators said Ironcloud apparently attacked Jordon, then was felled by Rico.

Merrill, who was 58, was born in Cleveland, Ohio and earned in 1936 a bachelor of science degree from the University of Washington.

He and his wife, Elizabeth, moved to Marin County 22 years ago from the East Bay. The family home is at 9 La Crescenta Way.

In addition to his wife, Merrill is survived by two daughters, Cecily Denchfield of Campbell, and Jean Platz of Bandon, Oregon; three sons, J. Frank of Reno, J. Paul and James M. of San Rafael; his mother, Mrs. Antonio Lucido of Monterey, and four grandchildren.

Hearing Set For Purse Snatchers

Two men — who allegedly hit a 90-year-old woman to steal her purse, then were cornered by angry witnesses — have denied an armed robbery charge in Marin Municipal Court and a preliminary hearing is set for next Tuesday.

Kenneth Foss Allen, 23, of Larkspur and Don Edward Fleischer, 26, of Lagunitas were arrested by San Rafael Police Sept. 3 and accused of knocking Margaret Farrar to the ground and stealing her purse.

The attack, police said, took place on Fourth Street at 9:45 a.m. as Mrs. Farrar, of 231 Laurel Place, walked home from church. Two passersby, William Willin of Novato and Arthur Latno of San Rafael chased Allen and Fleischer up Court Street and stopped them on Fifth Avenue, police said.

Painting Technique

Larkspur artist Larry Steelman will demonstrate his painting knife technique 7 to 10 p.m. Sept 13 at the Rafters Banquet Room in the Edgewater Inn, Corte Madera.

MRS. DEVLIN

Funeral for Margaret Devlin, mother of Robert Devlin of Corte Madera, will be in Los Angeles. Mrs. Devlin, 66, collapsed at her son's home Thursday and was dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital.

A spokesman at the coroner's office said she had been under a doctor's care for a heart ailment.

Mrs. Devlin was visiting her son from her home in South Gate, Los Angeles County.

SEN. COOMBS

NAPA (UPI)—Former Republican State Sen. Nathan F. Coombs, 91, who represented the third generation of his family to serve in the Legislature, died at his home here Monday.

Shopping Center Go-Ahead Given

The Corte Madera Town Council, meeting as the community's redevelopment agency, said last night town staff could proceed with planning work associated with planned development of a $35 million regional shopping center along Highway 101.

The agency board took its first official look at a preliminary plan to establish a redevelopment area on and around the shopping center site. Purpose of the redevelopment project is to enable bond financing of streets, lighting and sewers to serve the planned development.

Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels said last night's session was a virtual rerun of the Aug. 30 meeting of the town planning commission at which the preliminary redevelopment plan was approved. Numerous questions were raised by audience and agency members but no objections voiced, he said.

However, Michael Mitchell, county auditor-controller and a Corte Madera resident, pointed out the impact of the redevelopment project on taxing agencies that have jurisdiction over the land.

School and special districts, as well as the town's own general fund, won't benefit from the property improvements until the bond debt incurred for the street and related work is retired.

The redevelopment area, pending public hearings leading to a final plan, includes the 78-acre parcel on which developer Ernest W. Hahn proposes the shopping center and the Muzzi property to the east, plus acreage to the south and northwest expected to be involved in road expansion for the shopping complex.

In addition to further study by staff and the town's planning consultants, the preliminary plan also will be reviewed by county officials.

The agency board's next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday. An agreement with planning consultants Sedway-Cooke of San Francisco and selection of financial consultants, both relating to the redevelopment plan, will be considered.

State Prison Term 'Given As Example'

Hoping to make an example of two admitted robbers and rapists, a Marin Superior Court judge yesterday sentenced them to state prison.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner showed no inclination toward a lesser sentlence for Charle. Moultry, 23, and Louis Charles Lee, 22, both of San Francisco, despite lengthy arguments by their attorneys.

"This is primarily for the purpose of deterrence to let other people in the state know there is a high price for this kind of conduct," the judge said of the sentence.

The two men pleaded guilty in July to robbing a Mill Valley woman of $5, then taking turns raping her. The admissions were on condition their prison sentences be concurrent and the judge ordered that.

Moultry and Lee were arrested March 29 by sheriff's deputies after a chase from Marin City across the Golden Gate Bridge.

The 28-year-old victim gave law officers a description of her attackers and their car after she was accosted in her driveway, then forced to ride around Southern Marin while they took turns raping her.

Lee was committed to the California Youth Authority when he was a juvenile and has served three jail terms for felony offenses since his release in 1969.

Moultry had fewer felony arrests and convictions, but was arrested in 1966 for investigation of an offense similar to the rape. That charge was later reduced to a misdemeanor.

"I think the record in this case indicates state prison," Gardiner said despite the claim by attorney Gary T. Ragghianti that the sentence would relegate his client, Moultry, "to the trashpile of human society."

Zoning Amendment Approved In Novato

The Novato Planning Commission last night approved an amendment to the zoning ordinance to relieve city council from reviewing precise development plans unless there is an appeal from commission approval or disapproval.

The commission also approved sending to the council next Tuesday recommendations to create a primary floodway and secondary floodway zones for the Novato creek floodplain.

It approved changing the name of Hill Avenue to Hill Road from Tamalpais Avenue to Indian Valley Road; having the council change the name of Hill Street beside Rancho School to some appropriate name and requested the State Division of Highways to remove the Hill Road sign from Highway 101 near Novato Creek.

The commission continued all other items.

It continued to next Monday consideration of 10 tennis courts and pool for the Olive Ridge Tennis club for A. Quartaroli, amendments to the South Diablo Triangle master plan, the plan for 32 apartments on 2.3 acres on the south side of Rowland Boulevard between Leafwood Drive and South Novato Boulevard, revisions of the sign ordinance with the Downtown Merchants Association, a report on the water tank to serve Woodland Heights subdivision and recommendations to Marin County Planning Commission to rezone industrial property on Deer Island Lane.

It continued to Sept. 25 the application of John J. Hernikl to construct a house within 18 feet of the front property line at 583 Fairway Drive.

The commission continued until Oct. 9 consideration of the tentative map of Valley Oaks subdivision of 92 houses on 22 of a 42 acre parcel south of Olive Avenue at Rita Court and rezoning from planned residential to administrative and professional, the land south of the Nave Shopping Center on the west side of South Novato Boulevard for Richard Connell.

It adjourned to 8 p.m. next Monday at the Novato Community House.

School Board Wants Learning Center Out

The Sausalito School District board dealt a blow to the Marin City Learning Center last night by instructing the district superintendent to take whatever legal action is needed to force the learning center out of Manzanita School.

The board, reaffirming an administrative order already issued by Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg, voted 4-1 to instruct Lindberg to seek help from the county counsel. Trustee Betty Times dissented, saying she agreed with the center but disagreed with the language of the resolution, according to Lindberg.

Royce McLemore, a spokesman for the center, restated the private school's claim to the unused building and said the school has no intention of leaving.

The building had been unused since last September when the school district decided to consolidate all its students into two Sausalito schools, Bayside and Martin Luther King.

Two months ago, a group of Marin City residents took over the vacant building and cleared it of trash and debris in preparation for the classes which began yesterday.

Lindberg said about a dozen parents of pupils at the learning center turned out in support of the school at last night's meeting.

The district intends to clear the school, then lease it to Marin City Community Services District, which in turn will allow several community groups in Marin City to use it.

New board member Jesse E. Berry was sworn into office last night. He recently was declared winner of a contested school board election July 18. He defeated Sausalito housewife Judith Silver.

Musical Review Index Published

The book published last month by Scarecrow Press is the first of its kind and is titled "Record and Tape Reviews Index — 1971." A 1972 edition already is under way.

Mrs. Maleady, a San Anselmo resident, worked on the book for nearly two years gathering reviews from 17 major monthly periodicals and weekly reviews.

Gas Sales Tax Will Be Listed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Gas stations in California will shortly be listing the sales tax on each gallon of gasoline.

Acting upon order of the attorney general's office, C. B. Christensen, head of the California Department of Agriculture, Monday asked all service station operators to comply immediately with the ruling.

Last week, Attorney General Evelle J. Younger ruled that the sales tax applicable to the retail sale of gasoline must be included in the posted price and in the dispenser computer price.

Actress Ann-Margret To Undergo Surgery

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Entertainer Ann-Margret must undergo surgery for injuries suffered in a 30-foot fall off a stage platform. She has five bone fractures in her face, a broken jaw, a concussion and a broken left arm and is reported in "stable" condition at UCLA Medical Center.

Request Honored On Observances

ATLANTA (UPI)—A request by a Jewish parent to drop Christmas observances in the public schools will be honored by the Parents-Teachers Association (PTA) at the James L. Riley Elementary school.

Don Knighton, head of the school's PTA, said the traditional caroling, Christmas plays and decorating Christmas trees would not be held this year at the request of Larry Bogart.

Bogart, who has two children attending the school, told the Fulton County Board of Education last week his children had been intimidated for not singing carols.

He said religion is a "personal experience" and asked the board to abandon Christmas observances at all schools.

The Fulton board and the Atlanta Board of Education, which also is considering the matter, have not yet decided on a system-wide policy.

FIRST IN LINE FOR BART

Mrs. Gertrude Guild (center) dropped her ticket into the automatic turnstile and became the first paying customer at the Lake Merritt Station of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District yesterday. Lake Merritt was one of 12 stations which opened for business along a 28-mile run between Oakland and Fremont. Service ran longer than scheduled yesterday to accommodate hundreds of riders who came out to inaugurate BART. One rider, Mrs. Shirley Fisk, left her car in the garage and took the train to work. "This is the end of the automobile for me," she said.

Nonpartisan Ballot Plea Is Rejected

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The U.S. District Court has ended the hope of former Marin County supervisor Thomas T. Storer to run as a nonpartisan candidate on the November ballot in the Sixth Congressional District.

The three-judge panel rejected Storer's challenge to the constitutionality of the state election code that makes it virtually impossible to qualify as an independent candidate.

The court's unanimous decision Friday declared that the Legislature had determined that "the orderly functioning of the electoral process is best served by promoting party loyalty to one of a reasonable number of parties."

The code was written to "discourage the confusion of a laundry-list ballot," the judges said.

Storer could not be reached to indicate whether he will appeal. The deadline to file even as an independent, however, passed last Friday.

Storer would have had to collect 9,322 signatures between Aug. 15 and Friday, and no registered voter signing his petition could have voted in a June partisan primary election.

Petaluma Homeowners Call For Volunteers

The Petaluma Valley Homeowners Association last night called for preservation of the Old Christian Church building and suggested renovation become a citizens project to reduce costs.

Publicity chairman Cheryl Heringer said members agreed the church building across the street from city hall should be preserved because of its historical value to the city.

City Recreation Director James R. Raymond said he has plans to use the building as a performing arts center. But said renovation to make the building safe for public use could cost $30,000.

Members said that volunteer labor should be sought and said if the city council will allow more time the homeowners group can launch a volunteer effort. The organization recently completed work at La Tercera Park, mostly with volunteer labor.

Raymond also presented plans for development of Lucchesi Park and asked association support if a bond issue is placed on the June ballot.

Mrs. Heringer said members were pleased with the park plans, but asked that Raymond return with a complete cost break-down on development before the organization endorses a bond issue.

British TV

LONDON (UPI)—Most British television programs are in color, but most sets still are black and white. Government statistics show 491,000 color sets delivered in the first four months of 1972, compared with 203,000 for the same period last year. The number of black and white sets is estimated at more than 15.6 million.

Re-Elect Nixon Center Opens

The Marin County Committee to Re-Elect the President has opened its telephone center at 5609 Paradise Drive, Corte Madera.

The center will be used to identify supporters of President Nixon and to recruit campaign workers. The committee hopes to recruit more than 1,000 persons to staff the bank of telephones.

The center is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

Music For Benefit To Foundation

Vocal and instrumental music will be featured at a benefit performance for the Marin Mental Health Foundation at 8:30 p.m. Eriday and Saturday at the Marin Veterans' Memorial, Civic Center, San Rafael, under the direction of James P. Funk.

Participating groups include the Novato Choraliers, led by Barbara Carter, a group of 29 girls featuring Broadway hits and patriotic numbers; The Generation Gap; Golden Gate Chorus of Marin, reviving the songs of yesteryear.

Also Prince Charles Jr. Pipe Band, featuring kilted pipers, drummers and dancers in an authentic Scottish presentation; Natural Blend, a singing trio; Village Baptist Church Choir with soul music and spirituals; Free Time Jazz Ensemble offering nostalgic tunes and rock rhythms; and Ron Colborn's pop group, Good News.

The Generation Gap will appear Saturday only and Good News will be heard Friday only.

Industrial Park Wins Approval

The Corte Madera Planning Commission approved last night, over its chairman's objections, "a sophisticated industrial park with office space, environment and architecture."

The approval was for a five-unit project at 200 Tamal Vista Boulevard to be known as Fifer Industrial Park, composed of warehouses and professional offices.

Commission Chairman C. William Thomas argued that the loading area behind the warehouses was inadequate and that a large truck trailer could block truck traffic by backing up to load or unload.

John Campbell, who presented the proposal, and developer Peter Hayward contended truck drivers could be made to park parallel instead of backing up, thus avoiding any traffic congestion. Hayward said he could redesign the project to allow more loading space but said that would take away the concept he was wanted for the town, "a sophisticated industrial park . . ."

Consideration had been continued since a public hearing Aug. 14 when commissioners complained about lack of access roads. Campbell pointed out that an access loop road has since been designed for the perimeter of the property.

Thomas warned Hayward that the project may come under the town's moratorium on development.

He said he was warning all developers of that possibility, the city council having slapped a four-month moratorium on all building and rezoning of residential property of more than one acre or five lots in July and approved an ordinance on first reading last week that could bar development for up to a year.

Nominee To Address Two Groups In Marin

San Francisco Supervisor Roger Boas, Democratic nominee in the Sixth Congressional District, will speak twice in Marin on Thursday.

He will address a breakfast meeting of the Northgate Lions Club at 7:30 a.m. at the Holiday Inn in Terra Linda, and at 10 a.m. speak before the League of Women Voters at the San Rafael home of Mrs. James Good, 310 Highland Avenue.

Second Meeting Set On Big Development

The Corte Madera Planning Commission chewed inconclusively for two hours last night on the controversial Madera del Presidio development.

Numerous minor changes in the plan, however, proved too much to digest, so commissioners scheduled a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in town council chambers to try again to resolve the lingering issue.

Walter Stromquist, representing Cal West Properties, developer of the 72-acre site above Koch Luggage, outlined the changes made at the request of the town's board of design review. The changes, approved last week by the board, include a host of landscaping details and a retaining wall on the north boundary.

Commissioners also said they want more details on the storm drainage system, a more extensive pedestrian path system and more study of the placement of garages and grading.

The developer's plan for the first 128 of some 500 units was heard by the board of design review a half-dozen times before going to the commission.

Corte Madera Planning Commission Also:

MADERA PARK — Received an opinion from Town Atty. Albert Bianchi that the Madera Park development in the Hidden Valley area was allowed under the moratorium as the town council in April had approved the concept. He said the ban applied only to areas that did not have prior approval.

OLNEY TRACT — Approved a tentative map of one lot of the Olney tract in the Hidden Valley area with the conditions that natural vegetation be preserved, the redwood grove near Fairview Avenue be dedicated to the town and that a parcel of land adjacent to county land be dedicated as open space.

TRUMBULL PROPERTY — Denied approval for a three-lot subdivision of Trumbull property located near Corte Madera Avenue until a general plan for the town is adopted. Commissioners expressed dismay at "any more piecemeal zoning."

PUBLIC HEARING — Scheduled a public hearing for Oct. 9 at 8 p.m. for a request from Pacific Gas and Electric Co. for a permit for a transmission line from San Rafael to its substation in Corte Madera.

SIGN — Heard Wade McClure of Ad Art Inc. withdraw his application for a freestanding sign at Colonial Liquors, 212 Tamalpais Drive.

REFUND — Denied a request from Karl Treffinger of San Francisco for a refund of a $65 filing fee to the board of design review for an application for a 10-unit dwelling at 5250 Paradise Drive which he subsequently withdrew.

WATER DISTRICT — Received a registered letter from William R. Seeger, general manager and chief engineer of Marin Municipal Water District that the district board will not respond to inquiries about availability of water on proposed sites until "after the execution of a pipeline extension agreement together with the deposit of the necessary money or bonds to assure completion of the proposed work." No comment was made.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned until Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at town council chambers.

University Of Panama Offers Chinese Study

PANAMA CITY (UPI)—The University of Panama has become the first official center of Sinology in Latin American with the inclusion in its curriculum of "Chinese Language and Civilization."

Panama has a large Chinese population brought here from China in the late 19th Century to work on the Panama Canal. Francisco Javier Hsu Pin, a 1971 journalism graduate of the university, will give the new courses.

Woman Sues For College Acceptance

A woman under21 whose parents live in Kansas has filed suit in Marin Superior Court against the College of Marin to win acceptance for study at the Kentfield campus.

The suit filed by San Francisco attorney John B. Clark on behalf of Joann D. Wirth of Reed Ranch Road, Tiburon, asks that a judge order the college to enroll her for the fall semester.

As an emancipated minor free from parental control, "She has a clear, present, and beneficial right to be admitted to the College of Marin as a student and resident of Marin County," according to Clark.

The Marin Community College District board which runs the college regularly excludes persons under 21 whose parents live outside Marin except when the court orders admission.

The college has argued it scarcely has facilities enough for children of Marinites, but Marin Superior Court judges have upheld the admission of emancipated minors in the past.

In 1971, Clark notes, a Marin judge decided against the college in a similar case and was upheld by the state court of appeal.

Jittery Munich Acts On Threat

MUNICH, Germany (UPI)—The Defense Ministry, already jittery due to the Olympic massacre, scrambled two jet fighters and closed airspace over Munich Monday night when it received a report of a nightmare plot to bomb the packed Olympic Stadium during closing ceremonies.

The F104 Starfighters spent an hour hunting an "unidentified flying object" which turned out to be an errant Finnish airliner.

The Defense Ministry said the painful episode began with a "confirmed police report" at 8:03 p.m. that "Arab terrorists" had stolen a private plane from Leonberg airport, near Stuttgart. The report said the terrorists planned to drop a bomb on the huge Olympic Stadium, packed with up to 80,000 spectators and several thousand athletes participating in ceremonies closing out the 1972 Games.

Twelve minutes later came the report that an "unidentified flying object" (UFO) had been picked up on civil and military radar screens. Defense Minister Georg Leber immediately ordered the two Starfighters off the runway at Neuburg airbase.

Leber also ordered all normal air traffic banned from the Munich area. The UFO responded by disappearing from radar screens.

At 9:05 p.m. came the word the search had been called off.

The UFO? An errant DC8 Finnair airliner. It had landed at Fuerstenfeldbruck military base near Munich after losing its way. The base was the scene of last week's massacre of 10 Israeli Olympic team members.

The stolen private plane did not exist. Police in Stuttgart said an aircraft had left Leonberg, but on a scheduled flight. It had landed routinely at its destination, Baden-Baden, a spa city to the south.

The police were unable to explain how the plane's departure had generated the report received by the Defense Ministry.

Whatever blushes the episode caused, it gave a graphic example of West Germany's state of nerves following the tragic events of last week.

On Sunday, an unidentified Frenchman in the Olympic Village reported he had heard shots—a report that brought out hundreds of armed police, equipped with tracker dogs. They found nothing. A police spokesman said the affair still is a mystery.

Accident Victim Listed Critical

A Fairfax man was reported in critical condition at Marin General Hospital today with injuries sustained in a motorcycle accident Saturday night on the Fairfax-Bolinas Road near Camp Lillienthal.

A companion, Kim Bannister, 16, of 127 Cypress Drive was treated at Marin General for multiple scrapes and bruises, according to hospital reports.

According to the California Highway Patrol, Bannister was driving the motorcycle when it went into a ditch at 11:30 a.m. Hultman was a passenger, according to the patrol.

West Germany Urges Action On Terrorism

ROME (UPI)—West Germany urged its European allies today to take collective action to stop terrorism such as the Olympic massacre in Munich.

Foreign Minister Walter Scheel told a meeting of the 10 foreign ministers of the enlarged Common Market that national security officials from all 10 nations should meet to counter terrorism.

Informed sources said the ministers decided to ask the Common Market's political committee, which meets later this month, to draw up detailed proposals.

The Palestinian attack on the Olympic village in Munich brought Europe onto center stage in the Middle East conflict and convinced many governments of the need for action. But there were strong doubts that all 10 nations would agree on what to do.

Western Europe gets almost all of its oil from the Middle East and is wary of offending Arab nations. British diplomats, among others, pointed out that an anti-terrorist program, to be effective, almost inevitably would have racist overtones.

While the foreign ministers met in a 17th century villa in suburban Frascati, finance ministers talked at the Treasury Ministry in Rome, with a joint meeting in Frascati scheduled for later today. The main item on the agenda was whether or not France will veto the scheduled European summit meeting.

All signs indicated the summit will be held. French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann praised an agenda drawn up for the meeting. And the finance ministers, in a Monday session, agreed in principle on a European monetary fund.

But Schumann said he might let today's meeting pass with no definite word on France's decision—even though the summit is tentatively scheduled for Paris on Oct. 19-20, barely five weeks away.

France first agreed to the meeting, then began to hedge when it appeared that the summit might discuss not only economic and monetary union, which France favors, but unified foreign and political policies, which it opposes. Early in the summer, French President Georges Pompidou announced that there was no point in holding the summit unless agreement was guaranteed in advance.

The other nine nations largely bowed to France's wishes, according to the 23-page agenda. It called for detailed progress on economic unity, but talked in generalities and platitudes about foreign policy and political unity.

France's refusal to say yes or no visibly angered its allies.

15 Simultaneous Parties To Kick Off New Season

By MOLLY MARIN

To launch the 1972-73 season, members of the Marin Symphony Association are planning 15 parties Saturday from 5 to 8 p.m. The parties will be held simultaneously at 15 homes, where cheese and wine will be served and symphony musicians will play.

The purpose of the parties, according to Mrs. Mel Croner, membership chairman for the symphony association, is to reach persons in the county who are not familiar with the range of musical activities presented by the symphony.

"A Gift of Music for All Ages" is the theme for this year's symphony, which will present concerts by the Marin Youth Orchestra, Youth Orchestra Piccola, Workshop for Strings and the Music for Minors Program in addition to the symphony concerts.

Hosting parties will be Messrs. and Mmes. Stephen A. Fraser, Sausalito; Conger Fawcett, Leonard Asiano, Mill Valley; William E. Fuss, Tiburon; John F. Fassio, Kentfield; Ellis M. Stephens, Ross; J. S. Elkjer, Bok Reitzel, Joseph Kohlenstein, San Rafael; Jack Felson, Forest Knolls; John Wright, Inverness; H. William Nilsen, Novato; and Drs. and Mmes. Harold Brownstein, Greenbrae; John C. Bennett and Milton Hollenberg, San Rafael.

A GOOSE EGG doesn't add up to zero for Mrs. Le Roy Everett. When the Everetts returned to their home in Tiburon after 2 years in Cherry Hill, N.J., Jane Everett brought 75 goose eggs with her. She is famed as the fabricator of jewel boxes and elaborately decorated Christmas tree ornaments from such exotic eggs as ostrich, rhea, cassawary and guinea.

Friends in New Jersey collected the large number of goose eggs as a farewell gift. Mr. and Mrs. Everett and their daughter, Kathy, a student at the College of Marin are back in their home in Belveron Gardens, having returned this summer. Jane is being welcomed by fellow members of the Outdoor Art Club of Mill Valley, Belvedere Guild 1 of Sunny Hills and friends at Corinthian Yacht Club.

A 10 DAY scuba diving trip in Tahiti was a special vacation for Dr. and Mrs. Martin H. Long of Mill Valley. They stayed in Papeete and Pueu on Tahiti, and dove from chartered boats. They brought home no shells or specimens, but took many pictures. Both Dr. and Mrs. Long are experienced divers. They visited Capt. and Mrs. Omer Darr, former Mill Valley residents, on the island of Moorea.

FORMER MARIN County resident, Mrs. Grace C. Farley celebrated her 99th birthday at her home in La Jolla recently at a party hosted by her daughter, Mrs. William H. MacKay of Rossmoor in Walnut Creek, also a former Marin resident.

Other guests at the party were Mrs. Farley's great-grandson, Andrew Scott MacKay, and her daughter-in-law Mrs. Robert MacKay of Ignacio.

A SURPRISE HOUSE warming and 40th wedding anniversary party was given Sept. 3 for Mr. and Mrs. Michael Scotto at their new home in Novato by their daughters and sons-in-laws, Messrs. and Mmes. Steve Lewis and Jerry Hallett, all of San Rafael.

A buffet was served to the 75 guests, who also heard a tape recording of events in the couple's lives.

A DUAL celebration was held Aug. 30 at the home of Mrs. John Guendner in Larkspur. The 84th birthday of Mrs. Helen Ramey of Corte Madera and a six-week-European trip for Mrs. Lloyd Tucker of Larkspur were the occasions for the luncheon.

A DINNER party will be hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Edmond C. Ward of Kentfield on Thursday evening prior to the opera preview of "Norma" to be held at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Special guests at the Wards' party will be Dr. and Mrs. Jan Popper of Los Angeles. Dr. Popper is director of opera at the University of California at Los Angeles. He will present the preview of the opera "Norma" at the Barn at the center.

Other guests at the Wards' will be Mr. and Mrs. E. Paul Atkins of Ross, Mrs. John C. Alexander of Sausalito and Mr. and Mrs. F. Van Dorn Moller of Napa. Mrs. Alexander is chairman of the Marin Opera Action, sponsors of the preview, and Mrs. Ward is on the board of directors of the San Francisco Opera Assocaition.

YWCA Fall Schedule To Begin

The YWCA's series of fall classes and activities begins next week, and registration is open, according to Nadine Winston, executive director.

A five-week series on understanding contemporary art will be offered jointly by the Marin Jewish Community Center and the YWCA. Participants will have guided tours of galleries in San Francisco, studios in Marin, the Richmond Art Center, University of California Art Museum and the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art: Transportation is provided and lunch arranged.

"Doorstep Nature" is a series designed to train adults in nature perception and knowledge with a special field trip including their children. It is also cosponsored with the Marin Jewish Community Center.

School children will be able to experience creative drama in an improvizational drama workshop after school directed by Lynn Moody. Pre-schoolers are offered tumbling and musical gymnastics with Gerrie Kreuzer and creative dance with Bonnylee Degenhardt. Teen-ager can join the popular dance group with the Schulmans.

Ilyana will instruct evening classes in the ancient art of belly dancing in Mill Valley and for military dependents at Hamilton Air Force Base. Jazz dance through Margie Belrose is also offered.

Active sports include tennis with Hal Wagner and golf with Joe Colfer instructing.

There are active groups of fifth and sixth grade girls in Bahia Vista, Davidson Junior High, Marin City and San Marin. The groups are open to all interested girls.

Single mothers who are interested in coming together to share problems, solutions and resources are meeting alternate Wednesday evenings. The setting is informal and supportive. Women with special concerns of the single parent are welcome to join in sharing these problems and ideas.

THE BATTLE AGAINST LEUKEMIA

Squeezing 21 Years Of Joy Into Seven

By JOAN LISETOR

As Bob and Nancy Roach see it they squeezed 21 years of joy into seven, and for almost five of those seven years they lived with the knowledge that their daughter, Erin, had leukemia.

They lost Erin in April.

"In no way were the years a totally negative experience," Nancy Roach said as she sat galncing at the trees outside of the couple's hill top home in Mill Valley.

There was no basis for her fear, Nancy said, but she suspected Erin had leukemia even before the diagnosis was made when Erin was 2½ years old.

"When our worst fears were confirmed the initial shock was as if we were told she was dead, and I went into a mourning period for about two months," she said. "I felt so negative at first, and then one night I sat up in bed and realized it was time to stop feeling sorry for myself, that Erin needed me."

THE MOST important thing, Nancy said, was to give Erin as normal a life as possible, both emotionally and physically. This was difficult especially during the times that Erin's resistance was low and she was susceptible to contageous diseases. She had to stay out of crowds and home from school during these times.

"Probably the hardest thing to do was to discipline Erin," Nancy said, "but being normal I yelled and screamed at her, and, oh gosh yes, I got angry at her."

The Roaches are founding members of the Candlelighters Society, a group of parents whose children have been afflicted with cancer. Sharing experiences with other parents is what gave her strength, Nancy said.

"They had experienced things we were going through and by being with them I gained encouragement and strength," she said.

The Roaches are still very active in the Candlelighters, and Nancy has designed a greeting card, which is being sold by members to raise funds that are used to purchase equipment for local hospitals and help needy families with cancer stricken children. She has designed cards each year for three years as the group's main source of revenue. Mrs. Lawrence Stickney of Mill Valley is in charge of card sales.

MRS. ROBERT ROACH
'Stop crying and get on with life'

Members of the Candlelighters have looked to the Roaches for advise because they coped so well with life, but, said Nancy, "I wouldn't advise anyone to handle things just like Bob and I or inflict my philosophy, because everyone is different, but if sharing our experience helps I will do it.

"YOU KNOW, the world is divided into copers and noncopers, and as one mother put it, 'On Moday you may be a coper, and you may be a non-coper on Tuesday.' We made plenty of mistakes."

Following the diagnosis Erin was given a 1 per cent chance for survival, Nancy said.

"I had no false hopes, but I did fantasize when I heard about a new drug or new treatments," she said.

Erin had to be told she had a serious illness because of the treatment, but no purpose would have been served by telling her the name of the disease.

"She probably would have gone around telling everyone she had leukemia, and that would have made people uncomfortable," Nancy said.

A seriously ill person and the person's family often become isolated from society because people avoid them, Nancy said.

"AT FIRST you think it is because people do not care and then you realize they are avoiding you because they don't know what to say," she said.

"I avoided places and people because I did not want to make them uncomfortable, and then I realized this wasn't giving Erin the normal life I wanted her to have, so when I saw people I would offer, 'I'm sure you must be wondering how things are going with Erin,' and I would tell them how she was doing."

After Erin's death it became awkward again, Nancy said, but expressions of feelings from friends have meant so much, as does empathy.

"When you are suffering inside and someone offers just-sympathy, like a woman who used to grab my arm and look at me with sad eyes, it only makes things worse. You don't need that type of emotion," she explained.

When Erin lost her hair because of treatment Nancy went to great lengths to have a wig made for her only to find out that Erin didn't mind being without hair.

"All we got out of the wig was a day of pictures. The wig was uncomfortable and she couldn't stand it. In ordering the wig I showed emotion, not wisdom," Nancy said.

"Bob handled it so well. He and Erin looked in the mirror together. Bob is bald, and he told Erin, 'At least yours will grow back.' After that I made her some little cloche hats for when it was cold. I almost ruined a lot with my anxiety."

PEOPLE TEND to sell children short, Nancy said, because at 4 Erin understood the concept of death, its finality and all of the ramifications of death, especially the loss to the family. She experienced the death of a friend, who also had leukemia, and a cousin who was drowned.

"When her cousin died she was upset because everyone around her was upset. Finally she said, in effect, 'Stop crying and get on with life,'" Nancy said.

"Erin was not afraid to die, but she was afraid to be alone," Nancy said.

Will she have another child, Nancy said she is often asked.

"I call that the 'puppy syndrome'. Like when a puppy is run over and you go right out and replace it. No child is replaceable, and the loss is as great if you have many children or one. The only difference is if you lose your only child your life style does change," Nancy said.

"Erin taught me to live life to the fullest but with the reality that it will end. I don't want another child to have to die or another parent to lose a child."

Florida Named U.S. Capital For Honeymoons

The designation was made by Bride's Magazine which made a national survey of its readers. Publisher Robert M. Thorsen presented Lt. Gov. Tom Adams a mounted and engraved Steuben crystal bowl to commemorate the occasion.

More than 400,000 newlyweds will honeymoon in Florida this year, Thorsen predicted.

"We estimate that brides and grooms will spend in excess of $100 million for their Florida honeymoons this year," he said.

The Florida honeymooners, Thorsen said, represent 15 per cent of the estimated 2,192,000 marriages which will take place in the United States in 1972.

Contrary to what many people believe that "people don't get married any more," Thorsen said, "Marriage is at an all-time high in the United States," and shows a continuous upward trend.

Drug Use Signs In Children

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Health Insurance Institute says the following signs may indicate a child is on drugs: A tendency to sit looking off into space; an appearance of intoxication with no smell of alcohol; staying out much later than usual and giving evasive answers when questioned about his activities; avid reading of books and articles on the drug culture; loss of appetite; rapid loss of weight.

Horns Effective For Decorating

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
(Distributed by General Features Corp.)

Although there's been a terrific uproar about white hunters who go out and shoot disappearing species of animals, there's no need to bury or hide the beautiful horns and skins from animals that are already dead.

Nature is profligate, so we shouldn't waste or destroy the byproducts of any life-death cycle. There's something very appealing about horns and bone carvings from Africa. Many junk and antique shops have samples left over from the Victorian era.

Now one manufacturer, Tyndale, has offered a variety of horns for decorative purposes. I'm not clear as to whether these are fabulous fakes or the real thing, but they are effective.

If a little bit of naturalism is right up your decorating alley, but you don't have room for a super game room, why not find a small corner where you can create your own little jungle? Plants are proliferating as decorations now, so you might want to create a semigarden at the same time.

If you do include living plants (the only kind), try to use a nononsense floor covering. Vinyl flooring that looks like woodgrain would be fine. Or an indoor-outdoor carpeting would cover the area.

The easiest way to get a woodsy look is through the use of some dramatic wall paneling. Leave it unstained or use a clear coat of varnish. Don't worry about it once it's installed. Hammer nails in it, hang plant brackets from it — nothing about it to be kept perfect. It's natural, remember?

The room shown also uses some handsome nonjungle furniture by Tyndale. The superchrome-type table makes a nice surface for your finest china in between game sessions. So don't hesitate to serve a glamorous midnight supper for two in this same area.

For color, try painting one plaster wall in a deep terra cotta or sunny yellow. Instead of a hanging lamp over the table, which would obliterate the view of paintings or horns on the wall, try solving the lighting some other way. A chrome floor lamp with swing arm would probably do the job. Or just go completely primitive and resort to candles or oil lamps.

SMALL GAME in a small corner: The big game motif continues to be popular even though none of us wants to decimate the animal population. Just use what comes your way naturally to create a tiny home jungle area such as this one by Tyndale's Josef Head.

Wrong Window Can Be Fixed

NEW YORK (UPI) — If an off-center window in a smallish room poses a decorating problem, a shade, hung reverse — roll to hide the roller within the window frame, will come to the rescue by creating an illusion of more space — particularly when chosen in a color that blends with the wall.

You Can Cut Your Food Bill

A few cents, saved here and there at the grocery store, can cut your weekly food bill anywhere from 10 to 15 per cent, U.S. Department of Agriculture food economists find. Try it and see. Take breads and cereals as a starter. As you shop, remember:

Bread is less expensive than rolls. Day-old bread, if available? is even cheaper.

Hot cereals cost less than ready-to-eat varieties; unsweetened cereals less than sugared.

Whole grain enriched or fortified cereal products usually are less expensive (and more wholesome) than fancy crackers and special breads.

Stop before you holler about your food bill. Chances are you've got a lot of other things besides food in your shopping cart. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, over one-fifth of the money spent at grocery stores goes for non-food items — things like soap, paper goods, pet foods, clothing, cosmetics, cigarettes and alcoholic beverages.

'Tennis Everyone?' — A Fast Growing Sport

NEW YORK (UPI)—That cliche about "Tennis anyone?" looks as if it could become "Tennis everyone."

The keepers of statistics say the emergence of professional tennis as a glamour sport has been paralleled in growth by the amateur game.

Michael J. Burns, director of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association (USLTA), says the sport is growing by about one million more players each year, that today the number of players in the United States alone is estimated at 11.5 million.

There's no count available on the additional millions of spectators of a sport that, according to Encyclopedia Britannica, has its roots in a family of games played in Egypt and Persia 500 years B.C.

Boutiques featuring tennis garb are proliferating—and profiting. So are the stores featuring equipment, the tennis camps, teaching pros, courts (4000 built last year) and something now to make tennis a year-round game—the sophisticated, covered indoor facility with special appeal to the women.

Some of these facilities provide luxury lounges, fashion shops, nurseries and babysitters, women's leagues and tennis clinics.

And that's not including the "gate" for tournaments such as the rich U.S. Opens which just finished at New York's West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills or the Virginia Slims tours for women professionals. Last year, the tour drew an estimated 170,000. By the end of this year, it is expected to reach half a million.

Nor does that total count the earnings of the professionals. Last year, for example, Billie Jean King became the first woman to earn more than $100,000 for a year at the game. Spokesmen for Virginia Slims said the average of its touring pros was $30,000 to $35,000 a year.

Undoubtedly, much of the growing interest, particularly among the young, results from the national and international championship play of the teenage and early 20s groups. They can make it, why not we too?

Two girls with the charisma of youth and fearlessness against older, more experienced rivals are Evonne Goolagong and Chris Evert.

Evonne, just turned 20, became the darling of tennis from the time she came out of Barellan, a little village in New South Wales, and took the women's singles title at Wimbledon last year, one of the youngest champs in the classic's history.

Evonne, curly-haired, happy-go-lucky, is one-eighth aborigine and one of eight children of a Barellan sheep shearer.

Miss Evert is from a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., tennis-playing family; her father, Jimmy, is a pro at Holiday Park. They called Chris a "happening" last year when, only 16, she made her first appearance in the U.S. Opens and made it to the semifinals. Back this year, she also made it to the semis, but lost out on the try for the top to Kerry Melville, a 26-year-old Australian.

But that loss can hardly dim the luster of the tennis idol whose crowd appeal one admirer compared to "that of a Shirley Temple of another day."

The blonde Miss Evert smiles at the comparision and says matter-of-factly, "An idol? Whatever I have become means all the sacrifice of work and practice is paying off."

It will pay off in money when she turns pro at 18.

The Everts and Goolagongs were the youth sensations of last year and this.

But other fans other days remember the magic of such names as Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly, the Californian, who in 1951 took command of the tennis world, winning the first of three successive U.S. championships at Forest Hills before she was 17 and then going on to sweep various internationals.

Who will be the hearthrobs of the future?

It could be the likes of something different in tennis— identical twin sisters swatting it out. Jill and Joy Schwikert, of Los Vegas, Nev., have just turned pro and signed with the Virginia Slims tour. Their mother is a teaching pro in Las Vegas and the twins said they figured their parents let them sign on "mostly to get us out of the house."

Exercise Does Not Affect Childbirth

Physiological data compiled on 150 women athletes indicates that strenuous exercise and sports activity has no adverse effect on the women's childbearing abilities. In fact, female athletes equal or improve their physical performances after bearing children, reports Dr. Ekaterina Zaharieva of Bulgaria, who reported her findings in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Zaharieva conducted the study for 20 years.

Ambitious Women Should Study Carefully First

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jane Trahey, advertising success story and women's activist, believes the woman who wants to move into the executive suite should study carefully the nature of the company's management before she joins it.

"If you see management at the top all male, you know you're in a male-oriented company," she said. "You don't stand a chance."

If you're already working for such a company, get out, says Miss Trahey. She can't understand a woman "holding still" in a company where the men run the show and decide on the promotions.

"AND I could throttle the woman who says she'd rather work for the man," said the Chicago-born woman who owns her own Trahey Advertising Agency.

"Women are serfs in most offices," she said. "They do most of the work for less pay than the man."

Equal pay for equal work is in most instances just not the case, she said, although "there's a lot of tokenism in management today." But she continued in an interview, you can take a woman and a man graduating from college at the same time and the man will be hired for a better job than the woman. The woman probably will start as a secretary and work up. "It's a hard road," she said.

IN MOST companies, you have to be a "super spectacular" to succeed, she said. "And how many are that talented!"

Miss Trahey cited some of the fields where management is male-oriented—"most industry, steel, insurance, automotive, television." She would aim a career "in the professions where the women are...retailing, fashion, and advertising "if you're creative."

Jane Trahey's career began in Chicago after graduation from Mundelein College when she went to work in the morgue of the Chicago Tribune. "My mother used to phone and as soon as someone would answer 'the morgue' she'd hang up."

LATER, SHE worked in the advertising department of the Carson Pirie Scott department store in Chicago, then went to Neiman-Marcus in Dallas as the store's advertising director. She came to New York in 1956 as advertising director for the New York-based Kayser Co., clothing manufacturer. One year later she went into the agency business as Trahey Associates.

Hers is what she calls a "middle sized" agency, with billings of more than $1 million annually. In 1970, she was honored by her profession as Advertising Woman of the Year.

Among her writings are three cookbooks, two humorous novels, and a play "Ring Round the Bathtub" which opened this spring on Broadway and had a brief run but has caught the attention of the movie industry.

SHE WAS trying for a funny play, she said, "but audiences are not ready for laughs these days. Nor are they ready for a family play."

"Probably it's the nature of our times. We're constantly at war. Remember, we've not had a Mark Twain in a long time."

Miss Trahey supports the women's liberationist movement and has a story on old-fashioned manners in the July edition of "MS", the liberationist magazine.

She is not, however, the out and out militant of say a Betty Friedan or Gloria Steinem.

"There are different types of people," she said. "But if there's a serious problem, you have to have the guerrillas. The press won't cover a nice meeting."

Good Friends Can Be Truthful; Let Her Know About Her Ego

DEAR HELEN:

We have a problem with Terry, our girl friend: she thinks she's skinny but her stomach hangs over her pants and her hips are too big for short-shorts. What she does to a mini skirt is ridiculous. She insists her waist is 24 but it's more like 31!

When we walk down the street she thinks people are looking at her because she has a good figure, but they're really staring at her poor taste.

She we tell her, drop hr, or just keep on being — THE EMBARRASSED TWO

DEAR EMB:

If you're good enough friends, you can be truthful but tactful. Let Terry know this kind of ego only weighs you down, and she's fooling nobody but herself.

Sometimes a girl's mirror tells her only what she wants to see, and it takes PEOPLE to make her see what she really is. — SUE

DEAR EMBARRASSED:

Pointing out a girl's faults "for her own good" is risky business — unless yours is the special kind of friendship that can survive truthful hurts. (And somehow I don't think it is.)

My I.G.A.P. ("I'm Guessing Again Perception") tells me you'd just as soon change this threesome to a twosome, and you're using "embarrassment" to justify it. — HELEN

DEAR RAP:

I am a 14-year-old guy, and getting high grades in school has never been a problem. But I don't do well athletically.

Now the kids who don't do well scholastically are treated just fine by the school system, which makes sure that they are developed to their full potential. They are put into separate groups consisting of underachievers like themselves, so their precious egos won't be damaged. They are coddled, protected, given sympathy, and shielded from would-be verbal assailants.

Now let us consider how I am treated. As an "underachiever" in athletic ability, have I had the special attention given to my scholastic counterparts? No! I have been put in with everyone else who is almost certainly more able than I am at any sport. As a result, I have been laughed at, mocked out, and given patronizing looks from ignorant gym teachers.

Contrary to what you are probably thinking, I am not a scrawny little weak runt with bifocals. I am six feet tall, and have no problem coordinating my body movements. I certainly have potential. It is the same potential of the stupid kid who isn't really stupid. The only difference is that his potential i helped to develop and mine is painfully ignored. — MARTIN

DEAR MARTIN:

Rights Of Women Published

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The opportunities and rights of federally employed women are summarized in a new publication, "Calling All Women in Federal Service," issued by the Women's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor's Employment Standards Administration.

Directed to both present and potential employees, the brief guide outlines various acts and executive orders which eliminate barriers to women's equal employment opportunity in the federal government. It also describes special programs available to women civil servants, including counseling, training and upward mobility opportunities.

Federal regulations governing part-time employment, maternity leave, maternity care benefits, membership in unions and associations and political rights are also included.

Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan Koontz, deputy assistant secretary of labor and Women's Bureau director, and Mrs. Jayne B. Spain, vice chairman of the Civil Service Commission, urged all federally employed women to become familiar with and avail themselves of their opportunities.

Both cited the federal government as a "pioneer" in equal opportunities for women. In 1883, the Civil Service Act was passed to provide that women must be administered civil service examinations on the same basis as men. In 1923, the Classification Act required equal pay for equal work.

Single copies of "Calling All Women in Federal Service" are available from the Women's Bureau, Employment Standards Administration, U. S. Department of Labor, Washington, D. C. 20210. Multiple copies are available at 15 cents each from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402.

Aged Need As Much Exercise As Ever

As a person ages he or she needs as much exercise as ever. To maintain his ideal weight between the ages of 30 and 60, men should consume 11 per cent fewer calories and women five per cent fewer calories.

Star Billing For Window Shades

NEW YORK (UPI) — Window shades are receiving star billing in many of the most successful decorating treatments within many price ranges, according to interior decorators.

The reason? They offer versatility, protection and insulation in a choice of colors, patterns, plus such individual niceties as interesting hemp-shades, trimmings and pulls.

Stretch Capability

Spandex is a familiar man-made fiber used in foundation garments, swimwear, support and surgical hosiery, stretch slacks and ski pants. A principal characteristic is its excellent stretch capability. It also resists deterioration from salt water, perspiration, and cosmetics. Most garments made of spandex are machine-washable and dryable. But as with any item, check hangtags and follow manufacturers' care instructions.

'For The Enjoyment Of The People'

The measure before San Rafael voters in a special election one week from today reads:

"Shall the City of San Rafael . . . incur a bonded indebtedness in the principal amount of $2,250,000 for the purpose of raising money for the acquisition of 'open space' or 'open area' for the use and enjoyment of the people of San Rafael?"

WE LIKE THAT "for the use and enjoyment of the people of San Rafael." That's what preserving open space is all about — or should be.

"Use and enjoyment" doesn't mean that the open space should be cluttered up with roads and recreation equipment and refreshment stands.

We can enjoy a wooded hillside without climbing it. We enjoy a beautiful, unspoiled ridgeline each time we drive past — and if anything has brought home to Marinites the need for preserving open space, it is the perching of buildings (often distinctly unattractive ones, at that) along those ridgelines.

But there should be a path up that wooded slope or onto that ridge for those who want to take it. It should be accessible. And where the topography lends itself, there should be a picnic spot with some facilities for disposing of garbage.

THE SAMPLE ballot argument in favor of the bond issue (none against it was submitted) claims there is no conflict between this proposal and the countywide park district to be voted on in November.

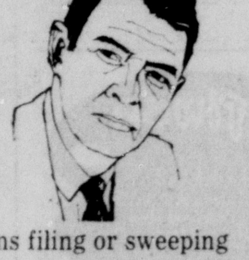
"The city bond issue," says the argument, written by Mayor C. Paul Bettini, "provides an emergency measure of saving areas which are in immediate danger of being developed. On the other hand, the countywide district would provide a long-range program of acquiring open space both within and but mostly outside of the San Rafael city limits."

This pretty well states the case. Whatever the fate of the countywide district, the demands on it will be suchthat it cannot be expected to save much of the fast-disappearing open space in San Rafael. The city has a list of eight properties on which development already is proposed — which presumably would be top priority if the $2,250,000 bond issue is authorized.

THERE IS A FALSE belief that taxpayers suffer from keeping land in open space. On the contrary, many developments fail to produce enough taxes to pay for the public services they require. An investment in open space, where it is needed to preserve the quality of life, thus can also mean a tax saving over the long run.

It will require two-thirds approval for the bond issue to pass. We hope the turnout next Tuesday is large — and that at least two-thirds of the votes are "yes."

SACRAMENTO SCENE



California Hasn't Stinted Higher Education System

By RUS WALTON

The next time someone tries to tell you that California taxpayers have shortchanged their colleges and universities, don't you believe it.

In the past 10 years we have shelled out $6.45 billion to support our system of higher education.

Annual expenditures for taxpayer-supported higher education have tripled since 1962. Then we spent $366 million; this year we will pay out $1.13 billion. That will bring the 11-year total to $7.58 billion — and that is quite a bag of coins.

It goes to support nine University of California campuses and 19 state college and university institutions, and to help finance the greatest network of community colleges in the free world.

WHILE WE TAXPAYERS have been making it possible for more and more young people to attend the state's colleges and universities, we have also been increasing the per-student support. In 1962, support per student at UC was $2,576 a year; today it is $3,372. In 1962, support per student at the state colleges averaged $1,026; today it is $1,519.

Nothing stingy about that.

Per capita taxes for higher education have also increased during the past 10 years: from $21.29 in 1962 to $54.19 as of today.

At the same time state expenditures for higher education were increasing 208 per cent in 10 years, total enrollment rose 168 per cent: UC, up 80 per cent; state colleges, 167 per cent, and community colleges, 190 per cent.

University and state college personnel also soared. In 1962, there were 23,224 persons employed by the University of California; today there are 41,996.

TEN YEARS AGO on the UC campuses there were two "non-academic" employees for every one on the teaching staff. Today, the ratio is almost three-to-one; which means that for every academician, there are three persons filing or sweeping or mowing.

The state colleges had 11,944 employees on 18 campuses in 1962. Today that total has swelled to 29,716 and there are 4,200 more non-teaching employees than there are educators.

This year there will be about 963,000 students enrolled in the state's total higher education system: 107,340 on the UC campuses and another 233,000 in the state colleges and universities.

To most young Californians, however, higher education means a community college. Some 623,000 students will be enrolled in those two-year institutions this year. Of that total, about 105,000 will be adult or part-time attendees.

Ten years ago there were 70 community colleges in the state. Since then the total enrollment has almost tripled and today there are 95. The master plan calls for another 34 within the next 10 years.

THIS GROWTH, and projected growth, reflects not only an increase in the number of high school graduates going directly into the two-year "Junior" colleges, it also indicates that more and more adults are attending part-time to expand their knowledge or to up-date their technical job skills. Community colleges will continue to take a more important part as the economy becomes more technical, as leisure time increases, and as the trend toward "life-long" learning develops.

While enrollment continues to climb at the community college level, it is down at both UC and the state colleges. Both systems fell short of their estimated registrations in 1971 and both will probably fall short again this year.

Concern now is focusing on what will be done in the 1980s with all the facilities and tenured staff as enrollment continues to shrink.

Terra Lindans Ready To Pay For Open Space

Home from vacation and catching up with August papers, I see an Aug. 18 editorial on the San Rafael open space bond issue. A correction should be made on one point.

It is true that those of us in the CSD area of Terra Linda will not be able to vote on these bonds, but if we annex to San Rafael at the November election, we will as part of the annexation agreement help pay for them. Indeed, these are bonds for which we as a community will be happy to pay! A major reason for Terra Lindans to annex to San Rafael is exactly this point: to join with our friends and neighbors already in the city to help formulate new San Rafael plans for greenbelts among our few remaining — and ever more precious — open hills.

(According to City Atty. Frederick C. Robbins Jr., assumption of its share of the bonded indebtedness by Terra Linda will be voted upon at the same time as annexation to San Rafael. — Editor.)

Transition In Source Of Power Predicted

The oil companies keep telling us how much they are spending to keep us with the elixir of life (oil). Baloney!

In my lifetime I heard the same cry from the coal companies when the transition came from coal to oil.

All power is from heat. Yesterday was coal, today is oil, tomorrow nuclear heat. When we run out of the necessary elements for nuclear power there will be another transition. The sun? Who knows.

It has already started, ships and submarines on nuclear power.

We will have cleaner air when the autos drive into a service station and get a package the size of a battery (nuclear power).

Could I be a visionary?

Fatal Brawl Not Related To Open Door

In your paper of Sept. 7 an article appeared about a drunken brawl at the Open Door, a "ramshackle coffee house" at the heliport where one man was killed and one wounded and one man arrested.

This coffee house is not ramshackle but in good taste. It is a church sponsored drop-in place which helps, materially and spiritually, young people who are travelling and are in need. It is run by the street ministry who are very humanistic and spiritual people who sacrifice their time to help. At no time did anybody drink in there and the altercation was totally unrelated to the place, outside of which it happened.

Accurate Reporting On New Thrift Shop

I want to thank the I-J for the excellent coverage and timing on its recent article about the opening at the new Marin Child Development Center Thrift Shop with the photograph by Bob Hax.

Primarily, however, I wish to compliment Pat Balmes for her accurate reporting about the shop and its purpose. I know how difficult it can be to distinquish the uniqueness of the center and its clients from other therapeutic and educational services and other handicapped youngsters. I am familiar with the reporting of Pat Balmes so I was not surprised at the careful way in which she conveyed the information. I hope we have the opportunity again to have the attention of Pat Bwmes. Reporters like her make the I-J a valuable asset to the county.

One point I would like to add is that we are now accepting donations of merchandise, used or new, for the shop, and all donations are tax deductible.

College Ethnic Studies Actions Questioned

The item in tonight's I-J (Sept. 7) on the appointment of an administrator at the College of Marin, and of opposition to same, is of interest on three points, two of substance, one of style. Substantively, it is deplorable that, as stated, there is still no ethnic studies department at Marin, four years after such a department was approved, and it is unfair to hire an administrator for ethnic studies, not give him a real program to administer, and take his position out of the teaching staff of an existing department.

I do not question Mr. Iraheta's abilities in the least — it is simply unfair to both parties to graft him onto a department in order to "make do", thus taking classes from previously hired teachers, and expect him to both teach courses, some of which are not in his field, as well as administer ethnic studies courses . . .

As to style, it is interesting to note that as soon as a matter of controversy arises, the board retires to chambers. As the I-J has noted before, the Brown Act is often circumvented, and public access to information slighted, by such actions.

Reason For Backing Arrigoni's Opponent

I wish to comment on Paul Peterzell's recent column in the I-J regarding Supervisor Peter Arrigoni, the air pollution board, and my related endorsement of Barbara Boxer.

First, let me reiterate that my endorsement of Mrs. Boxer has nothing to do with the nature of Peter Arrigoni's voting record. It has to do with leadership styles.

I have served with Pete Arrigoni on the City-County Planning Council for over two years. His conservationist record on that important body is consistent and strong; he could be relied on in a pinch. His record on the smog board has also reflected a pro-conservation, anti-pollution stance.

The Callahan-Walker debate, although involving issues of policy, was in a very real sense a matter of personnel procedures, and it would be unfair to take Peter to task for his vote there. It was an area where reasonable men, of which Peter is eminently one, can differ.

Peter's record of attendance at the smog board — and here I erred, based on information given to me — has been 29 out of 35 sessions. Given his role on the board of supervisors and the coincidence of budget sessions with smog board meetings, this record is not unreasonable. Peter has been a conscientious public servant, and I have been proud to work with him.

Watergate Cases Put Heavy Loand On Republican Judge

WASHINGTON — Federal Judge Charles Richey of the District of Columbia Court is carrying a burden that puts him under the heaviest responsibility. He is the judge who will hear both the civil and criminal cases growing out of the bugging of Democratic national headquarters, an unprecedented exercise in political espionage long since outgrown the sniggering designation of caper.

The immediate challenge is whether one or both cases will be heard prior to the election on Nov. 7. Judge Richey must thread his way through a tangle of legalisms if postponement is not to follow postponement, with the suspicion that the power of the judiciary is being used to keep back facts that might harm the Nixon-Agnew ticket.

The five men arrested with all the tools of espionage in Democratic headquarters at the Watergate on June 14 have not yet been indicted. The trail leads through a murkey underground to individuals who had connections with the committee to re-elect the President. Into the Miami bank account of one of the five, Bernard Barker, two large deposits supposedly intended for the committee — one $25,000 and another $89,000 — have been traced. Why? No one has come up with the answers.

EDWARD BENNETT WILLIAMS attorney for Lawrence O'Brien, Democratic chairman at the time of the breakin, has been taking depositions in O'Brien's suit for $1 million against the Nixon campaign committee. Judge Richey on his own initiative ordered the depositions sealed. His reason was that disclosure might prejudice the chances for a fair trial for the five.

Yet taking the depositions in a law office and not under the jurisdiction to a trial judge is inhibiting. The witnesses are not liable to discipline for circumventing the questions or for refusing to testify at all.

Judge Richey now says that when the deposition taking is complete in a week or 10 days, he will reconsider his ruling. By taking the seals off the depositions some of the mystery would be cleared up and the public could feel more confident that justice will not be so long delayed as to be irrelevant to the great issue of corruption of the election process.

THAT A BURDEN of this magnitude should be put on Judge Richey says a lot about the method of selecting federal judges and the way that a particular case falls to the lot of a particular judge. Granted that he may have the wisdom of a Solomon and the virtues of an Aristides the just, his origins have a bearing on the heavy responsibility he has assumed.

He was appointed to the federal bench on May 19, 1971. Prior to that he had been general counsel to the Public Service Commission in Maryland. Spiro Agnew, as governor, had named him to that post and he had continued to serve under Gov. Marvin Mandel. In Maryland he has been known as "Spiro's Man."

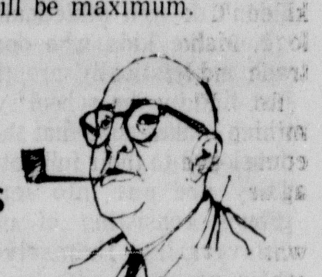
When the Espionage case came before the federal court, one judge, William B. Jones, disqualified himself. He did so because he had been a Democrat and was appointed in 1962 by a Democratic president.

SURELY IN THIS instance the circumstances cry out for not only a special prosecutor but a special tribunal to hear the whole case without fear or favor. It is too much to ask of a judge serving scarcely more than a year to pass on this issue with all its ramifications and with what is certain to be an increasing glare of public attention.

For that matter, why not a thorough Senate investigation by the judiciary subcommittee of which Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is chairman? On that committee are Senators Charles Mc. Mathias, Birch Bayh and Philip Hart. They could be counted on for a close look, with the right of subpoena, at the whole affair.

The zero scenario of those fearful of a cover-up is as follows: The two men involved at one degree removed at one degree removed and with what appear to have been links to the Committee to Re-Elect the President and the White House, E. Howard Hunt Jr. and G. Gordon Liddy, will go scot-free while the five caught in the act take their medicine. The harm to the President in this scenario is minimal. The harm to public trust and confidence will be maximum.

LOUIS CASSELS



Poor We Have Always With Us —It's Time To Recognize This

Millions of middle-class Americans cling stubbornly to the myth that no one really needs to be poor in America.

They reassure each other at dinner parties that "those people" on welfare are chiselers who are too lazy to work.

Even some members of Congress are addicted to the notion that the nation's multibillion dollar outlay on public assistance goes mainly into the pockets of people who could support themselves if they tried, but who prefer sponging off the taxpayer.

The fact is —and it IS a fact, not an attitude or an argument, but a hard fact —that we have millions of hard-core poor in this country who are dependent on public support because they cannot earn a living.

There was a time when welfare rolls contained a substantial number of potential wage-earners. But most of these were weeded out through various federal and private job programs in the 1960's. At the start of that decade, we had nearly 40 million persons —one fifth of the population —living below the official poverty line. By 1968, that figure had shrunk to 25 million, or one-eighth of the population. Since 1968, there has been very little change in the number of poor, which indicates we are getting close to the rock bottom figure of unemployables.

Further evidence of this is found in the fact that only 12 per cent of the people now classified as poor are physically able to work. And most of that 12 per cent are women, with small children. Able-bodied males comprise only about 1 per cent of the total welfare roll.

THE VAST MAJORITY of our poor are old people, children, sick or handicapped people, and unmarried women who have no job skills to market even if there were day care centers at which they could park their fatherless children.

"Tightening up" welfare rules with "work-or-else" requirements —a favorite prescription of taxpayers who resent the welfare burden —obviously isn't going to make a blind 70-year-old widow become a self-supporting wage earner.

The choice our society faces is starkly simple: Either we can put the hard-core poor on some kind of permanent government dole, or we can let them remain mired in poverty and deprivation. People who prefer the latter course are entitled in our democracy to advocate it, but they shouldn't be hypocrites about it.

MOST AMERICANS probably prefer the former solution, and the only real issue among them is how best to arrange the necessary dole. President Nixon proposes a government-guaranteed cash income of $2,400 a year for a family of four. His Democratic opponent, Sen. George S. McGovern, after backing away from an earlier plan which was an oversimplified version of what economists call the negative income tax, now espouses a plan very similar to but somewhat more liberal than Nixon's. He would give $4,000 a year, partly in cash and the rest in food stamps, to a poor family of four. Both Nixon and McGovern stress that no aid would be given to anyone who's able to work but refuses to take a job when offered.

Petaluma Teachers Complain — But Principally To Each Other

Petaluma teachers may be outstanding in the classroom, but as militants they'ra flunking the course.

The air in faculty rooms is practically blue with rage in nearly all schools, but for the most part teachers seem able to complain only to each other. Some gripes were aired at last week's session with the Petaluma Board of Education, but most teachers seemed reluctant to lay their cards on the table as board president Arthur L. Lafranchi had urged them to do.

Most have been with the district for 10 years and were out of college before protest movements became routine. While the teachers express outrage with the system set down by administrators, they seem as closely restricted by their own system and feel uncomfortable making demands.

THE TEACHERS seem tied to the old-fashioned classroom atmosphere and when they appear at board meetings it is they who take on the role of meek and mild students, hesitant to question the authority of the board.

The teachers also seem to lack unity and spokesmen. The Association of Petaluma Area Teachers is a mild-mannered group with a wide representation, while the Petaluma Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO) is quickly gaining the distinction of being the militant group. The growing spirit of competition between the two will not be helpful at a time when a unified voice is needed.

IN COTATI, where everyone seems to be outspoken, the city council seems to have organized a hassling campaign to persuade City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen to resign voluntarily.

The council avoids his advice and has all but bypassed him in dealing with city employees. It has become rare that the person who is Salfen's first choice for employment is selected by the three young councilmen. He may be wise to always see that his real first choice is somewhere down near the bottom of the list.

Salfen has continually said he's going to hang on despite his poor council relations and feels he can weather the storm, as he did last year when former Mayor John Groom was trying to oust him.

Just a few years ago anyone would have laughed heartily at the thought of tiny Cotati becoming a hotbed of political intrigue.

Mine Survivors Give Up Mining

WEISER, Idaho (UPI)—The two lone survivors of the Sunshine Silver Mine disaster that killed 91 co-workers near Kellogg, Idaho, have given up the trade and left the area.

Ron Flory said he'd miss mining, "but I don't think I could ever go underground again."

Flory and Tom Wilkinson, who survived together for several days in the gas-filled tunnels by finding an air pocket and eating the lunches left by dead comrades, enrolled in a construction school following the May 2 disaster.

Chiang Home After Case Of Pneumonia

TAIPEI (UPI) — President Chiang Kai-shek has been released from the Veterans General Hospital where he was treated for "a mild case of pneumonia," reliable sources said today.

U.S. Presidential Campaigns Mighty Tough On Canadians

WASHINGTON — Every four years 40 to 50 million Americans vow that if their man doesn't win the presidency, they will move to Canada.

This year is no different, and I have heard many of my dearest friends say, "If McGovern is elected, I'm taking the family to Canada." Or "If Nixon gets in for another four years, I'm leaving the country."

THE TROUBLE with these threats is that the Canadians take them seriously. Since they are so short on population, the idea of 40 or 50 million new immigrants makes their mouths water.

The Canadians start building new homes and schools to accommodate the disenchanted American voters. Shopping centers are constructed, contracts are given out for drive-in theaters and motels.

Night classes are given on how to treat the new arrivals. Welcome Wagons are beefed up and new factories are build to provide jobs for the millions of Democrats or Republicans who say they cannot live in the United States under a Communist Democratic or Fascist Republican regime.

To facilitate the move, Canadian customs officials are told not to open any luggage of American emigrants. Canadian Mounties are instructed to go easy on traffic tickets.

BUT WHAT inevitably happens is that after the election the 40 or 50 million people who vowed they would go to Canada change their minds and remain in the United States to stick it out under "That Man in the White House."

I saw it happen when John Kennedy beat Nixon. I saw it happen again when Lyndon Johnson beat arry Goldwater, and again in 1968 when Richard Nixon defeated Hubert Humphrey.

Canada was waiting with welcoming arms for all the people who said they couldn't live in the United States any more.

Nobody came.

THE GREATEST cause of anti-American feelings in Canada can be attributed to our presidential election-year promises which people in this country have failed to keep.

How long can the Canadians keep building up their country for people who promise to go there and then refuse to go?

At the moment Canada is in a terrible quandary. The ambassador in Washington has reported that 45 million Republicans have vowed to go to Canada if George McGovern becomes President of the United States. He has also reported that surveys indicate that 40 million Democrats will come if Nixon stays in the White House.

Canada must decide in the next few weeks whether to go through the motions of preparing for them or to ignore these vows as idle threats. Suppose this time all the people who say they're going to Canada really do? Yet suppose the Canadians spend all the money and nobody shows up?

IT SEEMS TO ME it's incumbent on every American voter not to say he's going to Canada unless he really means it. If he is sincere about it, he should notify the Canadian immigration authorities.

I know it's hard to ask people at the height of an election campaign not to make threats they have no intention of keeping about moving out of the country. All I'm suggesting is that if you want to tell someone you're leaving after the election, tell them you're going to France, where they don't care if you come or not.

Natural Childbirth Film Planned

The Childbirth Without Pain League will present the film, "The Story of Eric" and answer questions about natural childbirth techniques.

Juice, Not Wine For Astronauts

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—If astronauts aboard next year's orbiting Skylab missions want to toast to their success during the spaceflight, they'll have to do it with orange juice, not wine, the Space Center has ruled.

Dr. Malcom C. Smith, chief of food and nutrition at the Manned Spacecraft Center, said Sunday space officials had considered letting the astronauts take sherry aboard two scheduled Skylab missions next year, but later decided against it.

"There were so many things against it, that the 'juice wasn't worth the squeezing,'" he said. "We could expect criticism if such a beverage were carried."

Blanket Field Trip Policy Considered

The Lagunitas School District board last night decided that it would prefer that parents give permission but once a year for their children to attend all field trips.

Parents who drive children on trips will be required to have a California Highway Patrol sticker certifying their car is in safe operating condition. They also will be asked for a certificate showing they are insured.

The board will ask the county counsel to verify the legality of the blanket permission before adopting it as policy at its next regular meeting, according to principal Harry F. Roche. The board, he said, wants to be certain that the policy statement meets insurance requirements so that children would be covered on all field trips.

The board also added $1,000 to the $500 budgeted earlier for consultant fees, according to Roche, because of more requests than anticipated from the school staff for the use of educational consultants.

The Lagunitas School District Board Also:

AMENDMENT — Voted unanimously to oppose the Wakefield Amendment which would prohibit busing of school children.

INTERNS — Learned that the University of Massachusetts will send a supervisor to oversee 10 teaching interns now in the school district.

OPENING — The board heard a report by principal Roche on first day of school. Only 473 pupils attended out of an enrollment of 490. Roche told the board he expected higher attendance after the first few days.

Mill Valley Kidney-Defect Tests In School Approved

The Mill Valley School District last night agreed to participate in a program offering first through fifth-graders urine study for possible kidney defects.

The testing — sponsored by the Marin County Chapter of the Kidney Foundation of Northern California — will be done during October, according to a school district official.

Participation in the tests will be voluntary and parents will be asked to sign permission slips before their children are asked to bring urine samples to school.

The Mill Valley School District Board also:

STULL BILL — Adopted interim guidelines for the implementation of the Stull Bill, a state law which requires school districts to establish criteria to evaluate the performance of teachers and the ecuational progress of students.

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE — Endorsed a proposal from the county's school board association to establish a legislative committee which would monitor legislation in Sacramento of interest to local school boards.

RAILROAD — Agreed to write the Mill Valley City Council, opposing any proposed use of the railroad right-of-way near the new Mill Valley Middle School for a steam railroad or high-speed trains.

PORTABLE — Agreed to lease a portable classroom to Tamalpais High School District for adult education classes for $1,500 per year.

Trustees Will Tour School

Fairfax School District trustees will tour White Hill School grounds today at 7 p.m., then meet for a board meeting at 7:45 p.m. in the school.

The board will inspect a proposed debris disposal site on the school playground to determine how the area may be filled to raise the lot level, according to Gwyneth McGee, board secretary.

The board also will review a staff evaluation policy and hear a report on early childhood education.

No Leased Housing Rise Promised

Marin County Housing Authority staff last night assured Santa Venetia homeowners that the number of leased housing units in Santa Venetia would remain the same for the present.

Homeowners also were told at last night's joint meeting that the authority would be more selective in choosing tenants for the existing 17 leased units in Santa Venetia, according to Gail L. Guillory, Santa Venetia Improvement Association publicist.

She said a liaison committee of residents was appointed to open lines of communication between the association and the housing authority.

Homeowners have complained of poor unit maintenance and tenant selection.

Under leased housing, a landlord leases his home or apartment to the housing authority, which in turn rents it to a low-income person for a price based on income. The remaining rent is paid by federal subsidy.

The housing authority board will hear a complete staff analysis of its leased housing program at 8 p.m. Sept. 20 in civic center planning chambers.

The association decided to hold its regular meeting on the first Monday of each month at 8 p.m. in Santa Venetia Middle School rather than John MacPhail School, Mrs. Guillory said.

Autograph Session

Mill Valley author Jean Montgomery will autograph her latest historical novel for young people, "Passage to Drakes Bay," Saturday afternoon at Golden Hind Books in San Anselmo.

Moratium Ordinance Shift Due

The San Anselmo Planning Commission last night postponed adoption of one of the strictest temporary bans on building, rezoning and subdividing in Marin County after deciding the ordinance requires revision.

"Commissioners put the ordinance under microscopic inspection and asked that some portions be reworded" for clarity, according to John T. O'Rourke, assistant city engineer.

He said the ordinance, first drafted by City Atty. John G. Buresh, will be redrafted by Commissioner John H. Colteaux.

The commission will consider the redraft at 8 p.m. Sept. 18 in city hall, O'Rourke said.

The four-month measure, which could be extended for up to two years, is intended to cover all undeveloped parcels, large or small and all commercial lots whether developed or not, he said.

The ordinance will have a loophole for builders by including a variance procedure and waiving the $25 variance fee for applicants who could develop without a variance in the absence of the proposed emergency ordinance.

Although the moratoriums adopted in other cities in Marin have concentrated on larger parcels of land, the San Anselmo ban would prevent any permanent change to undeveloped land without a use permit, he said.

The San Anselmo Planning Commission also:

CEDAR STREET — Denied Anthony Moreno's application for variances necessary to construct a duplex at 250 Cedar Street after a vote produced a 3-3 deadlock, with Commissioner John H. Colteaux abstaining. Some commissioners felt the impact of the proposal would be too great, while others believed a variance in order because of property slope, according to O'Rourke.

OAKWOOD AVENUE — Denied Dennis B. Channings's application for a two-lot subdivision on Oakwood Avenue after neighbors complained of density, traffic and congestion.

SUBDIVISION — Approved B. Kirchner's application for a two-lot subdivision at 249 Los Angeles Boulevard after making a lot line adjustment.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Sept. 18.

Candidate Picks Four Cochairmen

The four are former Fourth District supervisor George Ludy of Inverness, county planning commissioner Margaret Azevedo of Tiburon, Harold Hyde of Corte Madera, chairman of James Dougan's unsuccessful June campaign in the district, and Herbert Hawkins of San Anselmo, cochairman of the Marin County Democratic Central Committee.

Azevedo and Hawkins, who do not reside within the Fourth Supervisorial District, said they were backing Peevey because "the actions of any supervisor affect the entire county." They said Peevey's campaign "has brought together traditional enemies — people who otherwise would not even speak to each other."

Agency To Consider Asking For District

The Marin County Redevelopment Agency will considerasking the board of supervisors to create an assessment district to raise money to construct a second access road into Marin City at its meeting at 8 p.m. today in the planning chambers of the civic center.

According to Executive Director Wallace K. Sheppard, several prospective developers consider a second access route from Tennessee Valley essential to the success of any future housing developments in Marin City.

Sewer Charge Plan Delayed

Tiburon Sanitary District directors last night postponed any decision on establishing a sewer service charge at least until 1973, according to Robert A. Steerling, board secretary.

He explained the directors believed they must first determine the possible impact of a proposed Tiburon redevelopment agency on the sanitary district's assessed valuation. The district has always been financed on property tax revenues, Sterling said.

He reported that the directors also met with officials of the Tiburon Ecumenical Housing project, former Hilarita housing, and the district agreed to annex the housing project and provide service.

The directors also offered to serve developer Neil Smith's planned ecological school and some 40 proposed homes at Paradise Cove, after an extensive discussion of Smith's hopes to keep the area as natural as possible.

The board also approved grading plans for a new treatment building which will bring the district's plant up to tertiary treatment standards, Sterling said.

Hamilton's Sewage Fees Are Raised

The Novato Sanitary District Board last night approved a new agreement with Hamilton Air Force Base raising the amount that the district now receives for sewer service to the base.

The base will pay $2.44 per family unit per month compared to $1.05 in the past, according to Charles A. Joseph, engineer-manager.

The Air Force now pays approximately $14,000 per year he said. The new agreement will bring between $4,000 and $5,000 more per year to the district, he said.

The Novato Sanitary District Board also:

STUDY — Approved the district staff studying the infiltration of storm water into the sewer system. They will study flow during dry and wet seasons to determine source of leakage. Then they will figure methods to correct it and how much it would cost, Joseph said.

MAINS — Approved plans for a main extension 300 feet long on the east side of Wilson Avenue north of Shields Lane for Harold Aguirre and accepted the main extension to 16 lots of Tamack Estates at the northeast corner of Vineyard Road and Sutro Avenue for Kaehler-Timmer Construction Co.

RETIREMENT — Received notice of the retirement of plant manager George Gasper on Dec. 1. He has been with the district 17 years.

School Woes Tackled In Kentfield

The board voted to hire two part-time teacher aides for two weeks to help alleviate crowding in some classes.

Meantime, administrative staff told the board, it will attempt to find ways to meet requests for longer laboratory periods in such subjects as mathematics and science.

The board said it would hold a special meeting if necessary to consider a solution.

In other matters, the board approved hiring of Richard Birkett as a temporary teacher at an annual salary of $9,220 and of Frace La Boube as a part-time secretary at $318 monthly.

Traffic Flow Will Be Altered

Projects in progress on Highway 101 which will alter traffic patterns or affect the flow of traffic tomorrow were announced today by the state Division of Highways.

Sections of freeway involved are:

1. Southbound, between Golden Gate and Richardson Bay bridges, two inside lanes closed between 10 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. for installation of pavement markers.

2. Southbound, near Sir Francis Drake Boulevard offramp in Larskpur, outside lane closed between 9:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. for slide removal.

3. Both directions, north of Highway 37, inside lanes in each direction will be closed between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. for drainage work.

HOME BURNS IN CORTE MADERA

Corte Madera firemen scramble to the roof of the Vasili Gera home, 55 Mohawk Avenue, to fight a smoking blaze which gutted the kitchen and garage and left the rest of the house badly damaged. According to firemen, the fire started at 11:20 a.m. yesterday when carburetor solvent heating on the stove burst into flame. Andy Gera, 25, was treated at Marin General Hospital for second-degree burns of the right hand and forearm. The fire was contained in 20 minutes. Damage was estimated to be $20,000. Fairfax Council Rejects Drake Boulevard Widening

The prospect of a broader, busier Sir Francis Drake Boulevard through Fairfax was summarily disposed of last night by the city council. (Another council story, page 1.)

Since Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Broadway are to be resurfaced in the next few weeks, City Engineer Benjamin C. Albritton presented two possible plans for inexpensively improving traffic flow in downtown Fairfax.

Plan Two would have killed the 12 to 14 parallel parking spaces along the Parkade side of Drake and replaced them with another traffic lane.

Mayor Albert E. Gately said, "My concern is that I think every merchant on the north side of Sir Francis Drake, including the post office, except the beauty parlor, involve short stops. I couldn't see eliminating those parking spaces for those merchants on that side of the street."

But others, businessmen and spectators alike in the audience of 30, worried more about increased traffic. Said one man, "I think we worry too much about hustling traffic out of town. I would like to see some tickets hung on them when they don't stop for pedestrians." He was applauded.

Emmett Davidson of Fairfax feared adding even one lane would set a precedent for widening the thoroughfare to West Marin even more.

The council then by a 4-1 vote adopted the plan leaving Drake at two lanes. The county is now widening Drake in Kentfield despite opposition from the Marin Community College District Board, but has met opposition for any further widening from cities farther up the valley.

Councilman E. Ross Parkerson cast the only negative vote. "We are acting a little hasty, it seems to me, but that's the way it goes," he said.

The Fairfax City Council Also:

HUMAN RIGHTS — Agreed to find two volunteers to work with the Marin County Human Rights Commission.

MALPRACTICE — Continued to its Oct. 10 meeting an applicationby a group trying to hold a street dance outside the Pavilion to raise money for malpractice insurance needed for a proposed free clinic at Fairfax Community Church, because it wanted to find out more about support for the clinic and plans for the dance.

OPEN SPACE — Supported by a 3-2 vote the priority list for open space acquisition of the proposed county open space preservation program assuming the fifth priority item, rim of the Corte Madera drainage basin, includes much of the ridgeland about Fairfax. Councilmen Lee Nelder and Robert R. Souza voted against.

TOILETS — Heard a request by Fire Chief Charles Thornton to build toilets next to the refreshment stand at the city ballpark instead of on a retaining wall near the Bank of America, but the council unanimously stuck by the site previously approved.

SHRUBBERY — Voted 3-2 to cut the cost of landscaping around city hall from $1,181 to $540 by using grass seed and cheaper stone instead of sod and river-washed flagstone for a walk. Councilmen Parkerson and Frank J. Egger opposed, apparently favoring cutting the cost further.

FIRE ENGINE — Approved plans and specifications for a new 400-gallon-capacity fire truck and decided to go to bid for the project although Thornton favored buying it from Van Pelt and Co. of Oakdale. Budgeted is $38,000 for the truck.

DEBRIS — Declared debris on a parcel at Olema and Manor roads owned by Eugene Campini a nuisance and ordered the lot cleaned up.

PEDESTRIAN WAYS — Asked city staff at Egger's urging to report back anytime on the condition and location of pedestrian rights-of-way in the city.

PLANNING CONSULTANT — Took no action on hiring a planning consultant for the proposed Canon Village and Tennis Club on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard west of Manor Road and scheduled a discussion on the suit filed by the developer, Denkmann and Co., for a closed session with the planning commission at 7 p.m. next Tuesday at the women's club.

DESIGN REVIEW — By a 4-1 vote (Nelder opposed) reminded the city design review board to strictly enforce the new sign ordinance, Egger having expressed worry about two applications for variance pending.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Monday for a public hearing on the proposed zoning ordinance.

Five Hurt When Van Overturns On Tiburon Road

Five youths were injured yesterday, three of them seriously, in an automobile accident on Tiburon Boulevard, near Greenwood Beach Road, Tiburon Police reported today.

Michael Beryle, 17, of 46 Peninsula Road, Belvedere, was also reported in satisfactory condition with a cut chin, cut ear and cut hands.

The three youths were injured at 3:30 p.m., according to police, when a van driven by Luchessa crashed into a ditch alongside Tiburon Boulevard.

Police said Luchessa was speeding in his 1964 Dodge van and tried to pass another car. He hit the brakes when he realized he couldn't make it, but the van swerved into the curb. The van flew into the air, flipped over, and landed upside down in the ditch.

Two other Tiburon youths received minor injuries, Joseph Francis Hart, 17, of 5 Audrey Court and Jon Tone Airola, no age, 145 Stuart Drive.

Coast Guard Plans Will Be Discussed

Representatives of the Coast Guard will hold an informational meeting at 7:30 p.m., Thursday at the West Marin School in Point Reyes Station to explain the status of their building project and sewage system.

The meeting, sponsored by the Marin Coast Chamber of Commerce, is aimed at reporting changes in the housing plans of the Coast Guard from a year ago and the possibility of local residents hooking up to the proposed sewage system.

Wanted: A More Spectacular Plan

The San Rafael City Council last night took its first look at plans to develop courthouse square and called for a project "more spectacular" than has been proposed by the McKeon Construction Co. of Sacramento. (Two other San Rafael City Council stories, page 1)

Though one councilman said plans should proceed as proposed, others urged use of more stylish architecture.

The firm has proposed an eight-story office building (described as "boxlike" by the mayor parallel to A Street, a two-story office structure and a multilevel parking garage.

Attorney Albert Bianchi, representing McKeon, told the council that the project was a "several million dollar risk" and requested guidance before instructing McKeon to make alterations. Noting three council votes were required to approve the project, Bianchi said he was seeking advice from the "three final arbiters of good taste."

The planning commission Thursday unanimously approved plans for the project after recommending changes in traffic, parking and building location.

The council last night rejected a commission request that the eight-story structure be moved 10 feet toward Fourth Street when concern was expressed that the project might be delayed if returned to the county for concurrence.

Under a city-county agreement, at least 21 per cent of the 79,032 square-foot parcel is to be left as open space at the Fourth Street frontage. The 10-foot shift, which had been urged by the commission to allow more open area fronting Fifth Avenue, would require endorsement by the county which owns the land.

McKeon Construction Co. of Sacramento has paid the city $10,000 for the land, and must pay a $640,000 balance by Oct. 25.

Councilman Fred E. Jensen issued unqualified support of the plans as proposed by McKeon. "It's a nice layout and I wish we could start tomorrow," he said.

Other councilmen appeared less enthusiastic, but agreed development of the site was essential to the economy of San Rafael's downtown area.

Mayor C. Paul Bettini said the eight-story structure looked like a box and should be reduced in height if possible. "I want something more spectacular... an entrance of pillars or Spanish type gates," he said. Other councilmen nodded approval of architecture more in keeping with that of Mission San Rafael Archangel on Fifth Avenue.

Councilman Lawrence F. Mulryan said he was concerned with the bulbous appearance of the eight-story building's elevator.

Councilman John A. Miskimen, noting an appeal has been filed on planning commission approval of the project's use permit, did not comment on the plan.

The planning commission, meeting today at 7:30 p.m. in city hall, is expected to rescind its request that the buildings be shifted toward Fourth Street.

The City Council Also:

HILLSIDE AVENUE — Upheld planning commission denial of the Meadowhill Corp.'s request for a four-lot subdivision on the south side of Hillside Avenue between Ross Valley Drive and Westwood Drive.

DRUG FACILITY — Upheld planning commission approval of a Marin Open House drug treatment facility at 918 C Street after John MacPhail Jr. withdrew his appeal of the commission action.

DERBY — Approved a proposal by the San Rafael Jaycees to hold an Orange Crate Derby on Oct. 1 on the east side of Gallinas Avenue adjacent to Hoffman School.

BIDS — Called for bids for the supplying of road materials for 1972-73 and set 2 p.m. Sept. 25 as the time of bid openings.

SAN PEDRO ROAD — Approved a sanitary sewer drop manhole and acquisition of additional storm drain pipes in connection with the South San Pedro Road project at a cost of $5,700.

ANNEXATION — Agreed to meet jointly with the Terra Linda Community Services District board Sept. 28 in Terra Linda for an informational hearing on annexation of te district to the city. The time and place of the meeting have not yet been set.

MARIST — Approved 4-1 addition of a recreational swimming pool to a tennis club proposed for a portion of the Marist property at 1675 Grand Avenue. Mayor Bettini opposed the pool proposal, and agreed with concerned neighbors that a pool would create undue noise in the area.

REDEVELOPMENT — Set 8 p.m. Oct. 24 in city hall for a public hearing on redevelopment.

APPOINTMENTS — Announced that the terms of parks and recreation commissioners Norma Wall, Fred E. Jensen and Robert Schoen expier Oct. 1, and called for applicants.

MEETING — Set Oct. 30 as the date of its second regular meeting next month because of a conflict with a League of California Cities conference.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Sept. 18.

Belvedere Casts An Eye At Sub-Par Building Lots

The Belvedere City Council last night formed a three-man committee to look into the ticklish problem of how to deal with more than 100 contiguous substandard building lots in the community.

By a 4-0 vote, with Councilman David E. Bordon absent, the council appointed Councilman Allan Seinau, City Atty. Robert E. McKay and Leslie Graham, chairman of the city planning commission, to look into possible revision of the city's building ban to deal with the substandard lot question.

Although the planning commission and city planning consultants have recommended that no new construction be allowed on such lots, which adjoin property owned by the same person, Steinau said last night he believed the city should "meet each case ... separately."

Property owners have protested to the council that they should not be prohibited from developing adjoining lots under their ownership because city building lot minimums were changed since the lots first were recorded. They claim financial hardship as well.

The three-man committee first will report to the planning commission, followed by city council consideration.

The Belvedere City Council also:

OPEN SPACE — Unanimously endorsed Tiburon's $1.5 million open space bond issue to be considered at a special election Oct. 3.

PARKS — Heard a recommendation from Gorge McCoy, director of the parks and recreation commission, that the city budget $3,000 a year for the next two ears to pay its share of repairing tennis courts at Del Mar School. On his suggestion, the council authorized City Mgr. William L. Cavalli to work with Pacific Gas and Electric Co. to get lights in the park.

BUMPS — Authorized extending bumps across San Rafael Avenue in order to slow traffic. As an experiment the city had placed the bumps half-way across.

FIRE WARNING — Voted to spend $2,500, with firemen transferring $500 from their budget, to buy a $3,000 Plectron alerting system for volunteer firemen. Plectron is a radio-like warning device in the firemen's homes which can tell them where to answer an alarm.

FIREPLUGS — Agreed to buy six fire hydrants at $270 each to be installed by Marin Municipal. Water District on Acacia Avenue.

SAUSALITO — Supported the City of Sausalito in its request that Wolfback Ridge be included in the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

USE PERMITS — Denied use permits and variances to build on substandard lots to Steven Warren of 310 Belvedere Avenue, Cleon Arnold of 6 Paradise Cove and Allan Hulme of 10 Madrone Avenue.

DEBRIS — Passed an ordinance regulating rubbish and water dumped in the streets.

RECORDS — Introduced an ordinance requiring the seller to furnish the buyer of all available building records and reports.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Oct. 2 at city hall.

City Attorney On Hub List

The San Anselmo City Council will consider the recruitment of a new city attorney when it meets at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

John G. Buresh, San Anselmo's city attorney for the past 22 years, announced his retirement on Aug. 22 and though no effective date has been set, "we need some policy clarification," according to Alfred C. Kaeppel, city administrator-controller.

Kaeppel said that six applications for the post had been received, adding that the council would determine an application filing deadline.

The council will consider an appeal of planning commission approval of a use permit for a child care day center at 241 Los Angeles Boulevard.

The council will also consider a request by the City of Sausalito for a resolution urging inclusion of Wolfback Ridge in the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

Training Positions Will Open Soon

The San Rafael office of the State Department of Human Resources has been allocated 20 classroom training positions under the Manpower Development and Training Act.

The slots will go to disadvantaged unemployed, with disadvantaged Vietnam veterans getting top priority, according to Robert Beebe, manpower training specialist.

A disadvantaged individual is described as one who is unemployed and seeking employment, has an annual income not exceeding $2,000 and is one of the following: a school dropout, under 22 years old, over 45 years old, handicapped, a parolee or a member of a minority group.

HERE ARE SOME "BRASS TACKS" ABOUT AUTOMOBILE BUYING

Automobile SELLING is highly competitive business. The dealer with lower overhead REALLY has a competitive advantage. He can use this advantage to give his custo ers better deals.

In Marin County overhead IS lower and you'll find BETTER deals than you can find "over the bridge" - AND the service is LOCAL!

$500,000 Suit In Death Plunge

SANTA CRUZ (UPI)—The parents of a teen-ager killed in a fall from the boardwalk roller coaster have filed a $500,000 damage suit.

The Santa Cruz Seaside Co., owner of the boardwalk, and Arrow Development Co., Inc., manufacturer of the roller coaster cars, were named as defendants in the superior court action filed Monday by Mr. and Mrs. William D. Crook, Saratoga.

The Crooks accused the companies of negligence. They said there were "inadequate restraining apparatus" to hold the passengers in the cars and the cars were "carelessly and negligently" operated and maintained.

No Conflict Of Interest Ruled

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— City Attorney Thomas M. O'Connor has cleared two architectural firms of any conflict of interest in current renovation at San Francisco International Airport.

The architects are Dreyfuss & Blackford and John Carl Warnecke. The firms are designing a segment of the airport expansion program.

Their contract became controversial when it was learned that they are also employed by Pan American Airways, which is to be one of the tenants of the rotunda.

Another College Year

Four Prisoners From Nevada Now In Marin

Four Nevada State prisoners said by prison officials to be "prime movers" in a recent punger-strike there, have been transferred to San Quentin Prison.

According to San Quentin information officer Joseph R. O'Brien, the transfer of the four was done under the terms of an interstate agreement on the handling of prisoners.

The four will be interviewed later this week by the warden's committee at San Quentin to see where they will be placed in the prison, O'Brien said.

The committee will decide whether the Nevada State transfers will be placed in maximum security or integrated with the other prisoners.

Sheriff Shorn Of Long Locks

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — San Mateo County Sheriff Earl B. Whitmore has been forced to go back on a pledge that he wouldn't cut his hair until all nine inmates who escaped from the county jail last March were back in custody.

Whitmore's shoulder-length gray locks were snipped after he was handcuffed to a chair by members of the International Footprinters, a county association of businessmen and police.

"My wife is upset because she doesn't know what to do with the dress she bought me for Christmas," Whitmore joked yesterday.

Olympians Cast Eyes Toward 1976 Games In Montreal

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Editor

MUNICH (UPI)—The call went out, in the clear cool night air of Bavaria, for the youth of the world to "meet again in Montreal four years hence, in cheerfulness and concord" for the 1976 Olympic Games.

The moment was more poignant than ever before, because the 85,000 people in the Olympic Stadium here were all too well aware that the 1972 Olympics being formally closed will go down in history as the one in which gunfire destroyed "concord."

And there had to be wonder about what four years from now will bring in Montreal when once again the athletic youth of the world tries to meet for 15 peaceful days of competition in sport and game.

The Montreal organizers, whc have not completed their final preparations for the physical facilities or the program, have promised to "return the games to the athletes," an indication that the '76 games will be on a considerably less lavish scale than the $620 million enterprise staged by West Germany here.

In addition, there is an important congress of the International Olympic Committee scheduled in Varna, Bulgaria, in August 1973 at which many changes in the program will be proposed, among them the elimination of all team sports.

And, too, the Olympic movement now is coming out of the "Brundage era," which will end officially Sept. 30 when Avery Brundage, the 84-year-old Chicago millionaire who has been president of the I.O.C. for the past 20 years, steps into retirement and is replaced by Lord Michael Kallanin, a bluff, hearty Irishman with ideas different in many respects from Brundage.

So the shape of things to come in the Olympics is not clear today as the 12,000 athletes and officials who came here for the games, or at least the thousands still here on closing day, scattered to their homes in all parts of the world.

But if two notes came through clear and loud in the 55-minute-long closing ceremony Monday night in Olympic Stadium it was the determination of Olympic officials that their movement shall not die as a result of the violence here, and the exuberance of the youths assembled.

This was, supposed to be a toned-down closing ceremony, out of deference to the memory of the 11 Israeli team members who came here in peace and died on Sept. 5 when Arab guerrillas invaded the Olympic Village.

And the German organizing committee eliminated several items from the planned agenda for the windup of what they had originally billed as "the happy games." Bavarian dances and other festive music were eliminated.

But as the ceremony was carried off, it was hard to tell that any gaiety had been eliminated. The mood was one of youth's natural gaiety and optimism breaking out of the gloomy events of the past week.

There was no playing of "Auld Lang Syne," and there was no singing of "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow" for Brundage.

Only in few moments Brundage with tears in his eyes said "Auf Wiedersehen" to the people of Munich and told them, "We have celebrated these days of radiant happinesss with one another and have borne the difficult hours of terrible sorrow together with you all."

But when the time came to leve the stadium, as the band played its liveliest tune of the nght, a jazzed-up version that was played at the medals ceremonies during the games, the natural spirits of young people broke forth.

Going out, they flung their arms about each other, the athletes from some 120 nations, and loped around the track. As the large electric scoreboard at one end of the stadium flashed the five-ringed Olympic emblem and the words "Montreal 1976," groups of the athletes began waving at the crowd. The mood of excitement grew.

Then groups of athletes broke ranks and took one last buoyant run around the red track. Among the most exuberant, were those of Britain and Australia, Kenya, Mexico and Argentina.

If the Olympic spirit is to climb back from the tragic events here, the impetus could come from that precious spirit of youth.

Fingers Falls; A's Drop Two

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—The A's' number was 15 going in and 15 coming out as Oakland dropped a tough pair of battles with Minnesota while Chicago downed Kansas City.

It closed the White Sox to within two games of Oakland just when the A's had seemed on the brink of blowing the race wide open.

It will be Jim Hunter going for win No. 20 tonight against Ray Corbin of Minnesota.

Monday's twin bill was taken by the Twins 2-1 and 3-2 and in each case it was a case of Rich Reese coming off the bench just in time to make life miserable for Rollie Fingers, who had come out of the bullpen.

Sal Bando unloaded a 400-foot homer to tie the count with two outs in the ninth but then Fingers took the loss when he gave up a single to Danny Thompson and a double to Reese, who had been brought in to replace Harmon Killebrew for defensive purposes.

In the nightcap, it was 2-2 in the ninth with Fingers again on the hill when Minnesota loaded the bases. Darold Knowles came in just in time to walk Reese, but it gave the second loss of the evening to Fingers.

Wayne Granger got the win in the opener even though he gave up the Bando blast. Bert Blyleven went the route for the victory in the nightcap.

Hart 'Showcased;' Giants Impressed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The wise guys said that Jim Ray Hart was brought up from Phoenix this fall to be "showcased" for a trade, maybe to an American League.

But the veteran belter has put on such a good show that he is likely to be back on the Giants' roster next spring.

He has hit three homers and, more importantly, showed none of the defensive lapses that have hurt him throughout his career.

"We've had many offers for Jim Ray," Manager Charlie Fox said Monday, "but the way he has played since coming back the offers will have to get better. In fact, we may not accept any of them—Jimmy looks that good to us right now."

Hart and the Giants open a two-game series in Candlestick Park tonight against Los Angeles with Tommy John (115) scheduled to go against the guy who has emerged as the ace of the Giants' staff this year, Ron Bryant (11-6).

Cablegrams Render Support For DeMont

The 20th Olympiad is over, thank goodness, but the talk about Terra Linda's Rick DeMont being stripped of his gold medal in the 400-meter freestyle event goes on.

Dr. Robert P. Knight Jr., a San Francisco psychiatrist, whipped off four cablegrams to Olympic officials in Munich shortly after the decision was made to take away Rick's medal, because traces of a drug, ephedrine, was found in his urine specimin taken after the race.

The calbegrams, which gave the professional opinion that the officials' swimming decision was all wet, were sent to Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee; Clifford Buck, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee; Dr. Winston Riehl, U.S. Olympic team physician, and Prince Alexandre de Merode, chairman of the Olympic committee on drugs.

Said the message:

"DATA APPEARING in article in Journal American Medical Association, Aug. 28, 1972, entitled, "Drugs and the Athlete," by Dr. Donald Cooper, Oklahoma State University Hospital, Stillwater, Oklahoma, stated clearly that no medical-scientific evidence exists which proves that any drug, including ephedrine, improves on the performance of any athlete. This article must be read before any effort is made to take away the gold medal from swimmer Ricf DeMont."

Dr. Knight sent a copy of the Cooper article to the I-J and said he felt there were two main points in the article. First, accoridng to Knight, no drug taken by an athlete has ever been proved, by medical-scientific research, to improve an athlete's performance in competition. His second point to be stressed was that frequently only the medal winners are subjected to the urinary tests for drugs and the losers rarely tested. Yet, on the whole, says Knight, far more losers will reveal the residuals of some sort of drug in their urine.

KNIGHT SAID it was the responsibility of someone on the Olympic Committee to know what drugs were in the medicine Rick was taking, since he listed the remedy, Marax, on proper forms before ever competing in the Olympics.

According to the 1972 edition of the "Physician's Desk Reference," a publication sent to all physicians in the U.S. free, Marax contains atarax, ephedrine and theophylline. Knight quotes this reference: "Ephedrine is of significant benefit in symptomatic relief ... in bronchial asthma. Theophylline is a particularly useful drug in the treatment of bronchial asthma. Atarax modifies the central (nervous) stimulatory action of ephedrine preventing excessive excitation in patients on Marax."

In other words, ephedrine alone can be called an "upper" but when it is included in the medication, Marax, it isn't.

KNIGHT RIPPED THE Olympic Committee and said it was a shame that DeMont had to take the punishment for its mistake. Said Knight: "None of the athletes, at least from the U.S., may be professional, but the Olympic Committee itself has to be professional, especially when it comes to drugs, medication, health, illness, and other such matters which belong to the province of the medical doctors (or at least pharmacologists).

"In other words, the blame for this incident is based on the ignorance and incompetence of the Olympic Committee itself (persons claiming to be professionals), not on Rick DeMont who, as Dr. Cooper stated at the end of his article, 'engaged in hard work, self-discipline, practice and sacrifice ...' "

But it's going to take more than a group of old men sitting around a table to stop this 16-year-old swimmer. If there is an Olympics in 1976, Rick will be back.

Healthy 49ers Set To Face San Diego

Combined AP & UPI

REDWOOD CITY — All San Francisco 49ers regulars should be healthy and ready for their National Football League opener against San Diego Sunday in Candlestick Park, Coach Dick Nolan says.

The Chargers edged the 49ers last month in an exhibition game in which cornerback Jimmy Johnson suffered a shoulder separation. Johnson and fullback Ken Willard, who also has been on the injury list, should be ready Sunday, Nolan said Monday.

Defensive end Cedrick Hardman, who had knee surgery during the off-season, has played in two exhibition games and may start Sunday, Nolan indicated. But running back Doug Cunningham and safety Mike Simpson, who were reserves last season, will remain on the injury list at least through Sunday, he added.

Marin, Southern Sonoma In High School Grid Stampede

High school football, which stepped gingerly into the spotlight last weekend with a non-league game in Marin County and a jamboree in Sonoma, turns into a stampede this weekend.

Ten games will be played by high school teams from Marin and southern Sonoma Friday and Saturday, including two inter-county clashes. The junior college season also will open.

Marin Catholic High School's game with Rancho Cotate will be played Friday at 8 p.m. at the Rohnert Park school, instead of Saturday as originally scheduled.

The Wildcats, coming off an impressive 25-0 victory over St. Elizabeth of Oakland in the only game played in Marin last week, will face a team which went unbeaten last year. Rancho's victory was one of only two blemishes on the 'Cats' 1971 record.

Petaluma will play Sir Francis Drake in a Saturday twilight game at 5:30 p.m. at College of Marin in Kentfield in the other inter-county clash. The game was moved up from its original 5:45 starting time, Drake athletic director Carl (Red) Brown announced today.

The year's first night game will find Terra Linda playing host to Concord at San Rafael High Friday at 8 o'clock. The same field will be busy Saturday night as San Rafael hosts Lincoln of San Francisco, also at 8.

The only other games in the area will be held Saturday afternoon, when Riordan of San Francisco visits Novato at 1 and Cloverdale treks to Tomales at 2.

On Friday, San Marin High will journey to Healdsburg and Redwood will travel to Antioch, both at 8 p.m. Saturday, Tamalpais will play Bishop O'Dowd in Oakland at 1 p.m., and St. Vincent of Petaluma will confront De La Salle in Concord at 1:30.

College of Marin opens its non-league season with a jaunt to Merced College at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Bill Lee did a couple of things he wasn't supposed to do last night, to the delight of the Boston Red Sox, but he also didn't do something he was supposed to do, to their chagrin.

What Lee did was pitch 5⅔ innings, about double his normal work load as a short reliever, allowing just three hits and one run, after bailing out starter Sonny Siebert.

He also turned slugger, hitting a home run over the left field fence in the fifth inning to tie the game at 5-5. It was his first hit of the year.

Baltimore, meanwhile, crept within half a game of the top as Boog Powell hit a three-run homer to defeat Milwaukee, 3-2, and give Mike Cuellar his 16th victory.

NBA Hawks Get Erving Court Nod

NEW YORK (UPI)—An Atlanta superior court judge today cleared the way for basketball superstar Julius Erving to join the Atlanta Hawks of the National Basketball Association.

Judge G. Ernest Tidwell of Central Superior Court of Fulton County, state of Georgia, declared that a contract Erving had signed with the Hawks on April 10, 1972, was "now in full force and effect."

Erving, who starred last season with the Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association, has filed suit against the Squires, claiming that his multi-year contract with them was fraudulent. The 6-foot-6 former Massachusetts star then signed a contract with the Hawks.

Raider Quarterback Starter In Question

Neither quarterback looked sharp last Saturday night as the Raiders fell 16-10 on a wet field at Dallas, but coach John Madden hinted that the 26-year-old Stabler might be at the controls when the regular season opens Sunday at Pittsburgh.

"Probably the way we started tonight is the way we're leaning," Madden said of his starting lineup against the Cowboys.

Later he admitted there would be two changes, but that probably referred to cornerback Willie Brown and Jim Otto, two injured stars.

Otto's return is amazing since he was first announced out for six to eight weeks when he hurt his knee two weeks ago against Buffalo. But now he is apparently ready to start the season to keep alive his 168-game streak.

Brown missed the Dallas game because of wisdom teeth problems, but will be back. Young subs Dave Dalby and Alonzo Thomas looked great while filling in for Otto and Brown as the Raiders continue to show their great depth.

The Raiders Monday swapped veteran wide receiver Gloster Richardson to Cleveland for a 1974 draft pick. Richardson, acquired earlier this year from Dallas, previously played four seasons with Kansas City.

The Hart Story Of Ups And Downs

Jim Ray Hart once again is trying to turn the clock back. He will be 31 next month. And that is an advanced age for a baseball player to pick up the pieces of a broken major league career.

Hart no longer is the happy-go-lucky kid he was in 1963 when he made his major league debut in Candlestick Park July 7. That was a Sunday and a record crowd of 42,787 jammed Candlestick to watch a doubleheader between the Giants and Cardinals.

HART, IN HIS debut, got two singles in the opener, one a 13th inning hit that tied the score 3-3 and kept the Giants alive for a 15th inning victory.

In his first time at bat in the nightcap, Hart's left shoulder was fractured by one of Bob Gibson's fast balls. Hart didn't appear in the lineup again until the final week of the season and he was hit in the head by a fast ball that sailed away from Curt Simmons in St. Louis.

So Hart's first season in the majors started with a broken shoulder and ended with a king sized headache.

IN 1964 HART hit 31 homers. Everyone predicted a great career for him. By the end of the 1968 season he had a total of 139 homers. In the first week of the 1969 season at San Diego he jammed his right shoulder in a pickoff play at first base. He hit only three homers in 1969.

Hart no longer could swing a bat as he once did. Even after a belated operation in 1970, Hart's home run swing was curtailed. And his throws from third base were erratic.

In 1970-71, Hart led a yo-yo, up-and-down life between Phoenix and San Francisco. He was dispatched to Phoenix this year before the Giants broke spring training camp. Then, he was recalled on May 12 but in nine games hit only .190, including one homer. And again he was sent back to Phoenix May 24. Nobody expected to see Hart in the majors again.

BUT THIS YEAR at Phoenix Hart hit .324, including 18 homers, 30 doubles, seven triples and 75 RBIs. So on Sept. 4 the Giants summoned him to the big time once again. There was lots of roster room because the 25-player limit now had been raised to 40 as it always is during the final month of a major league season.

On Sept. 5 in San Diego Hart hit a ninth inning homer that tied the score 3-3 and the Giants went on to beat the Padres 4-3 in 11 innings. The next night Hart hit a three-run first inning homer that started the Giants to a 6-0 win behind six-hit shutout pitching by Ron Bryant. It was Hart's 154th major league homer.

"I never gave up," said Hart. "My shoulder doesn't hurt any more."

FOR JIM RAY Hart that was a long speech. In all of his previous years with the Giants, Hart never said more than a couple dozen words. And he never said a harsh word about anyone. Even when Horace Stoneham banished him to Phoenix from the 1971 Spring training camp of the Giants after Hart reported out of shape, Hart wasn't angry although saddened.

When asked whether he intended to play himself into shape as Stoneham ordered, Hart said: "I'd better."

ASIDE FROM HIS injuries, Hart didn't take care of himself like an athlete should during the years he was belting homers. But the reports out of Phoenix this year gave Hart good conduct marks. One major league scout reported that Hart admonished a couple of young Phoenix teammates for curfew violations.

"Don't try to do it the way I did," Hart was reported to have told them.

Carlton's Toughest Audience: Himself

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Steve Carlton's toughest audience is himself.

The superb left-hander, who seems to be almost singlehandedly keeping the Philadelphia Phillies from sinking into the International League, came up with what most observers thought was another fine performance Monday night.

But a flyball home-run and a lack of support at critical times proved Carlton's undoing as the Phils suffered a 4-2 loss to the New York Mets. The&loss left Carlton with a 23-9 record and three of those losses have been at the hands of the Mets. This loss just about ruined any remote chance Carlton had of reaching the 30 figure.

Carlton, who leads the league in starts, victories, shutouts, complete games, innings pitched and strikeouts, wasn't about to talk about the fact that the Phillies left six men on base in the first three innings when they had a chance to break the game open.

Instead, he discussed what he felt were his shortcomings. "The bases on balls beat me," he said, "I had five walks and more 3-2 counts than I've had all years. The fast ball kept sliding over the plate." But Manager Paul Owens was a more sympathetic viewer. "He didn't pitch that poorly," he said. "The guy is only human and you have to give the Met batters some credit. But I would settle for that kind of a game from my pitchers anytime."

He added, "We had Jerry Koosman on the ropes in the first couple of innings. With one hit at the right time, we would have won the game 5-4 or 6-4 and everybody would have been happy."

Carlton was beaten by Duffy Dyer's homer that snapped a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning. Duffy also tripled in an insurance run in the eighth inning.

Koosman, now 9-11, went seven innings to get the win and Tug McGraw went the final two innings for his 23rd save.

Philadelphia got both of its runs in the first inning on Larry Bowa's single, a walk, Greg Luzinski's run-scoring double and Roger Freed's sacrifice fly. But the Phils couldn't take advantage of their other opportunities and were blanked the rest of the way.

In the only other games in the National League, Houston edged Los Angeles 4-3 and Montreal blanked St. Louis 4-0.

Many experts think Cesar Cedeno is the best young player in baseball and he showed why as the Astros edged the Dodgers. Cedeno not only singled in a run, he saved the game with his glove. With two out and two on in the ninth, Willie Davis hit a shot up the alley that seemed likely to win the game for the Dodgers 5-4. But Cedeno snared the drive with a diving catch to end the game and preserve the Astro triumph.

Mike Jorgensen drove in three runs with a double and his 12th homer and Balor Moore pitched his second straight shutout as Montreal blanked St. Louis. Moore allowed just six hits as the Expos pulled into a fourth place tie in the Eastern Division with the Cardinals.

Wooden Discusses Cage Row

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — John Wooden, ever the diplomat, refuses to be drawn into the great Olympic basketball controversy but the man who has coached UCLA to six straight National Collegiate Athletic Association titles says "it would be better if we accept our defeat."

Commenting Monday on Russia's much-discussed 51-50 victory over the Unites States in Saturday night's Olympic finals, Wooden said:

"We've got to face that we lost. It doesn't do us any good to mourn what has happened. In the long run, people aren't interested in the particulars. They're only interested in the final result.

"I was terribly disappointed we failed to win. I don't want to go into the reasons for it, though. I don't think it's in good taste to make excuses."

Wooden, whose Bruins will be shooting for their ninth national championship in 10 years this winter, was "surprised" at America's first defeat ever in Olympic basketball competition.

"I didn't think it would happen this year," he remarked. "In fact, I was more surprised at Russia beating us (the U.S.) in basketball than us (UCLA) beating Nebraska in football."

Despite the defeat, the UCLA coach of 24 seasons said America remained No. 1 in the world in basketball.

"I don't think they've (the other countries) come close to matching us yet," Wooden declared. "They're closing the gap but we're still out in front.

"Normally, the teams we sent to the Olympics are stronger than the other teams. I definitely believed we were stronger this year, too. But sometimes you can have an off game. Obviously, we had an off game against Russia."

AT OLYMPICS

A Gold Medal Winner's Distress

By MILTON RICHMAN

MUNICH (UPI) — The last day matched the general mood in the Olympic Village. Gray, dismal and overcast. There wasn't much laughter to be heard.

In the recreation area, where the athletes from all the different countries gathered during their off-time each day to play chess, ping pong or miniature golf, there was no one in sight.

Many didn't even bother waiting for the early evening closing ceremony in the Olympic Stadium which traditionally winds up the games. They had packed their belongings and hurried home.

If you had to put your finger on the prevailing feeling among those who lingered for those last few hours, it would have to be one of fruitlessness and disillusionment, a sense of not having achieved what they had really come here for.

Randy Williams, the 19-year-old U.S. gold medalist in the long jump, didn't have to think long when someone wanted to know how he felt about these Olympics now that they were coming to a close.

"Disappointed," replied the Fresno, Calif., youngster.

Disastrous for a 19-year-old kid who had come over here and won himself a gold medal?

"We put so much emphasis on gold," he said. "Winning gold medals is considered more important than winning friendship and peace. You've seen that flame on top of the stadium, haven't you? It's supposed to symbolize peace and friendship, isn't it? Those doves they turned loose and those balloons they sent up are symbolic of the same thing. Peace and friendship. Still there was Rhodesia and then the Israelis."

The politics here also distressed Williams, a University of Southern California student.

"When the Olympics no longer have politics in them, they'll be good, but I don't think that'll ever happen," Williams said.

"The old fogeys at the head of this thing run it like some kind of military institution. They think in terms of 1936 instead of 1972. The average athlete is 24. The guys running things are 65. How can they identify with the problems of somebody 25?"

Yes, Williams said, he was talking about the U.S. Olympic committee members.

"They're too old," said the young long jumper. "Certainly there's a generation gap. How could there help but be?" You take these Olympic committee guys. They stay at some of the finest hotels in Munich. They pay $5 a day for a room. Someone's picking up the tab. Who's doing it? Regardless, when a kid has a problem and wants to call home, these guys tell him they can't afford the money for such calls."

In common with practically all other U.S. athletes. Williams has little praise for the work of officials here at the Olympics, particularly those who were assigned to events in which the U.S. was involved.

"The referees and judges were a farce,'(he said.

Williams merely is echoing most of the other athletes. They not only say the officiating was bad, but also say they came here essentially to engage in sports and games and found themselves engaged in situations they never dreamed. Situations like bloody Tuesday when Arabs terrozied the Olympic Village and ultimately killed 11 Israelis.

Unhappy Times For 2 Veterans

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Woodeshick and Jim Nance, both 10-year veterans, were dropped by the Philadelphia Eagles Monday as National Football League clubs pared their rosters to the regular season limit of 40 players.

BITTER

"I'm extremely bitter, there's no avoiding it," Woodeshick said Monday after learning the news. "I love this ball club and the people in Philadelphia. Nobody deserves a winner more than they do."

Woodeshick, in his prime one of the finest power fullbacks in the NFL, has been plagued by knee injuries in recent years. But he claims the only thing bothering his leg this year is a cyst.

CASTOFFS

Also released by the Eagles were veteran tight end Don Brumm and rookie linebacker Will Foster.

Mackey, meanwhile, was seething because he hadn't been waived. Once the most feared tight end in football, Mackey has been dropped to second string behind Tom Mitchell and is looking to play elsewhere. The Colts want him to remain as a backup man.

REPORTS

Another Thomas — Duane — was also in the news. The controversial running back, traded from Dallas to San Diego earlier this year, talked with Charger Coach Harland Svare Monday but left camp again for the umpteenth time. He has yet to put on a San Diego uniform.

"I'd have to say now he isn't going to play," Svare said. "I don't know what to think. I can't believe he doesn't want to play. He has never told me he doesn't. With him it's difficult to tell.

IRREVOCABLE

Most clubs were expected to announce their final four cuts, which must be made by 4 p.m. EDT and are irrevocable, today. Waivers cannot be recalled on any of the final four cuts this week.

In moves announced Monday, Atlanta dropped quarterback Leo Hart, punter Billy Lotheridge, tackle Steve Okoniewski and running back Bill Holland and Denver sent tight end John Mosier to Baltimore, apparently to take Mackey's slot on the Colts' roster.

a doubleheader from Oakland, 2-1 in 10 innings and 3-2, and Chicago edged Kansas City, 2-1.

Consecutive home runs by Bobby Murcer and Felipe Alou started a three-run fourth inning which carried New York past Detroit.

Time was called in the top of the sixth inning with a 3-1 count on leadoff batter Norm Cash and the game was called one hour and 43 minutes later.

Steve Kline won his 16th game in 22 decisions with a four-hitter, giving up three of those hits in the first inning.

Dick Allen became the single most productive season home run hitter in White Sox history by hammering his 34th in the first inning to lead Chicago over Kansas City.

"They say he's human but I'm not convinced because I got him out once," losing pitcher Paul Splittorff said afterwards.

Giants' Baseball Attendance

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In 1957 the New York Giants drew only 653,923 fans to the Polo Grounds and owner Horace Stoneham decided to move his baseball team here.

The magic number — at the turnstiles —for this year's Giants is 44,936. They need that many paying customers for the remaining seven home games to match the 1957 season total.

In 1958, they played at tiny Seals Stadium but still drew 1,272,625 fans.

"That 1957 team wasn't a good one," Giants great Willie Mays recalled this spring before being traded to the New York Mets. "We were a lot better in 1958, and I think we would have done pretty good if we'd stayed in New York.

"But no one asked me what I thought," he added.

In their first years here, the Giants were assured of great crowds whenever the Los Angeles Dodgers came to town. A crowd of 13,584 for Sunday's doubleheader with Cincinnati pushed Giants' 1972 attendance to 608,987 for 62 home dates. The 1957 New York total was for 68 dates and was the lowest home attendance in the league.

This year the Giants may again be last in the National League in attendance. It's a close fight with the San Diego Padres, the only team under them in the division standings.

NEW YORK — Dewitt Weaver made the biggest jump in the money standings of the Professional Golf Association this week after scoring a playoff victory over Chuck Courtney Sunday in the Southern Open and picking up a first place check for $20,000.

Weaver, who moved up from 65th to 37th in the standings with $51,655, still trails runaway money leader Jack Nicklaus. Nicklaus has earned $280,482 while his nearest rival, Lee Trevino, has $168,855.

FISH AND GAME

Trout Fishing Comes To Life

By AL GIDDINGS

Last week after our most successful sage grouse hunt, I ended the column with our arrival at Webber Lake near Truckee, in Nevada County. We had planned, if we were successful on the grouse hunt, to spend a day trout fishing at Meadow Lake about eight miles above Webber.

Usually about Sept. 1, the weather in this area really cools which in turn cools the surrounding lake waters. The trout then seem to come to life and some prize fish are taken. At Webber Lake things were still slow, although a state Fish and Game netting crew had recently taken a small net sample of the fish of the lake; the catches were inspiring.

A GOOD NUMBER of brook trout weighing a pound or so were netted, and one brown that weighed about eight pounds created lots of excitement for the anglers there, especially when this monster was held aloft for all to see, then released.

At Meadow Lake, the temperatures were down, so Mary, my wife, and I launched a cartop boat along the shoreline, rowed out a block or so, and dropped anchor. We used fly rods with two-pound test monofiliment, a size eight bait hook, and either roe or nightcrawlers for bait. We used the strip-cast method without a sinker, and then waited for a pickup. It was, perhaps, 10 minutes before I nailed into a good rainbow.

Mary caught the largest fish a few minutes later using boroxed steelhead roe, saved from last February, which was refrigerated but not frozen all these past months. Her fish was approximately 15 inches long. That's the way it went. We ended up with 13 rainbows that weighed close to 10 pounds. They were all red-meated, prime fish.

I TALKED TO Enos Foster of Woodacre who had spent the same weekend up at Medicine Lake in Siskiyou County. He and his gang all had a great time also catching trout. He did mention that the old general merchandise store, so long a part of the atmosphere at Medicine Lake, had burned down some time back. Now you must take all the gear and supplies needed for your campout. Too bad — the old buildings, and the prices, were something to see! But my point is that trout fishing in the high altitudes is beginning to get good.

Lots of people shiver and shake when I say we camped out. It's really not that bad, but the right gear is essential. Last year, Mary and I camped out for 22 days, and we can't wait for vacation time to roll around this year. The most difficult thing we encountered last year was a big wind. One time, the wind blew the tent down, another time it ripped the tent in one corner. A second problem was keeping the eggs, olive oil, water and other things from freezing when the temperatures got as low as nine degrees. We solved this problem by keeping freezables in the ice box, of all places.

OUR TENT IS 10 by 12 feet and holds a double sleeping bag, two chairs, a table, a coleman lantern and a heater, without being cramped. We also keep some of the food boxed and under the table. A suitcase with the needed changes of clothing also is an essential. We did not keep the heater on at night, but we did light it each morning before getting up. On the colder nights, we sometimes ended up with a heavy tarp entirely over the bed, and us too. Some of the times we cooked in the tent. Winter underwear is a must, and warm heavy clothes, plus rain gear is essential, also. If you are hunting, soft leather gloves help to keep your hands warm when carrying that ice cold rifle or shotgun. But camping out puts you right on the fishing or hunting spot all the time.

For the good of everyone, it's best about every five days to leave the camp and drive to the nearest motel, just for baths, and a general cleanup. It does something for you. One group which came along and camped next to us while we were away during a snow storm, couldn't stand that quiet, spooky looking tent and camp setup any longer, so someone zipped the tent open, thinking perhaps, we were in there. Of course we knew they had done this by their tracks in the snow.

BY ALL MEANS, use your venison, ducks, fish or whatever while camping out. The meals from your fresh fish and game have a flavor above and beyond that when these morsels are taken home and frozen — and then sometimes forgotten to be thawed six months later when the flavor is gone. You can't beat a well prepared meal in the mountains after an all day hunt. Ask anyone who knows.

Team Canada, Soviet Union Set 2nd Series

MONTREAL (UPI)—Canada and the Soviet Union have agreed to play a second exhibition hockey series in late 1973, the Montreal Star reported Monday.

The two nations are now midway through an eight-game series. The Russians hold a 2-1-1 lead after the Canadian half of the series.

The Montreal Star said it had been given word of the 1973 series by a member of the Russian party who sat in on a meeting with Al Eagleson, president of the National Hockey League Players' Association.

Browns Cut Kellerman, 4 Others

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Ernie Kellermann, 28, a veteran defensive back, was one of five players released Tuesday by the Cleveland Browns to trim the roster to the regular season limit of 40.

Kellerman had been with the Browns for seven years after being cut in 1965 by the Dallas Cowboys, one of the few native Clevelanders to make the Browns.

"I'm told that Cincinnati is looking for defensive backs and that Paul Brown might be interested in me," said Kellerman.

The others cut were wide receiver Charley Brinkman, tight end Clark Hoss, offensive tackle Lynn Larson and defensive tackle Dan Parks.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Berkeley Is Scene For Passing Duel

BERKELEY (UPI) — There are likely to be plenty of passes Saturday down on the field when Washington State comes to call on California—and there might be a few passes thrown in the press box, too.

Coach Mike White said Monday the Bears would try to improve their pass completion record against the Cougars. Soph Steve Bartkowski completed 24 of 49 attempts last Saturday for 261 yards against Colorado although the Bears lost 20-10 to the high-rated Buffs.

Meanwhile, it was announced that Cal has listed its restriction against women in the press box for its home games this year.

Oregon

"Physically we came out of the Missouri game solid," said head coach Dick Enright. "We had the normal amount of bumps and bruises that you would get playing against a team running from the Wishbone."

Oregon State

CORVALLIS (UPI) —Oregon State Coach Dee Andros expressed disgust at his team's performance after viewing game films of the San Diego State clash last Friday night.

"We got outhit, outpassed, outrushed, out ball controlled and out everythinged Friday night," he said.

Monday's drill for the Beavers, who will face second-ranked USC, focused mainly on conditioning and agility drills for both the offense and defense. During the remainder of the practice the OSU offense worked out against a simulated USC defense and the defense was shown some of the USC offensive plays and sets.

Senior cornerback Bruce Frey was lost for the season. He will undergo knee surgery to correct an injury he received in the San Diego State game. Wayne Lightner will move into his position.

Washington

SEATTLE (UPI) —Washington Coach Jim Owens has made five changes in the starting offensive unit in an effort to get the Husky attack moving after Washington's 13-6 lackluster victory over Pacific.

Ryun To Run In London Track Meet

LONDON (UPI) — Hard luck Jim Ryun will be among a group of U.S. Olympians competing in the Coca Cola international track and field meet at Crystal Palace, London, Sept 15, the organizers confirmed Tuesday.

U.S. track teammate Dave Wottle, the Olympic 800 meter champion, is in the field along with New Zealanders Roth Dixon, who won a bronze in the Munich 1500 meters, and Tony Polehill.

American Ralph Mann and Britain's David Hemery, silver and bronze medallists, clash in the 400 meter hurdles while in the 400 meter flat world record holder Lee Evans of the U.S. gets the chance to show what he might have done at Munich.

Evans was selected to run in the Olympic 400 meter relay but the U.S. pulled out of that event when two of its top hopefuls were suspended.

Petaluma Gridders Must Fight Off Inexperience

By PAUL DWORIN

Petaluma High School should be much improved this year, but it may have a difficult time bettering last year's 3-6 mark as every team in the North Bay League has a shot at the championship.

After last Tuesday's scrimmage with Cardinal Newman High School of Santa Rosa, Trojan coach Tony Kehl commented, "We saw some good things and we were pleased with the overall offense. Right now we're ahead of where we were offensively last season, but behind on defense. It's still too hard to tell exactly how good we're going to be."

One of the biggest problems confronting Kehl, and one that will most likely be the key to the Trojans' success this season, is inexperience. Petaluma will have only two returning starters from last year's squad on defense — Dennis Govan on the line and Vic Chadwick in the backfield.

On offense the situation is a little better, but not much, with linemen Bob Yamasaki, receivers Tom Mercado and Rick Mossi, and running back Mike Maselli the only returning starters.

Several newcomers to the varsity squad are expected to shore up the defense and strengthen the offense. Dan Solis and John Alejos both defensive backs, have been very impressive during pre-season practices, as has Tom Martin, a senior transfer from Terra Linda who plays defensive center and offensive end.

On offense Kehl has been particularly pleased with the work of Don White, a fullback, running back Steve Hernandez and quarterback Tim Wallmark, who is now number one.

So far the Trojans have been having more success passing than running. "We're striving for a more balanced offense, and it looks like we're going to attain it, but it's too early to tell," Kehl stated.

Petaluma's first game will be against Drake of San Anselmo, which has traditionally been a tough opponent for the Trojans.

Although the team isn't where Kehl wanted it to be, he feels that it will be ready for Drake. That game will be Saturday, 5:45 p.m., on the College of Marin Field.

"We're in shape now to iron things out and polish our offensive and defensive games to the point where we can be ready for Drake. We're going to approach the game with the attitude that Drake will be strong," he concluded.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Happy 80th birthday to Alfred A. Knopf — the publisher who gave the world some of its finest books. Your company's insignia — the Russian wolfhound — is known the world over and has come to mean good books in authorship and beauty of craftsmanship!

You were born Sept. 12, 1892, to Jewish parents in New York City. Your father, an advertising man, remarried after your mother died when you were four.

Your ambition was to enter law, but a Columbia University professor introduced you to literature and a school assignment got you an interview with British writer John Galsworthy. So you got a job as a clerk in a publishing firm, where you learned the business.

At 23 you launched your own publishing house, Alfred A. Knopf, Inc., from a single room on West 42nd Street, based on a mere $5,000 in capital. But that started it! On your Golden Anniversary of publishing in 1965 you had published 5,000 titles. Your books and authors had won 18 Pulitzer Prizes and six National Book Awards. Whether you are gardening at your home in Purchase, N.Y. today, or relaxing in your Manhattan apartment, we wish you: "Happy Birthday, Mr. Publisher!"

FAMOUS BIRTHDAYS TODAY

Jesse Owens (1913-), Olympic Games track star.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Knowing Your Opponent May Determine Your Line Of Play

From time to time when you play bridge you should steal a look at your opponents. The idea is not just to see that they are still there, alive and well, but to make a mental note of who tyey are. In a tournament, knowing your opponent may determine your line of play. Today's hand, played in the recent national tournament in Denver, explains this odd principle.

WEST OPENS

Betty Kaplan opened the ten of spades from the West hand. Declarer put up dummy's jack, and Edgar Kaplan covered with the queen. The names are important because Kaplan is one of the all-time greats of the game and his wife has been well trained.

South took the top spades and ruffed a spade in dummy. He next led dummy's nine of diamonds for a finesse. When that held, he continued with the queen of diamonds; and this also held.

Declarer next tried a finesse with the queen of hearts, losing to the king. Back came a spade, and East ruffed with the ten of hearts to force out the jack. But now West was sure to get a trump trick with the nine of hearts, and the slam was doomed to defeat.

SHOULD NOT FINESSE

When the nine of diamonds won the first trick in that suit it was surely clear to East that South held A-J-10-x of the suit. Therefore East's kind of diamonds was doomed, and he knew it.

East would cover the queen of diamonds if he wanted to get declarer out of the dummy; but East would let dummy's queen of diamonds hold the trick if he wanted to let declarer stay in the dummy.

WON'T WORK

Take if from me: If a good player allows you to take a finesse when he could prevent you from doing so — the finesse isn't going to work.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two no trump (22 to 24 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- Q 7 3
♥- 10 7
♦- K 6 2
♣- 9 7 6 3 2.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three no trump.

You would raise to three no trump with only 4 points, so this five point hand is ample for that purpose.

A reception welcoming Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. to its new office in Northgate Industrial Park will be held at 6 p.m. today.

Fireman's Fund will occupy the fourth and final unit of the Margarita Plaza Office Complex at Mitchell Boulevard and Paul Drive, developed by Dohemann and Co. The insurance building is of two stories with 16,000 square feet of floor space.

This is just an interim office for Fireman's Fund, which plans 300,000-square-foot data processing center on 38 acres of Lucas Valley Road on Highway 101. More than 400 employees are expected to operate the plant when it is completed in 1974.

A costume jewelry store called Accessories Unlimited will open about Nov. 1 in Northgate Mall, in a new building next to the new Sears, Roebuck and Co. complex.

Operator will be Marvin Baskin of San Rafael, who has about 12 years of experience in the field. He was formerly manager of Genco discount stores. Accessories Unlimited will carry costume jewelry and accessories.

The new costume jewelry store is the latest in a series of shops that have moved or are planning to move into Northgate Mall.

The spacious Pay Less Drugs and an expanded Chandler's Fabrics are already operating. Eureka Federal Savings and Loan Association just opened, and McKenzie's Children's Shop is in the process of moving to bigger quarters next door to its present location.

Other shops to follow include De Tour luggage, Bumbleberry Fun Family Restaurant, Clyde de Barcelona beauty salon, Parklane Hosiery, Shoe Den, Kinney Shoes, Regal Shoes, Foxmoor Casuals dress shop, Papsie's junior boutique high fashion, Brentano's, Abbey-Hallmark party supplies, and Catania Sound.

And when Sears & Roebuck's giant new retail outlet opens next month, Northgate Mall will be operating full blast.

Edward F. Jewell of Novato, a retired Air Force master sergeant, is the new part owner of the Town Club cocktail lounge at 1005 Grant Avenue in Novato.

He and his wife bought half interest in the bar this month and will operate it. The other owners are Harold L. and Pierrette D. Popiel of Denver. Jerry Bezenek, who formerly managed the bar, will continue to be the bartender.

The Town Club, a neighborhood cocktail lounge, is open seven days a week from 6 a.m. to 2 a.m.

Critters From Paradise Pet Shop at 5607 Paradise Drive in Corte Madera's Paradise Shopping Center is under new management and a new name. It is now called the Pet Set.

Lynn Woods of San Anselmo, who has about seven years of experience, took over the pet store last week from John Dauksha and James Hougan, also of San Anselmo. Dauksha and Hougan will continue to operate their Aquatics From Paradise fish shop at 5589 Paradise Drive.

Miss Woods, a breeder of champion Doberman Pinschers, said she will specialize in pet grooming and pet supplies at the new Pet Set. She will sell birds but no dogs or cats. The Pet Set will be open Tuesday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to about 6 p.m.

She also owns the Pet Set at 532 Third Street in San Rafael, but the name of her San Rafael store will be changed to Groovy Groomin'.

Miss Woods worked at Mutts of Marin in Strawberry for about four and one-half years and at the Pet Set in San Rafael for two and one-half years.

Richard B. Simkalo of Belvedere has been elected president and chief operating officer of Tami Inc., San Francisco clothing manufacturing firm. Simkalo was formerly with Bobbie Brooks Inc., serving as merchandising vice president of its misses sportswear division.

Snazelle Films of San Francisco, headed by E. E. Gregg Snazelle of Sausalito, captured best animated commercial award at the Atlanta Film Festival last month. The award was for Snazelle's production of "Stranger" for the Levi Strauss Co.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Attractively Priced Investment Trusts

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am interested in investing in one or two real-estate investment trusts. I would like information on them and the names of a few good ones so that I can study their comparative performances. — L.S.

A. Although market interest in this group is less enthusiastic than in the late 1960s when 60 new REITS were formed, there are a number of attractively priced issues well worth your consideration. One factor which should be studied prior to making any commitment is the trust's capability to originate new loans. Lomas & Nettleton Mortgage Investors (NYSE) is particularly strong in this area, reflecting the nationwide network of mortgage loan offices operating by Lomas & Nettleton Financial parent to the REIT's adviser L&N Management. As of March, 1972, 69 per cent of the firm's mortgage portfolio was in first mortgage construction and development loans, 30 per cent temporarily invested in VA loans and 1 per cent in second mortgages. Although the short-term nature of construction loans, generally under three years, allows L&N greater flexibility in dealing with interest rate fluctuations, it also increases the speculative characteristics of this issue. For the fiscal year ended June, 1972, earnings were up 55 per cent to $3.34 a share. The 87 cents a share dividend voted in July raised payments for that 12 months to $3.30 a share, producing an 8 per cent current yield.

Municipal Bonds; A Tax Exemption

By MARTIN SKALA
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK, N.Y. — To the average investor, the municipal bond market occupies a very specialized, and often mysterious niche in the financial world.

It's considered an intricate jumble of city, state, and school bonds, whose distinguishing feature is that interest payments are free from all federal income taxes.

The tax-exempt aspect has made municipals a favored investment vehicle for banks, insurance companies, and wealthy individuals. It has saved local government units millions of dollars in interest costs that might otherwise have had to come out of taxpayers' pockets.

But relatively few people are aware that municipals offer attractive rates of return, combined with a huge degree of safety and marketability, to less affluent investors as well.

One major reason why tax-exempts have been considered the exclusive province of the rich, asserts Michael T. Weissman, president of Paragon Securities, is that "Wall Street has done a poor job in merchandising municipals to the public."

Most brokerage houses don't give municipals the attention they deserve — they're too stock-market oriented," Mr. Weissman said in an interview. "Many brokers treat their municipal bond departments like stepchildren."

At Paragon Securities, by comparison, municipal bonds get everybody's undivided attention. Founded in April, 1971, with a staff of five, Paragon sold $750 million worth of tax-free bonds during its first year in business — more than any other firm specializing in tax-free bonds.

With offices in West Orange, N.J., New York City, and Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., Paragon now has a staff of 86 bond salesmen, backed up by a computerized trading department and a growing bond research staff. The firm bids on bond issues, engages in underwriting, and carries a sizable inventory as a market-maker.

Unlike many old-line brokerage houses, which do little to solicit business in tax-exempts, Paragon uses television advertising and direct mail to attract middle-income investors.

"There's a growing awareness that you don't have to be making $50,000 a year before municipals make sense in a portfolio," Mr. Weissman notes. "If you are in a $25,000 income bracket and own a municipal bond earning 6 per cent, the return is equivalent to a 10 per cent interest rate on a taxable investment. Obviously, the higher the income bracket, the greater the advantage of tax-free bonds."

An investor with personal income in excess of $15,000 may be a candidate for tax-exempts, according to Mr. Weissman. "A lot depends on the size of his savings account, future financial goals, and the ability to assume some limited risks in case the bonds have to be sold."

If interest rates were to go up, for instance, an investor who needed to cash in his bonds before maturity would be hit with a sizable capital loss.

For the well-paid professional or white-collar worker, municipals can provide yields equal to returns on taxable investments of 8½ per cent (based on a joint return in the 35 per cent bracket) up to 14 per cent for the wealthy resident of New York State or other high-tax areas.

For middle-income investors Mr. Weissman prefers to search out "undervalued" situations, where the bond credit rating may underestimate the issue's ability to meet its financial obligations.

Although New York City bonds have been downgraded by rating services in recent years, because of the city's well-advertised financial woes, Paragon believes the city's bondholders have little to worry about.

By law, the bonds have a prior lien on all taxes collected by the city. And the city is required to levy enough taxes to pay for all principal and interest on outstanding debt. "This makes the bonds as safe as many of those with a better credit rating," he says. "One can earn better than 6.5 per cent yield on a New York City bond maturing in 1980 — almost a full percentage point more than comparable issues."

Paragon backed up its confidence in New York's future fiscal soundness, when it snapped up $32 million of a recent $350 million city bond issue, the largest chunk subscribed by any underwriter.

"About $18 million went to our retail clients, the rest to institutions — and we were sold out in 10 days," he said with a smile.

Many smaller buyers dipped into their savings bank accounts to buy $10,000 to $15,000 worth of bonds.

In Paragon's opinion, Philadelphia, Jersey City, and Camden, N.J., deserve higher marks for fiscal stability than national rating services such as Moody's and Standard & Poor's have given them. Because their bonds are not top-rated, however, they provide above-average yields that make them more attractive to individual investors.

While most individuals are interested in general obligation bonds, Paragon steers the more speculatively inclined investors into industrial revenue bonds, many of which yield 7, 8 and 9 per cent tax-free. These bonds, which help finance the building of new factories, are guaranteed by industrial corporations, not government units.

And if the company — the sole guarantor — has had a bad year or two, its bonds sell at discounts. If the company doesn't default on its payments, and its balance sheet improves, the bonds may climb sharply in value.

New Muir Woods Zoning Is Asked

Currently, the area is zoned for 10,000-square-foot lots but under the proposal submitted by the Muir Woods Park Improvement Association, that figure would change radically.

The association asked that lands east of Panoramic Highway be rezoned to 20,000-square-foot lot minimum and the area west of the highway to one-acre lot minimum.

In deferring action, the commission said it wanted endorsement of the proposal from a majority of those whose property might be adversely affected.

"You're asking us to act in a confiscatory manner," Commission William B. Lyncy told association representative, adding he was leery of "blanket zonings."

Lynch was joined by Chairman Jack G. Nixon and Commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo in urging the homeowners' group to gain the support of owners of undeveloped land.

"There's nothing wrong with a community asking for rezoning," added Nixon, "but there is if those people affected disagree with it."

The commission also told the Muir Woods association it had failed to present adequate information to support its request for lower density zoning.

In explaining association reasoning, Robert Rydjord told the commission large properties shouldn't be broken up "just to satisfy the big money developers." He said the area should be protected and to allow dense development would only worsen sewage and traffic conditions.

Among those speaking against the rezoning was Del Goetz, who said it would result in the exclusion of low and moderate-income persons from the area.

"To deny people the right of access to this kind of life style is eminently unfair," she said, adding traffic congestion was caused by weekend visitors to the area and not by residents.

Other landowners charged that the imvovement association was composed of residents living on 5,000 to 10,000-square-foot plots but who now seek to stop others from doing the same.

After more than an hour of discussion, the commission referred the matter back to the planning staff and will consider it again Oct. 19.

Marin County Planning Commission Also:

HEARING — Scheduled Sept. 22 at 8 p.m. for a special meeting at Point Reyes Station to discuss limiting expansion of West Marin villages. The meeting will be held at West Marin School.

PRESERVE — Recommended to county supervisors that some 13 parcels of land remain in the agricultural preserve and be rezoned. Owners of the widely scattered parcels had requested exclusion from the preserve.

DEVELOPMENT — Continued to Sept. 25 a master plan and rezoning petition for 25 acres behind Marin Catholic High School in Kentfield. The land, owned by the Catholic Church, is proposed for 312 condominiums.

BLACK POINT — Considered but took no action on a proposal to rezone much of Black Point near the Petaluma River to a single-family residential designation. The land currently is zoned for industrial and low-density residential use.

MERRYDALE — Approved rezoning a strip along the west side of Merrydale Road in the San Rafael Meadows area for apartment use. An amendment to the county code will be sought at a later meeting to allow some office building use of the land.

LUCAS VALLEY — Continued to Oct. 30, a proposal to rezone the Big Rock and Foster ranches in Upper Lucas Valley for planned residential development. The ranches are currently zoned for two-acre lots.

NICK'S COVE — Considered but took no action on a proposal to rezone the historic Nick's Cove restaurant on Tomales Bay for commercial use. The area is currently zoned for limited agricultural. Another hearing was scheduled for Nov. 16.

APPEAL — Denied the appeal of Henry Bormolini and John Velcich of the zoning administrator's condition that they must place six feet of fill on their land near Novato before building a boat and camper storage warehouse. The land is located in the Novato Creek flood plain near Deer Island Road.

Brodnik's Son Is Sworn In

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Robert Brodnik, whose father was killed in the line of duty with the San Francisco Police Department, was sworn in Monday as a patrolman.

And, as his mother watched, he was given Star 1854, which had been his father's.

Joseph Brodnik, the father, was killed in 1969 during a burglary investigation. Six Latin Americans, known as "Los Siete," were acquitted in a long trial in the slaying.

The younger Brodnik is 23.

There were 40 others sworn in, including two policewomen and five other sons of policemen.

Girl Has To Buy A New Bracelet

CROSBYTON, Tex. (UPI)—Debbie Crump, 17, who used to wear a prisoner of war bracelet with the name of Navy Lt. Norris Alphonzo Charles inscribed on it, is in the market for a new one.

"I was watching the late night movie when they broke in with a news bulletin that three Vietnam prisoners had been released by their captors," Miss Crump said Monday. "By the time they got to the middle name, I knew it was the man whose name is on my bracelet."

She mailed Charles her bracelet with a letter of congratulations and went to nearby Reese Air Force Base to buy another one Monday, but found out they were temporarily sold out.

Fort Dix Assignment For Black General

FT. DIX, N.J. (UPI)—Brig. Gen. Julius W. Becton Jr., the sixth black general in U.S. Army history and a combat veteran of the 101st Airborne Division, became deputy commander of Ft. Dix today.

Becton, 46, is the first black general assigned to the sprawling military installation which houses some 40,000 persons, including dependents. He has spent 26 years in the Army, serving in the Pacific during World Wa II and in Vietnam where he was commanding officer of the 2nd Squadron, 17th Cavalry and deputy commander of the 3rd Brigade, 101st Airborne Division.

Tiburon Report Due On Stop Sign Plea

Pleas for improvement of Hacienda Drive at last night's Tiburon City Council meeting were blunted by a staff report and objections of residents on other roads. (Another Tiburon City Council story, page 1.)

The council, however, did instruct the staff to consider and report within one month on Hacienda Drive residents' request for a three-way stop sign at its intersection with Trestle Glen Drive.

Other improvement of the narrow roadway appeared doomed when staff said the city cannot work on the privately owned road unless it is dedicated to the city, and by objections of residents in other areas that their roads were more in need of repair.

The Tiburon City Council Also:

MAR WEST — Invited bids for a new retaining wall on Mar West Street, its cost estimated by staff at $13,500.

PROPERTY — Postponed to Sept. 25 adoption of an ordinance permitting auction of unclaimed property not in excess of $250 in value.

REDEVELOPMENT — Scheduled a joint meeting with the planning commission on Oct. 12 to consider formation of a redevelopment district for the downtown area.

OPEN SPACE — Reviewed a preliminary open space element for inclusion in the city's master plan after future hearings by the planning commission and council.

ANIMALS — Approved the first reading of an ordinance amendment providing for an infraction rather than a misdemeanor for violations of the city's animal control ordinance.

Joint Coffee

A joint coffee for Barbara Boxer, candidate for Marin County supervisor, and Gene Turtle, candidate for trustee of the Marin Community College District, will be held at 8 p.m. on Sept. 21 in the home of San Anselmo City Councilman Martin G. Blinder, 50 Idalia Road.

Committee Cancels GI Overseas Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House committee complains it would cost taxpayers $10 million a year just to bring back from overseas the foreign cars American GIs buy.

The House Appropriations Committee Monday directed the Defense Department to cancel by Dec. 31 its new policy of paying the transportation costs. It approved an appropriation for the current year but criticized the Pentagon for deciding to absorb the shipping costs without consulting Congress.

Icelandic Gunboat Cuts Trawler Lines

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI)—An Icelandic gunboat today cut off both trawl wires for a British trawler fishing inside Iceland's new 50 mile fishing limits, the Icelandic radio announced.

The radio said it was the worst incident since the "cod war" began Sept. 1. The British trawler lost its expensive equipment.

DID YOU EVER WONDER WHY SO MANY HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETES ARE BLACK?

Because an athletic scholarship is the only way for them to get into college. So, sports becomes a very serious business. They have to play harder.

But there are thousands of young blacks who can't play basketball, or football, but who can write, or work well with chemicals. They can't go to college. Unless their families have the money.

We help to educate over 45,000 blacks in 40 private, four-year colleges. They learn to turn their potentials into realities.

A COUPLE OF CAMPAIGNERS

Edward Cox, son-in-law of President Nixon, was greeted by the GOP elephant yesterday during opening ceremonies of the Reelect Phone Bank in Harrisburg, Pa. Vietnam Marines Reenter Quang Tri

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese Marines racing a Wednesday deadline have broken the bloody stalemate at Quang Tri City by storming the walls of the 19th Century Citadel and linking up inside its high brick walls, field reports said today.

While the Marines scored their impressive victory at Quang Tri City over North Vietnamese ordered to battle to the death, the U.S. Command was reporting what it called the most destructive raids over North Vietnam since heavy bombing was resumed more than five months ago. The U.S. planes using "smart" bombs hit three bridges within 28 miles of China.

The military situation worsened below Da Nang, however, and field reports today said a battalion of 250 South Vietnamese troops at Tien Phuoc, 38 miles south of Da Nang, broke and ran under a furious Communist assault that included a 200 rounds of 130 mm artillery.

Initial reports from Quang Tri said contact with Communist troops was light inside the Citadel, but the biggest guns in the North Vietnamese arsenal were pounding the advancing marines while U.S. B52s bombed to keep North Vietnamese reinforcements away.

The first Marine units entered Sunday night through a hole blasted in the southeast corner of the Citadel by a U.S. Air Force laser-guided "smart" bomb July 10, UPI reporter Ted Kurrus said. On Monday night, reinforcements plunged through the hole in the 15-foot-high wall while another unit scaled over the opposite northeast corner, he said.

The two units, totaling about 300 men, soon joined up along the eastern wall and began pushing toward the heavy bunkers in the western sector. Communists have held the Citadel for 135 days.

President Nguyen Van Thieu has set Sept. 19 as the deadline for the recapture of all occupied territory. Kurrus said military sources told him the marines at Quang Tri were ordered to secure the forbidding citadel by Wednesday.

The Citadel, captured by the Communists May 1, loomed clearly today against blue skies as the highest point in battle-flattened Quang Tri City. Kurrus said more than 15 attacks by low-flying American and South Vietnamese planes hit Communist bunkers on the floor and along the western wall today.

North Vietnamese troops, under orders to "hold until death," have defied all government efforts to retake the Citadel until now. South Vietnamese airborne troops reentered the outskirts of Quang Tri City July 4 as the first big step of the government's counteroffensive.

After 21 days of agonizing house-to-house fighting, the para-troopers got some men inside the Citadel July 25 and even raised a flag at the highest point. But they were pulled out suddenly in heavy fighting and the marines took over the Quang Tri assignment two days later. The attempt to take the Citadel was abandoned temporarily in favor of cleaning up resistance in the heavy bunkers planted in almost every destroyed house in the city.

The Marines slowly moved toward the 500-yard-square Citadel from the north and south sides since assuming the task July 27. Kurrus said they have put three-man scouting teams inside the walls during the past week to spot Communist strong-

Golda: Smite Terrorists; Cairo Warns Of Attack

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said today in Jerusalem that Israel would smite terrorists "wherever it can reach them." And official Cairo Radio said Israel in agreement with the United States is about to carry out a large scale military operation against Syria and Lebanon.

Lebanese residents of the southern Lebanese city of Sidon said two Israeli warplanes broke the sound barrier over the town today. They told UPI in Beirut the planes came in from the sea and headed for Israeli-occupied Syrian territory where there was a minor border incident this morning.

Cairo Radio made its charge in a commentatry and urged Arab countries and peoples to be on maximum alert. It cited reports from Beirut, Damascus and Tel Aviv about large Israeli military mobilization near the border and called the mobilization "thick and unusual."

"In light of all this, we can conclude that Israel, in agreement with the United States, is on its way to carry out large scale military operations against Lebanon and Syria," the radio said.

The Beirut newspaper An Nahar also reported an increase of Israeli military patrols along the border and said Israeli workers had stopped picking apples at orchards near the border and that civilian cars had disappeared from the roads in that region.

In Beirut, the French-language newspaper l'Orient le Jour said the Syrian government had lifted restrictions

San Rafael Adopts Pay Scale Despite Mishandling Admission

By NELS JOHNSON

A shocked San Rafael City Council last night agreed with safety empolyees that salary negotiations had been mishandled but nevertheless adopted a pay scale established weeks ago. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 19)

One dismayed councilman said the possibility that the salary and fringe benefit offer was based on inaccurate figures was appalling.

Both the council and safety employees agreed that city staff had handled the salary matter in an unsatisfactory manner.

"The figures as presented are not correct. . . the city manager's figures are not accurate," declared police representative Sgt. Henry W. Ingwersen shortly before the unanimous vote.

Ingwersen said that the city ranked thirteenth on a list of 18 benchmark cities in California as populated as San Rafael, and not eighth as the council had found last Thursday.

The council after a closed session Thursday reaffirmed a previous offering of a 5 per cent salary increase effective Sept. 1 and a $2 monthly increase in benefits. Mayor C. Paul Bettini said then that the council's position was firm because the benchmark ranking supplied by staff "forced us to take the course of fiscal responsibility."

Ingwersen said that staff's comparison of the benchmark cities made San Rafael safety employees seem better off than they are because "certain items had been left out." Discrepancies ranged from $737 to $10, he said, adding that social security benefits had been dropped completely from one benchmark city tabulation.

Finance Director John B. Averett said the tabulation was the result of a phone survey compiled by a competent accountant.

Ingwersen said that the 5 per cent hike and $2 benefit increase would place San Rafael police on a scale equal to Nova-

Report Condemns Attica Shooting

Blue-Ribbon Probe Blasts Rockefeller

ALBANY (UPI) — The citizens' commission named to investigate the Attica prison riot reported today there was "no justification" for the "clearly indiscriminate firing" which put an end one year ago to the nation's bloodiest prison riot in which 43 men died.

"With the exception of the Indian massacres in the late 19th Century," the commission said, "the state police assault which ended the four-day prison uprising was the bloodiest encounter between Americans since the Civil War."

Releasing its findings on the first anniversary of the rebellion, the blue ribbon McKay Commission also held that the revolt was spontaneous, not planned; that the demand for amnesty was the main barrier to a peaceful solution; and that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller should have gone to the scene.

It recommended a series of prison reforms, but also suggested that in case of such outbreaks prisons be retaken quickly, if possible, or that negotiations not include outside influences.

Highlights of the 550-page report, plus photographs and films were scheduled for viewing Wednesday night at 8:30 p.m. over National Educational Television.

The nine-member panel, headed by Robert B. McKay, dean of the New York University Law School, spent 10 months interviewing 2,500 persons in both public and private sessions.

The commission warned a prison riot could happen again at Attica. It said it saw some improvements in prison life since the riot, but little reduction of the hostilities and frustrations that led to the riot.

The commission noted that the best evidence that things had not changed greatly at Attica was this summer's strike by 900 of the 1,200 Attica inmates over the firing of a nurse and other conditions at the prison. The demonstration was peaceful.

"The cycle of misunderstanding, protest and reaction continues and confrontation remains the only language in which the inmates feel they can call attention to the system," the report said.

"The possibility the Attica

Hilltop Homes Fight Brews

The Marin County Planning Commission approved a controversial hilltop housing development near Tiburon yesterday afternoon, and last night the Tiburon City Council reacted with anger, declaring it will carry the fight to the county board of supervisors. (Other county planning commission and Tiburon council stories, page 36.)

Approved unanimously by the commission was a 128-unit project on 32 acres overlooking the Reedlands and Bel Aire subdivisions.

As in the past, the Highlands — as the development is called — drew criticism from nearby residents who said 128 homes on the 32-acre site would be too dense and would add to already bad sewage, traffic and drainage conditions.

However, the commission voted to approve the master plan for the development, which originally called for 148 single-family and townhouse dwellings.

"I think it's a suitable density and a suitable type of development (for the area)," commented Commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo in moving for adoption of the plan.

She said it provided muchneeded, moderate-income housing in an area composed of predominantly higher income families. Other commissioners agreed.

The Tiburon City Council last night denounced the planning commission for approving the project adjacent to the city and agreed to appeal "as forcibly as possible" to the board of supervisors to reject it.

Councilman Branwell D. Fanning, saying the hilltop project would be "visible from practically the whole Bay Area," suggested the city could block access to it by closing city streets. The streets were not designed to carry the heavy loads the project would bring, he said.

The council agreed to act after an appeal by citizens in the area. Edward R. Middendorf, president of Reedlands Property Owners Association, objected to the prospect of heavy traffic from the project through Reedlands. He also said the project would overburden Bel Aire School, forcing children from the area to be bused to other schools.

Middendorf also argued that no soil test had been made on the property. "The county public works department walked

Council Told Estate Unsuitable For Park

San Rafael's director of parks and recreation told the city council last night that the Robert Dollar estate is not suitable for park purposes and a hired consultant urged the estate be excluded from redevelopment plans.

The council received the recommendations in writing from Andrew J. Snyder, parks and recreation director, and Steven H. Goldfarb, redevelopment consultant.

Snyder said ti would be neither economically feasible nor recreationally wise to acquire the historic estate and grounds on Mission Avenue.

Although noting the main house could be used as a museum, Snyder wrote that all of the existing structures on the property "are in old and dilapidated condition."

Initial improvements, care, maintenance and upkeep would make the building unacceptable for recreational purposes, Snyder said, also citing problems involving vandalism and seniors negotiating stairs.

He estimated the cost of mintaining the grounds alone would be more than $30,000 annually.

Goldfarb recommended the property not be included in redevelopment plans, saying it does not lie within the redevelopment area.

Councilman Lawrence F. Mulryan had proposed the property be included in the city's redevelopment plans.

The San Rafael Planning Commission will consider a proposal to raze the mansion and develop the estate today at 7:30 p.m. in city hall.

'CITY' IS OUT

Fairfax Aims To Bolster Its Small-Town Image

Fairfax's city council decided last night to emphasize that it runs a town and not a city. (Another Fairfax City Council story, page 19.)

The confusion over what Fairfax is is the state's fault, according to City Atty. Wallace S. Myers. California law, he said, does not distinguish between towns and cities.

"Within the meaning of the state code we are a city, but we call gurselves a town," he said. He noted that resolutions are passed by the City Council of the Town of Fairfax.

"I think it would be just fine wherever you want to use the word, 'town,' " Myers said.

The council wanted to do just that. It unanimously voted to join the ranks of Marin towns, already occupied by Ross and Corte Madera.

The new emphasis was instigated by Councilman Frank J. Egger who said, "Our small-town environment is our No. 1 asset. We should emphasize the word 'town' since it more reflects what Fairfax is."

He noted the village in 1931 was incorporated as a town, not a city.

The city staff was directed to begin killing the city image by replacing "city" with "town" on stationery, signs, police cars and wherever else it appears as items are replaced.

Stans' Reaction-'A Pack Of Lies'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans has labeled a "scurrilous pack of lies" Democratic charges he diverted $114,000 in President Nixon's campaign funds to pay a squad of political spies and then destroyed the records.

The charges were lodged as the Democratic party named Stans, now Nixon's campaign finance chief, as one of several new codefendants in a civil damage suit stemming from the alleged bugging of the offices of the Democratic National Committee last June 17.

The Democrats said the five men arrested in the party headquarters with what police described as bugging gear in their possession were "paid secret agents" of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President (CRP). They charged that Stans provided the money for this "political espionage squad" and in fact "embarked upon a conspiracy" to form it.

The charges were to be filed formally today with the U.S. District Court here in the form of an amended complaint in the civil suit, lodged in June by former Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien against the men caught in the headquarters. O'Brien also upped the party's demands for damages from $1 million to $3.2 million.

"Mr. O'Brien's allegations against me are a scurrilous pack of lies and he knows it," Stans said in a statement. "They amount to nothing more than a contemptible maneuver to use the court for his own base political purpose—and the American people will recognize it."

Similar harsh words came from Clark MacGregor, Nixon's campaign manager. He said O'Brien's allegations were nothing but "political libel and slander" and said he would slap a countersuit for malicious prosecution on the Democrats.

Meanwhile, Maine Democratic Chairman Severin M. Beliveau told UPI he would file another suit against alleged participants in the political spy ring later this week. Beliveau said the phone of the Association of Democratic State Chairmen, which he heads, was one of two tapped at the national headquarters.

Sources close to the Democratic investigation said that O'Brien's was the other.

Kissinger Adds To Talk Agenda

MOSCOW (UPI)—President Nixon's chief adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, continued talks with Soviet leaders today and added to his travel agenda conferences with British and French officials en route home the latter part of this week.

Kissinger thus will have touched bases with America's three major European allies either before or after the Moscow visit. En route to Moscow, he met with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt in Munich.

In Washington, the White House hinted that while in Paris Friday to confer with French President Georges Pompidou, Kissinger might have another in his series of meetings with Le Duc Tho, chief North Vietnamese negotiator at the Paris peace talks.

Guard Hospital

BELFAST (UPI) — British troops guarded Belfast's Royal Victoria Hospital today against threatened attacks on the huge medical complex by the extremist Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA).

Northern Ireland's two major loyalist organizations joined forces under former Home Affairs Minister William Craig to press for the restoration of Protestant rule over the province.

A statement issued last night by the Provisionals said unless troops were withdrawn from the 1,200-bed hospital "any type of attack on the hospital is now possible."

Curfew Ends

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (UPI) — City officials ended a curfew last night after meeting with black leaders to settle differences that sparked a weekend of racial violence.

Boost For KP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee describes military kitchen police (KP) as "wholesome and character building" and wants to scrap the program of turning the work over to civilians.

Pentagon officials fear this could hamper their efforts to get enough recruits for all-volunteer services. They also argue it will put thousands of "minority members and poor people" out of work.

The House committee axed the civilian kitchen police system Monday when it cut $4.9 billion out of the Defense epartment budget for the current fiscal year. The decision still must be approved by the full house and Senate.

Waning Storm

MIAMI (UPI) — Tropical storm Dawn was downgraded to a depression today as it dawdled off the Northeast Florida coast with peak winds of 35 miles per hour in squalls.

The National Hurricane Center said that the season's fourth tropical storm had weakened during the night and "conditions are not favorable for any strengthening."

Welfare Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal welfare officials are considering possible national use of an experiment that distributes welfare aid through banks to avoid the theft of checks from the mails.

The plan has won enthusiastic endorsement from recipients, bankers and welfare officials in Philadelphia and in Nassau County, N.Y., where it has been tried, with variations, among selected groups, said Ludwig Guckenheimer of the federal Assistance Payments Administration.

In Seoul

SEOUL (UPI) — A delegation of North Koreans arrived in Seoul today for the first official visit to the South Korea in 27 years and pledged to "heal the deep scars" that have separated the two Koreas since World War II.

The 34-member Red Cross delegation, accompanied by 20 North Korean newsmen, crossed the border into Panmunjom truce village and then drove to Seoul, where thousands of citizens lined the streets during the lunch hour to welcome them.

Historical Site?

DALLAS (UPI) — The city council has killed a proposal to demolish the former Texas School Book Depository and repeated its intention to have the building preserved as a historical site.

Councilman Fred Zeder Monday said he would continue his fight to raze the building, from which the Warren Commission said Lee Harvey Oswald assassinated President John F. Kennedy in November 1963.

Zeder said he wants the former depository destroyed because of the image of the city it perpetuates and suggests a park or historical center be built on the grounds.

Ordered Out

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — Uganda has ordered Britain to withdraw its 17-man military mission from the country by noon Friday.

Uganda Radio said yesterday the Defense Council headed by President Idi Amin had decided the mission must leave "due to security reasons pertaining to the security of all people in Uganda."

Alien Ring

TIJUANA, Mexico (UPI) — The largest alien-smuggling ring ever discovered here specialized in sneaking Central Americans, apparently hundreds of them, into the United States, police said today.

City and federal police said 47 persons were in custody, including two Salvadorans and a Mexico City man allegedly involved in the racket, and more arrests were expected.

Police arrested 20 aliens at a home near the border with the United States Saturday, and picked up another 24 who arrived Monday. Authorities seized 275 forged U.S. immigratioc cards, 174 passports from El Salvador and 46 from Guatemala, indicating the ring had smuggled hundreds of Central Americans into the United States.

The going price was $225 a head, officials said.

Five Still Sought

CHRISTIANSTED, St. Croix, V.I. (UPI) — Two suspects were in jail but five others were still at large as a search entered its seventh day today for the killers who gunned down eight persons at a posh golf course.

Police said yesterday they believe the five wanted men are still on the island and will be captured. Gov. Melvin H. Evans expressed similar confidence in a statement. He said the island-wide search for the men was "augmented," but would not elaborate.

A spokesman at the attorney general's office said Gereau and Meral Orlando Smith, 21, of St. Croix — who are in jail in lieu of more than $1 million bail —will be arraigned on eight counts of first-degree murder later this week.

Canal Dispute

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — The Panamanian People's Assembly, voting amid a chorus of shouts of "Down with Yankee Imperialism," yesterday urged rejection of the $1.9 million the United States annually pays for using the Canal Zone.

The resolution passed by the 505-member assembly said Panama is demonstrating to the world that the Canal Zone "has not been purchased or conquered or annexed or ceded or leased or its sovereignty transferred by the Republic of Panama to the United States of America."

The vote asked Panama's executive branch to turn down the next payment. The two nations are in the process of negotiating a new treaty to replace the original canal treaty of 1903. Panama has said frequently it will accept nothing less than full sovereignty over the Canal Zone.

McGovern, Kennedy In The Midwest

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) —Sen. George S. McGovern, with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy campaigning at his side, today hammered away at his peace-and-economics theme in the big cities of the Midwest.

McGovern and Kennedy were to campaign together at rallies in Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland during a hectic day scheduled to have them on the go for 15 hours even in the unlikely event that everything runs on time.

Kennedy joined the McGovern cavalcade Monday night in Minneapolis, and promptly got standing ovations from essentially the same speech for which McGovern has been receiving polite applause.

"I stand with George McGovern for the rights of all the people, and we want all of you beside us," Kennedy said.

In a statement prepared for a noontime rally in the heart of the Chicago Loop, McGovern accused President Nixon of using the totalitarian logic of George Orwell's novel "1984."

"For three years they have told us that war is peace," McGovern said. "For a year, they have told us that a recession is the new prosperity. Now they tell us that a value-added-tax is not a tax."

This was a reference to an administration pledge that if Nixon is re-elected there will be no new taxes although a value-added levy — a sort of national sales tax—may be proposed to replace some revenue now raised by property taxes.

"But it looks like a tax, it sounds like a tax...and it will certainly feel like a tax to the families of this country when it costs each of them at least $200 a year," McGovern said.

A standing-room-only crowd of more than 10,000 crammed into the 8,500-seat Minneapolis Auditorium to see the first joint McGovern-Kennedy appearance since the South Dakota senator won the nomination. The mostly youthful audience sat in the aisles and stood along the walls after all the seats were filled.

ON THE TRAIL — Sen. George McGovern appeared yesterday in Minneapolis with Sen. Edward Kennedy (right). The rally drew an overflow crowd of 10,000 persons, with another 2,000 milling around outside the auditorium.

(UPI Telephoto)

At least another 2,000 persons were turned away.

"I used to be just one of 100 doing my job in the United States Senate," Kennedy quipped. "Then came time for the selection of the vice presidential candidate. It just shows what its like to have a famous brother-in-law."

An aide said Kennedy plans to campaign on behalf of McGovern and Democratic candidates for the Senate and House most weekends and daily in the last two weeks before the election. He will appear jointly with McGovern Wednesday and Thursday but most of his other appearances will be separate from the nominee.

When Kennedy was introduced by Minnesota Gov. Wendell Anderson the crowd stood and cheered for 40 seconds. When Kennedy finished his speech and introduced McGovern, the ovation— spiced with cries of "We want George"—lasted for 105 seconds.

McGovern responded with more emotion than he usually employs. The audience gave him his biggest cheers when he stressed the antiwar theme that marked his successful campaign for the nomination.

August Report Shows Sales Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Commerce Department report shows August retail sales were 9.5 per cent ahead of the same month in 1971.

The department said Monday preliminary figures estimated August retail sales at $38 billion after seasonal adjustments. This was 1.5 per cent above the July figure of $37.1 billion.

The report said June through August sales were 2 per cent ahead of the previous three-month period and 10 per cent ahead of the comparable period last year.

Shriver Targets Nixon, Reagan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Sargent Shriver said yesterday President Nixon issued one of the most "sanctimonious and inaccurate statements in the history of the country" when he accused Sen. George McGovern of advocating a welfare ethic.

"There is no American who prefers the welfare ethic," said Shriver, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, "except maybe Mr. (Gov. Ronald) Reagan who prefers it because he doesn't pay any taxes. He lets all you work for him."

After campaigning in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Sacramento Monday, Shriver planned today to visit the home of a Mexican-American hard hit by property taxes, then fly to Portland, Ore.

In Sacramento, Shriver spoke to 1,200 persons who blocked a downtown street on a chilly night to attend a campaign headquarters opening.

Shriver protested Nixon's Labor Day statement that "we are faced this year with the choice between the 'work ethic' that built this nation's character and the 'welfare ethic' that could cause the American character to weaken."

"This man has not only added unemployment, added to the cost of welfare, raised your taxes, but at the same time he comes out with one of the most sanctimonious and inaccurate statements in the history of this country," Shriver said. He said it also "is one of the most unethical statements in the history of the country."

"I've been in more ghettoes than Nixon and (Vice President Spiro) Agnew put tggether," he said, "and I have yet to see the American male or female who prefers to beg rather than work."

In Los Angeles, Shriver spoke to 2,000 members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers and received several standing ovations. The 908,000-member union last week endorsed the McGovern-Shriver ticket.

If elected, Shriver said, the McGovern administration will name "a labor man as secretary of labor in contrast to the captains of industry who run the Department of Labor under the Nixon administration."

Larkspur City Manager Rebuked

Larkspur City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst received a token slap on the wrist from his city council at 1:30 a.m. today, for ineffectual policing of illegal grading on Little King Mountain early in May.

After the council emerged from a two and one-half hour closed session, Mayor William G. Fleckles reported councilmen found that Bathurst and other city staff members had been guilty of an "error of judgement" in the Little King controversy.

The closed session was the belated aftermath of letters written May 14 by Arthur M. Sestak, husband of Councilman Joan B. Sestak, and on May 12 by Victor J. Van Flint, an engineer whose home overlooks the top of Little King.

Van Flint complained that contractor Paul Vincilione was cutting trees and excavating soil from Little King without a permit — while the application by Vincilione and his wife Alice to scrape 360,000 cubic yards from the hill's crown was still pending before the city council.

Mrs. Vincilione is executrix of the estate of Adolph A. Tiscornia, which includes the Little King area.

Sestak's letter said that if Van Flint's allegations were true, city officials were guilty of either collusion or gross incompetence, and "somebody should be asked to leave."

The councilmen last night reviewed the two letters, plus Bathurst's chronological report of the excavation quarrel, Fleckles reported. Neither Sestak nor Flint was present. A videotape recording city officials made the excavation work in progress was brought out of the files but was not viewed by the council.

After the lengthy debate, councilmen emerged to an audience consisting of three city officials and one reporter. Councilmen nodded agreement as Fleckles announced, "we found no evidence of collusion, no evidence of gross incompetency, but we did find an error of judgement on the part of the city staff — and particularly on the part of the city manager, who has accepted responsibility —" in respect to policing the grading.

"We intend to take no further action," Fleckles announced, but he and other councilmen than agreed to Councilman Neil R. Brixon's suggestion that an official letter be placed in Bathurst's personnel file.

Councilmen took no public vote on their action, but Brixon later revealed the decision was unanimous.

The city took the Vinciliones to court on an illegal grading charge in May, and secured an injunction against further grading until May 1973. Meanwhile, however, the Vinciliones have sued to city to overtune the council and planning commission denials of the grading permit they sought. The decision is still pending.

The family wants to grade potential building sites on the mountain, and to fill some 25 acres of lowlands between Magnolia Avenue and Corte Madera Creek near the Safeway store.

Fleckles revealed that the marathon closed session also included discussion of a letter from outgoing City Atty. Robert W. Elliott, concerning another lawsuit against the city by the MGM Construction Co. of Concord. The council decided no response to the letter was necessary, Fleckles said.

Goats Slaughtered To Inaugurate Jet

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI)—Nepal slaughtered two goats Sunday to mark its entry into the jet age.

The ceremony marked government purchase of a Boeing 727, Nepal's first jet flag carrier. Two employees of the Royal Nepal Airlines sprinkled the blood of the goats around the plane's cockpit, which according to Nepalese tradition will protect the plane from the "evil eye."

Schmitz Fails To Make Ballot

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI)—The American Independent Party has lost its appeal to get on the Rhode Island ballot in November.

The party's forces had appealed the disqualification of a number of signatures to the state Board of Elections. The board reviewed the decisions made by local canvassing boards and reinstated 17 signatures which had been rejected.

However, this brought the party's total to only 489, 11 short of the needed 500 to get on the ballot.

Student Returns After Year Off

SUTTER CREEK, Calif. (UPI)—David Godman went back to school Monday after a year off because he wouldn't cut his long hair, but his younger brother isn't giving in yet to the school district's hair length standards.

David, 10, and Nick, 6, were prohibited from attending classes last year unless they cut their hair. They refused to do so and were tutored by their mother at home.

Clarke Godman, the boys' father, arranged at David's request to have him go back to classes at a different school.

David visited a professional hair stylist and returned to class with a shorter and more conventional cut.

Nick said he's going to "wait and see" before deciding whether he will return to school.

Pier Plan Loses In Corte Madera

A 3-1 Larkspur City Council vote last night torpedoed one developer's plans to jut finger piers into Corte Madera Creek.

The vote followed a two-hour and 40-minute rehash of a hearing originally held last Wednesday, when Councilman Joan L. Sestak was absent on vacation. When Councilman Neil R. Brixon declared he would abstain to avoid conflict of interests — he owns an existing pier in the creek — and councilmen learned at least three votes were necessary to reach a decision on the controversy, it was continued to last nigh's adjourned meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moran had won a conditional permit in July from the city planning commission, to build finger piers for their Nara Garden condominium development. Larkspur Parks and Recreation Commission Chairman Theresa Campbell, acting as an individual citizen, appealed the commission action to the council. She declared it violated a policy decision June 13 by the commission against such piers in the creek.

Mayor William G. Fleckles, after closing last night's hearing, asked the council to postpone decision on Mrs. Campbell's appeal until the parks and recreation, planning and council officials could hammer out an overall policy on pier development in the creek.

Malvino moved to honor Fleckles's request, but failed to find a second.

Mrs. Sestak then moved to uphold the appeal. She voiced fears that the creek's public waterways status could be jeopardized by piers and storage for more than 350 boats if a precedent was set.

Councilmen Robert H. Lee and Alfred Malvino sided with her, but Fleckles voted aginst the appeal on grounds the policy had not yet been adopted.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

COMMISSIONER — Refused Planning Commission Vice Chairman Leonard S. Rubin's request for a leave of absence until Jan. 25, 1973 to take special courses required by his federal job. Fleckles said Rubin would be given to Sept. 18 or 19 to decide whether he could attend the commission's sessions or resign. Brixon reported that commission chairman Otto Hoefler said he would be unable to function with only four members, on such important pending matters as the city's general plan.

REZONING — Continued a public hearing on introducing an ordinance putting all of the R-3 residential areas along Magnolia Avenue into a "S" study zone, to Oct. 4.

APPOINTMENTS — Routinely reappointed park and recreation commission youth representatives Daniel Cochran and William Bradley to new terms — but then discovered that Cochran was over the 22-year age limit set in council policy. Asst. City Mgr. Harlan Berry was told to inform Cochran that the city may amend its policy if another, suitable younger commissioner cannot be found. Cochran "has been doing a good job," Berry reported.

ADJOURNED — At 1:34 a.m. to the council's next regular meeting, 8 p.m. Oct. 4 in the city hall.

Court To Sentence Hijacker After Plea

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI)—Frederick William Hahneman, 49, an engineer from Easton, Pa., will be sentenced in U.S. District Court Sept. 29 on charges he hijacked an airliner to Honduras last May after collecting $303,000 ransom.

Hahneman pleaded guilty Monday and faces a maximum of 20 years in prison. He was charged with taking over an Eastern Airlines plane near Allentown, Pa., and forcing the crew to fly him to Central America where he bailed out over Honduras. He later surrendered to U.S. diplomatic officials there.

against Palestine guerrilla operations against Israel and had even encouraged commandos based in Syria to escalate their attacks against Israel. It quoted unidentified Syrian officials in Damascus.

Mrs. Meir, in an address to the Israeli Knesset (Parliament) called to discuss the guerrilla murder of 11 Israelis at the Munich Olympic Games said the incident threatened Middle East peace efforts.

She commended the West German government for its decision to use force against the guerrillas but said there was "room for criticism" for the way the rescue attempt was carried out. She did not elaborate, but nine Israelis died in the shootout. "The new wave of terrorism threatens peace efforts," she said. "It will not force us to change our policies towards peace. Israel has no choice but to smite the terrorists wherever it can reach them," she said. "That is its national duty to itself and peace."

Menahem Begin, the leader of the opposition Gahal bloc, called for a special squad to be set up for this purpose.

Yitzhak Rabin, the Israeli ambassador to Washington, said on nationwide television that Israel may make the elimination of Arab terrorism a precondition to the continuation of peace efforts.

In Cairo, Arab League sources said Arab foreign ministers meeting there have failed to reach agreement on proposals for a unified plan of action against Israel.

The ministers instead shunted the whole issue, including proposals for an Arab summit.

Homes Group Backs Bond Vote

The Peacock Gap Homeowners Association last night endorsed San Rafael's Sept. 19 bond election for open space.

Board secretary Mary Carpou said the association believed passage of the $2.25 million measure was essential for preservation of the city's open space.

She said a slate of directors for 1972-73 was nominated last night, including Charles E. Dowdy, Tina Ferris, Richard K. Ives, Charles A. Madsen, Robert C. Winters and Jack Wodell. The new directors will be confirmed at an association meeting at 8 p.m. Nov. 1 in Peacock Gap Country Club.

Sonoma State Sessions Planned

Organizations ranging from social service departments to recycling centers will send representatives to campus-community congress sessions from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. each day. Displays and booths will be set up around the quadrangle at Stevenson Hall.

Agencies will recruit student volunteers and inform students on what services the agencies can provide for them. The Community Involvement Project, which coordinates student volunteers, will sponsor the sessions.

up there and took a look and passed it without driling a hole," he said.

He added that the project developer would be Security Capital Corp. of Walnut Creek, which "gave us Shelter Ridge" the apartment project above the freeway at Mill Valley.

Middendorf said the corporation had failed to provide amenities such as landscaping at the Mill Valley project, thus could fail to complete its obligation at the new project as well.

Middendorf said the developers turned to the county after the city early this year rejected plans for 131 units, and asked the county planning commission for 148 units.

The rezoning came despite the city's plea for a density that would have allowed only 64 units. Last night, however, the council agreed to seek a maximum density that would allow 70 units.

Frazier Leaves Death Row — 8 More Remain

SAN QUENTIN (UPI)—John Linley Frazier, convicted of slaying five persons after he accused them of spoiling the environment, has been moved from Death Row at San Quentin Prison.

Frazier was the 99th occupant of Death Row when he was sent here early this year but only eight remained after his transfer Monday in line with the U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawing the death penalty.

Frazier, 25, was moved to the Adjustment Center, a prison spokesman said, where his performance will be reviewed each month to see whether he should go into the prison's general population.

The former mechanic and high school dropout was convicted for the slaying of Dr. Victor Ohta, his wife, two young sons and a secretary at Ohta's $200,000 mansion in the Santa Cruz mountains on Oct. 19, 1970.

The Marines inside the Citadel now have come under heavy fire from 130 mm artillery guns and huge 160 mm mortars, the largest weapons in the Hanoi arsenal. The Saigon high command said more than 1,700 rounds landed in Quang Tri Monday.

U.S. and Vietnamese warplanes—including B52 bombers—raked the area across the Thach Han River, which runs by the west wall, to prevent North Vietnamese reinforcements from crossing. Pilots said antiaircraft fire was light.

Kurrus said marine actions in the Citadel have been mostly at night because of attacks by Communist artillery and the deadly direct-fire accuracy of recoilless rifles mounted in bunkers in the southwest and western reaches of the huge, walled structure. He said one artillery round hit a South Vietnamese ammunition dump a half-mile northeast of the Citadel Monday night, and a huge mushroom cloud laced with glowing tracers as rounds "cooked off" lighted the rainy, black sky.

to's police pay and $332 lower per year than received by Marin County sheriffs. The council Thursday said the increase would make San Rafael police the highest paid force in Marin.

"This is appalling," said Councilman Lawrence F. Mulryan, who nevertheless agreed with council colleagues that the city probably couldn't afford any more of an increase anyway.

"The city has done as much as it can," said Mayor Bettini, noting that reserve funds were down to $100,000. Bettini, however, said that the city had "handled this matter in an unsatisfactory manner" and expressed regret.

The mayor asked Ingwersen to provide him with a written criticism of staff's handling of salary negotiations.

In setting safety employee salaries as previously pledged, the council made final its rejection of a mediation team's report which urged a 5 per cent salary increase retroactive to July 1 and a $15 monthly increase in benefits. The report cost $4,250, the city putting up half the one money, the police and firemen's associations each contributing one-fourth.

Brochures List Fall Activities

Brochures listing the full range of fall activities sponsored by the Petaluma Recreation Department are available at city hall, the library and all schools.

Programs for youngsters include drama, arts and crafts, baton, ballet, modern dance, judo, guitar, folk dancing and preschool programs. The department will also offer after school recreation programs at McNear, Bernard Eldredge, McKinley and La Tercera schools from 3 to 5 p.m. on weekdays and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays beginning Oct. 2.

Adult activities include candlemaking, yoga, basketball, golden-agers and weight loss through swimming. Aquatics programs include swimming lessons, canoeing and skin diving townspeople will again hear the dread sounds of the powerhouse whistle is very real," the report said.

The recreation department will also handle private rentals of the municipal swim center for organizations and individuals.

It added: "Attica is every prison, and every prison is Attica... that the explosion occurred first at Attica was probably chance."

The report did not name anyone still subject to criminal prosecution. Volumes of private testimony are still being sought, however, by Deputy Attorney General Robert E. Fischer, for his grand jury investigation of the riot.

There was no immediate reaction to the report from either Rockefeller or Correction Commissioner Russell G. Oswald, who had command at Attica.

The McKay Commission was appointed by the state's top five judges to investigate "the events leading up to, during and following the riot."

The assault force of 211 state troopers (and unauthorized correction officers) had .270 caliber hunting rifles, .38 caliber pistols, and .12 gauge shotguns, the report said.

Most of the shotguns used 00 shells, each of which has nine or 12 pellets—" each a lethal missile," the report said. With 1,200 inmates holding the 38 hostages in "D" yard, it said, conditions "should have prohibited the use of shotguns."

With troopers given individual discretion to fire if "overt acts" of violence were committed, the force attacked under clouds of tear gas dropped by helicopters.

The report said 2,200 lethal missiles (counting each shotgun pellet) were fired. Almost 10 per cent of those in the yard were killed or wounded, including 13 of the hostages.

"There was clearly indiscriminate firing into congested areas by men who did not value the inmates' lives," it said.

Although many officers made reports of being attacked, the panel said, "the conclusion is inescapable that many of them were exaggerated."

The assault team recovered 1,400 weapons, including two tear gas guns, spears, molotov cocktails, baseball bats, scissors, knives, razors and clubs, but no firearms.

"A spontaneous burst of violent anger...not planned or organized in advance," caused the riot, the report said.

A group of inmates attacked a lieutenant they believed was involved in putting a comrade into isolation. A bad weld in the central "Times Square" gate gave the initial group access to the whole prison. Because of bad communications and lack of planning among guards, the inmates had their hostages grouped in "D" yard within 90 minutes, the report said.

Fearing loss of the hostages, Oswald tried to negotiate—but an observers' committee of more than 30 members was "unwieldy", the report said. Oswald's final offer of 28 points did not include amnesty, and inmates feared "mass prosecutions," after the death of an injured guard, William Quinn.

Rockefeller refused amnesty because it would "undermine the very essence of our free society," the report said. Although observers and Oswald asked Rockefeller to fly to Attica from New York City to meet with them—not the prisoners—the governor said he doubted his presence would "contribute to a peaceful settlement."

In testimony before the commission, Rockefeller, noting the growth of political kidnapings, said an official "would be betraying his trust to the people he serves if he were to sanction or condone such criminal acts by negotiating under such circumstances."

But the commission concluded that Rockefeller "should not have committed the state's armed forces against the rebels without first appearing on the scene and satisfying himself that there was no other alternative and that all precautions against excessive force had been taken."

Pleads Innocent To Manslaughter

A 22-year-old transient charged with manslaughter as a result of a drunken knife fight, in which one man was killed Thursday and another wounded, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Robert A. Smallman set a preliminary hearing for next Tuesday for Carlos Rico, of no fixed address.

He is charged with killing Dean Russell Ironcloud, 25, also a transient, during the fight near the heliport on Richardson Bay Paul Earl 44, 44 also was knifed.

Sheriff's investigators said Ironcloud apparently attacked Jordon, then was felled by Rico.

Hearing Set For Purse Snatchers

Two men — who allegedly hit a 90-year-old woman to steal her purse, then were cornered by angry witnesses — have denied an armed robbery charge in Marin Municipal Court and a preliminary hearing is set for next Tuesday.

Kenneth Foss Allen, 23, of Larkspur and Don Edward Fleischer, 26, of Lagunitas were arrested by San Rafael Police Sept. 3 and accused of knocking Margaret Farrar to the ground and stealing her purse.

The attack, police said, took place on Fourth Street at 9:45 a.m. as Mrs. Farrar, of 231 Laurel Place, walked home from church. Two passersby, William Willin of Novato and Arthur Latno of San Rafael chased Allen and Fleischer up Court Street and stopped them on Fifth Avenue, police said.

Shopping Center Go-Ahead Given

The Corte Madera Town Council, meeting as the community's redevelopment agency, said last night town staff could proceed with planning work associated with planned development of a $35 million regional shopping center along Highway 101.

The agency board took its first official look at a preliminary plan to establish a redevelopment area on and around the shopping center site. Purpose of the redevelopment project is to enable bond financing of streets, lighting and sewers to serve the planned development.

Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels said last night's session was a virtual rerun of the Aug. 30 meeting of the town planning commission at which the preliminary redevelopment plan was approved. Numerous questions were raised by audience and agency members but no objections voiced, he said.

However, Michael Mitchell, county auditor-controller and a Corte Madera resident, pointed out the impact of the redevelopment project on taxing agencies that have jurisdiction over the land.

School and special districts, as well as the town's own general fund, won't benefit from the property improvements until the bond debt incurred for the street and related work is retired.

The redevelopment area, pending public hearings leading to a final plan, includes the 78-acre parcel on which developer Ernest W. Hahn proposes the shopping center and the Muzzi property to the east, plus acreage to the south and northwest expected to be involved in road expansion for the shopping complex.

In addition to further study by staff and the town's planning consultants, the preliminary plan also will be reviewed by county officials.

The agency board's next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday. An agreement with planning consultants Sedway-Cooke of San Francisco and selection of financial consultants, both relating to the redevelopment plan, will be considered.

School Board Wants Learning Center Out

The Sausalito School District board dealt a blow to the Marin City Learning Center last night by instructing the district superintendent to take whatever legal action is needed to force the learning center out of Manzanita School.

The board, reaffirming an administrative order already issued by Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg, voted 4-1 to instruct Lindberg to seek help from the county counsel. Trustee Betty Times dissented, saying she agreed with the center but disagreed with the language of the resolution, according to Lindberg.

Royce McLemore, a spokesman for the center, restated the private school's claim to the unused building and said the school has no intention of leaving.

The building had been unused since last September when the school district decided to consolidate all its students into two Sausalito schools, Bayside and Martin Luther King.

Two months ago, a group of Marin City residents took over the vacant building and cleared it of trash and debris in preparation for the classes which began yesterday.

Lindberg said about a dozen parents of pupils at the learning center turned out in support of the school at last night's meeting.

The district intends to clear the school, then lease it to Marin City Community Services District, which in turn will allow several community groups in Marin City to use it.

New board member Jesse E. Berry was sworn into office last night. He recently was declared winner of a contested school board election July 18. He defeated Sausalito housewife Judith Silver.

Musical Review Index Published

The book published last month by Scarecrow Press is the first of its kind and is titled "Record and Tape Reviews Index — 1971." A 1972 edition already is under way.

Mrs. Maleady, a San Anselmo resident, worked on the book for nearly two years gathering reviews from 17 major monthly periodicals and weekly reviews.

Gas Sales Tax Will Be Listed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Gas stations in California will shortly be listing the sales tax on each gallon of gasoline.

Acting upon order of the attorney general's office, C. B. Christensen, head of the California Department of Agriculture, Monday asked all service station operators to comply immediately with the ruling.

Last week, Attorney General Evelle J. Younger ruled that the sales tax applicable to the retail sale of gasoline must be included in the posted price and in the dispenser computer price.

State Prison Term 'Given As Example'

Hoping to make an example of two admitted robbers and rapists, a Marin Superior Court judge yesterday sentenced them to state prison.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner showed no inclination toward a lesser sentlence for Charle. Moultry, 23, and Louis Charles Lee, 22, both of San Francisco, despite lengthy arguments by their attorneys.

"This is primarily for the purpose of deterrence to let other people in the state know there is a high price for this kind of conduct," the judge said of the sentence.

The two men pleaded guilty in July to robbing a Mill Valley woman of $5, then taking turns raping her. The admissions were on condition their prison sentences be concurrent and the judge ordered that.

Moultry and Lee were arrested March 29 by sheriff's deputies after a chase from Marin City across the Golden Gate Bridge.

The 28-year-old victim gave law officers a description of her attackers and their car after she was accosted in her driveway, then forced to ride around Southern Marin while they took turns raping her.

Lee was committed to the California Youth Authority when he was a juvenile and has served three jail terms for felony offenses since his release in 1969.

Moultry had fewer felony arrests and convictions, but was arrested in 1966 for investigation of an offense similar to the rape. That charge was later reduced to a misdemeanor.

"I think the record in this case indicates state prison," Gardiner said despite the claim by attorney Gary T. Ragghianti that the sentence would relegate his client, Moultry, "to the trashpile of human society."

Zoning Amendment Approved In Novato

The Novato Planning Commission last night approved an amendment to the zoning ordinance to relieve city council from reviewing precise development plans unless there is an appeal from commission approval or disapproval.

The commission also approved sending to the council next Tuesday recommendations to create a primary floodway and secondary floodway zones for the Novato creek floodplain.

It approved changing the name of Hill Avenue to Hill Road from Tamalpais Avenue to Indian Valley Road; having the council change the name of Hill Street beside Rancho School to some appropriate name and requested the State Division of Highways to remove the Hill Road sign from Highway 101 near Novato Creek.

The commission continued all other items.

It continued to next Monday consideration of 10 tennis courts and pool for the Olive Ridge Tennis club for A. Quartaroli, amendments to the South Diablo Triangle master plan, the plan for 32 apartments on 2.3 acres on the south side of Rowland Boulevard between Leafwood Drive and South Novato Boulevard, revisions of the sign ordinance with the Downtown Merchants Association, a report on the water tank to serve Woodland Heights subdivision and recommendations to Marin County Planning Commission to rezone industrial property on Deer Island Lane.

It continued to Sept. 25 the application of John J. Hernikl to construct a house within 18 feet of the front property line at 583 Fairway Drive.

The commission continued until Oct. 9 consideration of the tentative map of Valley Oaks subdivision of 92 houses on 22 of a 42 acre parcel south of Olive Avenue at Rita Court and rezoning from planned residential to administrative and professional, the land south of the Nave Shopping Center on the west side of South Novato Boulevard for Richard Connell.

It adjourned to 8 p.m. next Monday at the Novato Community House.

Request Honored On Observances

ATLANTA (UPI)—A request by a Jewish parent to drop Christmas observances in the public schools will be honored by the Parents-Teachers Association (PTA) at the James L. Riley Elementary school.

Don Knighton, head of the school's PTA, said the traditional caroling, Christmas plays and decorating Christmas trees would not be held this year at the request of Larry Bogart.

Bogart, who has two children attending the school, told the Fulton County Board of Education last week his children had been intimidated for not singing carols.

He said religion is a "personal experience" and asked the board to abandon Christmas observances at all schools.

The Fulton board and the Atlanta Board of Education, which also is considering the matter, have not yet decided on a system-wide policy.

Actress Ann-Margret To Undergo Surgery

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Entertainer Ann-Margret must undergo surgery for injuries suffered in a 30-foot fall off a stage platform. She has five bone fractures in her face, a broken jaw, a concussion and a broken left arm and is reported in "stable" condition at UCLA Medical Center.

FIRST IN LINE FOR BART

Mrs. Gertrude Guild (center) dropped her ticket into the automatic turnstile and became the first paying customer at the Lake Merritt Station of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District yesterday. Lake Merritt was one of 12 stations which opened for business along a 28-mile run between Oakland and Fremont. Service ran longer than scheduled yesterday to accommodate hundreds of riders who came out to inaugurate BART. One rider, Mrs. Shirley Fisk, left her car in the garage and took the train to work. "This is the end of the automobile for me," she said.

Nonpartisan Ballot Plea Is Rejected

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The U.S. District Court has ended the hope of former Marin County supervisor Thomas T. Storer to run as a nonpartisan candidate on the November ballot in the Sixth Congressional District.

The three-judge panel rejected Storer's challenge to the constitutionality of the state election code that makes it virtually impossible to qualify as an independent candidate.

The court's unanimous decision Friday declared that the Legislature had determined that "the orderly functioning of the electoral process is best served by promoting party loyalty to one of a reasonable number of parties."

The code was written to "discourage the confusion of a laundry-list ballot," the judges said.

Storer could not be reached to indicate whether he will appeal. The deadline to file even as an independent, however, passed last Friday.

Storer would have had to collect 9,322 signatures between Aug. 15 and Friday, and no registered voter signing his petition could have voted in a June partisan primary election.

Petaluma Homeowners Call For Volunteers

The Petaluma Valley Homeowners Association last night called for preservation of the Old Christian Church building and suggested renovation become a citizens project to reduce costs.

Publicity chairman Cheryl Heringer said members agreed the church building across the street from city hall should be preserved because of its historical value to the city.

City Recreation Director James R. Raymond said he has plans to use the building as a performing arts center. But said renovation to make the building safe for public use could cost $30,000.

Members said that volunteer labor should be sought and said if the city council will allow more time the homeowners group can launch a volunteer effort. The organization recently completed work at La Tercera Park, mostly with volunteer labor.

Raymond also presented plans for development of Lucchesi Park and asked association support if a bond issue is placed on the June ballot.

Mrs. Heringer said members were pleased with the park plans, but asked that Raymond return with a complete cost break-down on development before the organization endorses a bond issue.

British TV

LONDON (UPI)—Most British television programs are in color, but most sets still are black and white. Government statistics show 491,000 color sets delivered in the first four months of 1972, compared with 203,000 for the same period last year. The number of black and white sets is estimated at more than 15.6 million.

Re-Elect Nixon Center Opens

The Marin County Committee to Re-Elect the President has opened its telephone center at 5609 Paradise Drive, Corte Madera.

The center will be used to identify supporters of President Nixon and to recruit campaign workers. The committee hopes to recruit more than 1,000 persons to staff the bank of telephones.

The center is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

Music For Benefit To Foundation

Vocal and instrumental music will be featured at a benefit performance for the Marin Mental Health Foundation at 8:30 p.m. Eriday and Saturday at the Marin Veterans' Memorial, Civic Center, San Rafael, under the direction of James P. Funk.

Participating groups include the Novato Choraliers, led by Barbara Carter, a group of 29 girls featuring Broadway hits and patriotic numbers; The Generation Gap; Golden Gate Chorus of Marin, reviving the songs of yesteryear.

Also Prince Charles Jr. Pipe Band, featuring kilted pipers, drummers and dancers in an authentic Scottish presentation; Natural Blend, a singing trio; Village Baptist Church Choir with soul music and spirituals; Free Time Jazz Ensemble offering nostalgic tunes and rock rhythms; and Ron Colborn's pop group, Good News.

The Generation Gap will appear Saturday only and Good News will be heard Friday only.

Industrial Park Wins Approval

The Corte Madera Planning Commission approved last night, over its chairman's objections, "a sophisticated industrial park with office space, environment and architecture."

The approval was for a five-unit project at 200 Tamal Vista Boulevard to be known as Fifer Industrial Park, composed of warehouses and professional offices.

Commission Chairman C. William Thomas argued that the loading area behind the warehouses was inadequate and that a large truck trailer could block truck traffic by backing up to load or unload.

John Campbell, who presented the proposal, and developer Peter Hayward contended truck drivers could be made to park parallel instead of backing up, thus avoiding any traffic congestion. Hayward said he could redesign the project to allow more loading space but said that would take away the concept he was wanted for the town, "a sophisticated industrial park . . ."

Consideration had been continued since a public hearing Aug. 14 when commissioners complained about lack of access roads. Campbell pointed out that an access loop road has since been designed for the perimeter of the property.

Thomas warned Hayward that the project may come under the town's moratorium on development.

He said he was warning all developers of that possibility, the city council having slapped a four-month moratorium on all building and rezoning of residential property of more than one acre or five lots in July and approved an ordinance on first reading last week that could bar development for up to a year.

Nominee To Address Two Groups In Marin

San Francisco Supervisor Roger Boas, Democratic nominee in the Sixth Congressional District, will speak twice in Marin on Thursday.

He will address a breakfast meeting of the Northgate Lions Club at 7:30 a.m. at the Holiday Inn in Terra Linda, and at 10 a.m. speak before the League of Women Voters at the San Rafael home of Mrs. James Good, 310 Highland Avenue.

Second Meeting Set On Big Development

The Corte Madera Planning Commission chewed inconclusively for two hours last night on the controversial Madera del Presidio development.

Numerous minor changes in the plan, however, proved too much to digest, so commissioners scheduled a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in town council chambers to try again to resolve the lingering issue.

Walter Stromquist, representing Cal West Properties, developer of the 72-acre site above Koch Luggage, outlined the changes made at the request of the town's board of design review. The changes, approved last week by the board, include a host of landscaping details and a retaining wall on the north boundary.

Commissioners also said they want more details on the storm drainage system, a more extensive pedestrian path system and more study of the placement of garages and grading.

The developer's plan for the first 128 of some 500 units was heard by the board of design review a half-dozen times before going to the commission.

Corte Madera Planning Commission Also:

MADERA PARK — Received an opinion from Town Atty. Albert Bianchi that the Madera Park development in the Hidden Valley area was allowed under the moratorium as the town council in April had approved the concept. He said the ban applied only to areas that did not have prior approval.

OLNEY TRACT — Approved a tentative map of one lot of the Olney tract in the Hidden Valley area with the conditions that natural vegetation be preserved, the redwood grove near Fairview Avenue be dedicated to the town and that a parcel of land adjacent to county land be dedicated as open space.

TRUMBULL PROPERTY — Denied approval for a three-lot subdivision of Trumbull property located near Corte Madera Avenue until a general plan for the town is adopted. Commissioners expressed dismay at "any more piecemeal zoning."

PUBLIC HEARING — Scheduled a public hearing for Oct. 9 at 8 p.m. for a request from Pacific Gas and Electric Co. for a permit for a transmission line from San Rafael to its substation in Corte Madera.

SIGN — Heard Wade McClure of Ad Art Inc. withdraw his application for a freestanding sign at Colonial Liquors, 212 Tamalpais Drive.

REFUND — Denied a request from Karl Treffinger of San Francisco for a refund of a $65 filing fee to the board of design review for an application for a 10-unit dwelling at 5250 Paradise Drive which he subsequently withdrew.

WATER DISTRICT — Received a registered letter from William R. Seeger, general manager and chief engineer of Marin Municipal Water District that the district board will not respond to inquiries about availability of water on proposed sites until "after the execution of a pipeline extension agreement together with the deposit of the necessary money or bonds to assure completion of the proposed work." No comment was made.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned until Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at town council chambers.

University Of Panama Offers Chinese Study

PANAMA CITY (UPI)—The University of Panama has become the first official center of Sinology in Latin American with the inclusion in its curriculum of "Chinese Language and Civilization."

Panama has a large Chinese population brought here from China in the late 19th Century to work on the Panama Canal. Francisco Javier Hsu Pin, a 1971 journalism graduate of the university, will give the new courses.

Woman Sues For College Acceptance

A woman under21 whose parents live in Kansas has filed suit in Marin Superior Court against the College of Marin to win acceptance for study at the Kentfield campus.

The suit filed by San Francisco attorney John B. Clark on behalf of Joann D. Wirth of Reed Ranch Road, Tiburon, asks that a judge order the college to enroll her for the fall semester.

As an emancipated minor free from parental control, "She has a clear, present, and beneficial right to be admitted to the College of Marin as a student and resident of Marin County," according to Clark.

The Marin Community College District board which runs the college regularly excludes persons under 21 whose parents live outside Marin except when the court orders admission.

The college has argued it scarcely has facilities enough for children of Marinites, but Marin Superior Court judges have upheld the admission of emancipated minors in the past.

In 1971, Clark notes, a Marin judge decided against the college in a similar case and was upheld by the state court of appeal.

Jittery Munich Acts On Threat

MUNICH, Germany (UPI)—The Defense Ministry, already jittery due to the Olympic massacre, scrambled two jet fighters and closed airspace over Munich Monday night when it received a report of a nightmare plot to bomb the packed Olympic Stadium during closing ceremonies.

The F104 Starfighters spent an hour hunting an "unidentified flying object" which turned out to be an errant Finnish airliner.

The Defense Ministry said the painful episode began with a "confirmed police report" at 8:03 p.m. that "Arab terrorists" had stolen a private plane from Leonberg airport, near Stuttgart. The report said the terrorists planned to drop a bomb on the huge Olympic Stadium, packed with up to 80,000 spectators and several thousand athletes participating in ceremonies closing out the 1972 Games.

Twelve minutes later came the report that an "unidentified flying object" (UFO) had been picked up on civil and military radar screens. Defense Minister Georg Leber immediately ordered the two Starfighters off the runway at Neuburg airbase.

Leber also ordered all normal air traffic banned from the Munich area. The UFO responded by disappearing from radar screens.

At 9:05 p.m. came the word the search had been called off.

The UFO? An errant DC8 Finnair airliner. It had landed at Fuerstenfeldbruck military base near Munich after losing its way. The base was the scene of last week's massacre of 10 Israeli Olympic team members.

The stolen private plane did not exist. Police in Stuttgart said an aircraft had left Leonberg, but on a scheduled flight. It had landed routinely at its destination, Baden-Baden, a spa city to the south.

The police were unable to explain how the plane's departure had generated the report received by the Defense Ministry.

Whatever blushes the episode caused, it gave a graphic example of West Germany's state of nerves following the tragic events of last week.

On Sunday, an unidentified Frenchman in the Olympic Village reported he had heard shots—a report that brought out hundreds of armed police, equipped with tracker dogs. They found nothing. A police spokesman said the affair still is a mystery.

Accident Victim Listed Critical

A Fairfax man was reported in critical condition at Marin General Hospital today with injuries sustained in a motorcycle accident Saturday night on the Fairfax-Bolinas Road near Camp Lillienthal.

A companion, Kim Bannister, 16, of 127 Cypress Drive was treated at Marin General for multiple scrapes and bruises, according to hospital reports.

According to the California Highway Patrol, Bannister was driving the motorcycle when it went into a ditch at 11:30 a.m. Hultman was a passenger, according to the patrol.

West Germany Urges Action On Terrorism

ROME (UPI)—West Germany urged its European allies today to take collective action to stop terrorism such as the Olympic massacre in Munich.

Foreign Minister Walter Scheel told a meeting of the 10 foreign ministers of the enlarged Common Market that national security officials from all 10 nations should meet to counter terrorism.

Informed sources said the ministers decided to ask the Common Market's political committee, which meets later this month, to draw up detailed proposals.

The Palestinian attack on the Olympic village in Munich brought Europe onto center stage in the Middle East conflict and convinced many governments of the need for action. But there were strong doubts that all 10 nations would agree on what to do.

Western Europe gets almost all of its oil from the Middle East and is wary of offending Arab nations. British diplomats, among others, pointed out that an anti-terrorist program, to be effective, almost inevitably would have racist overtones.

While the foreign ministers met in a 17th century villa in suburban Frascati, finance ministers talked at the Treasury Ministry in Rome, with a joint meeting in Frascati scheduled for later today. The main item on the agenda was whether or not France will veto the scheduled European summit meeting.

All signs indicated the summit will be held. French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann praised an agenda drawn up for the meeting. And the finance ministers, in a Monday session, agreed in principle on a European monetary fund.

But Schumann said he might let today's meeting pass with no definite word on France's decision—even though the summit is tentatively scheduled for Paris on Oct. 19-20, barely five weeks away.

France first agreed to the meeting, then began to hedge when it appeared that the summit might discuss not only economic and monetary union, which France favors, but unified foreign and political policies, which it opposes. Early in the summer, French President Georges Pompidou announced that there was no point in holding the summit unless agreement was guaranteed in advance.

The other nine nations largely bowed to France's wishes, according to the 23-page agenda. It called for detailed progress on economic unity, but talked in generalities and platitudes about foreign policy and political unity.

France's refusal to say yes or no visibly angered its allies.

Weed Losses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Department of Agriculture estimates that crop loss from weeds ranges from 3 per cent for potatoes to 17 per cent for rice and soybeans. Ten per cent of the annual corn crop is lost to weeds and 12 per cent of the nation's wheat production.

15 Simultaneous Parties To Kick Off New Season

By MOLLY MARIN

To launch the 1972-73 season, members of the Marin Symphony Association are planning 15 parties Saturday from 5 to 8 p.m. The parties will be held simultaneously at 15 homes, where cheese and wine will be served and symphony musicians will play.

The purpose of the parties, according to Mrs. Mel Croner, membership chairman for the symphony association, is to reach persons in the county who are not familiar with the range of musical activities presented by the symphony.

"A Gift of Music for All Ages" is the theme for this year's symphony, which will present concerts by the Marin Youth Orchestra, Youth Orchestra Piccola, Workshop for Strings and the Music for Minors Program in addition to the symphony concerts.

Hosting parties will be Messrs. and Mmes. Stephen A. Fraser, Sausalito; Conger Fawcett, Leonard Asiano, Mill Valley; William E. Fuss, Tiburon; John F. Fassio, Kentfield; Ellis M. Stephens, Ross; J. S. Elkjer, Bok Reitzel, Joseph Kohlenstein, San Rafael; Jack Felson, Forest Knolls; John Wright, Inverness; H. William Nilsen, Novato; and Drs. and Mmes. Harold Brownstein, Greenbrae; John C. Bennett and Milton Hollenberg, San Rafael.

A GOOSE EGG doesn't add up to zero for Mrs. Le Roy Everett. When the Everetts returned to their home in Tiburon after 2 years in Cherry Hill, N.J., Jane Everett brought 75 goose eggs with her. She is famed as the fabricator of jewel boxes and elaborately decorated Christmas tree ornaments from such exotic eggs as ostrich, rhea, cassawary and guinea.

Friends in New Jersey collected the large number of goose eggs as a farewell gift. Mr. and Mrs. Everett and their daughter, Kathy, a student at the College of Marin are back in their home in Belveron Gardens, having returned this summer. Jane is being welcomed by fellow members of the Outdoor Art Club of Mill Valley, Belvedere Guild 1 of Sunny Hills and friends at Corinthian Yacht Club.

A 10 DAY scuba diving trip in Tahiti was a special vacation for Dr. and Mrs. Martin H. Long of Mill Valley. They stayed in Papeete and Pueu on Tahiti, and dove from chartered boats. They brought home no shells or specimens, but took many pictures. Both Dr. and Mrs. Long are experienced divers. They visited Capt. and Mrs. Omer Darr, former Mill Valley residents, on the island of Moorea.

FORMER MARIN County resident, Mrs. Grace C. Farley celebrated her 99th birthday at her home in La Jolla recently at a party hosted by her daughter, Mrs. William H. MacKay of Rossmoor in Walnut Creek, also a former Marin resident.

A SURPRISE HOUSE warming and 40th wedding anniversary party was given Sept. 3 for Mr. and Mrs. Michael Scotto at their new home in Novato by their daughters and sons-in-laws, Messrs. and Mmes. Steve Lewis and Jerry Hallett, all of San Rafael.

A buffet was served to the 75 guests, who also heard a tape recording of events in the couple's lives.

A DUAL celebration was held Aug. 30 at the home of Mrs. John Guendner in Larkspur. The 84th birthday of Mrs. Helen Ramey of Corte Madera and a six-week-European trip for Mrs. Lloyd Tucker of Larkspur were the occasions for the luncheon.

A DINNER party will be hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Edmond C. Ward of Kentfield on Thursday evening prior to the opera preview of "Norma" to be held at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Special guests at the Wards' party will be Dr. and Mrs. Jan Popper of Los Angeles. Dr. Popper is director of opera at the University of California at Los Angeles. He will present the preview of the opera "Norma" at the Barn at the center.

Other guests at the Wards' will be Mr. and Mrs. E. Paul Atkins of Ross, Mrs. John C. Alexander of Sausalito and Mr. and Mrs. F. Van Dorn Moller of Napa. Mrs. Alexander is chairman of the Marin Opera Action, sponsors of the preview, and Mrs. Ward is on the board of directors of the San Francisco Opera Assocaition.

YWCA Fall Schedule To Begin

The YWCA's series of fall classes and activities begins next week, and registration is open, according to Nadine Winston, executive director.

A five-week series on understanding contemporary art will be offered jointly by the Marin Jewish Community Center and the YWCA. Participants will have guided tours of galleries in San Francisco, studios in Marin, the Richmond Art Center, University of California Art Museum and the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art: Transportation is provided and lunch arranged.

"Doorstep Nature" is a series designed to train adults in nature perception and knowledge with a special field trip including their children. It is also cosponsored with the Marin Jewish Community Center.

School children will be able to experience creative drama in an improvizational drama workshop after school directed by Lynn Moody. Pre-schoolers are offered tumbling and musical gymnastics with Gerrie Kreuzer and creative dance with Bonnylee Degenhardt. Teen-ager can join the popular dance group with the Schulmans.

Ilyana will instruct evening classes in the ancient art of belly dancing in Mill Valley and for military dependents at Hamilton Air Force Base. Jazz dance through Margie Belrose is also offered.

Active sports include tennis with Hal Wagner and golf with Joe Colfer instructing.

There are active groups of fifth and sixth grade girls in Bahia Vista, Davidson Junior High, Marin City and San Marin. The groups are open to all interested girls.

Single mothers who are interested in coming together to share problems, solutions and resources are meeting alternate Wednesday evenings. The setting is informal and supportive. Women with special concerns of the single parent are welcome to join in sharing these problems and ideas.

New Attendant

Heidi Schindler of Marin is a new flight attendant with United Air Lines, based in Chicago. She is the daughter of Mrs. Marian Schindler of Mill Valley and Alfred Schindler of Sausalito. Heidi attended College of Marin and Sonoma State College.

THE BATTLE AGAINST LEUKEMIA

Squeezing 21 Years Of Joy Into Seven

By JOAN LISETOR

As Bob and Nancy Roach see it they squeezed 21 years of joy into seven, and for almost five of those seven years they lived with the knowledge that their daughter, Erin, had leukemia.

They lost Erin in April.

"In no way were the years a totally negative experience," Nancy Roach said as she sat galncing at the trees outside of the couple's hill top home in Mill Valley.

There was no basis for her fear, Nancy said, but she suspected Erin had leukemia even before the diagnosis was made when Erin was 2½ years old.

"When our worst fears were confirmed the initial shock was as if we were told she was dead, and I went into a mourning period for about two months," she said. "I felt so negative at first, and then one night I sat up in bed and realized it was time to stop feeling sorry for myself, that Erin needed me."

THE MOST important thing, Nancy said, was to give Erin as normal a life as possible, both emotionally and physically. This was difficult especially during the times that Erin's resistance was low and she was susceptible to contageous diseases. She had to stay out of crowds and home from school during these times.

"Probably the hardest thing to do was to discipline Erin," Nancy said, "but being normal I yelled and screamed at her, and, oh gosh yes, I got angry at her."

The Roaches are founding members of the Candlelighters Society, a group of parents whose children have been afflicted with cancer. Sharing experiences with other parents is what gave her strength, Nancy said.

"They had experienced things we were going through and by being with them I gained encouragement and strength," she said.

The Roaches are still very active in the Candlelighters, and Nancy has designed a greeting card, which is being sold by members to raise funds that are used to purchase equipment for local hospitals and help needy families with cancer stricken children. She has designed cards each year for three years as the group's main source of revenue. Mrs. Lawrence Stickney of Mill Valley is in charge of card sales.

MRS. ROBERT ROACH
'Stop crying and get on with life'

Members of the Candlelighters have looked to the Roaches for advise because they coped so well with life, but, said Nancy, "I wouldn't advise anyone to handle things just like Bob and I or inflict my philosophy, because everyone is different, but if sharing our experience helps I will do it.

"YOU KNOW, the world is divided into copers and noncopers, and as one mother put it, 'On Moday you may be a coper, and you may be a non-coper on Tuesday.' We made plenty of mistakes."

Following the diagnosis Erin was given a 1 per cent chance for survival, Nancy said.

"I had no false hopes, but I did fantasize when I heard about a new drug or new treatments," she said.

Erin had to be told she had a serious illness because of the treatment, but no purpose would have been served by telling her the name of the disease.

"She probably would have gone around telling everyone she had leukemia, and that would have made people uncomfortable," Nancy said.

A seriously ill person and the person's family often become isolated from society because people avoid them, Nancy said.

"AT FIRST you think it is because people do not care and then you realize they are avoiding you because they don't know what to say," she said.

"I avoided places and people because I did not want to make them uncomfortable, and then I realized this wasn't giving Erin the normal life I wanted her to have, so when I saw people I would offer, 'I'm sure you must be wondering how things are going with Erin,' and I would tell them how she was doing."

After Erin's death it became awkward again, Nancy said, but expressions of feelings from friends have meant so much, as does empathy.

"When you are suffering inside and someone offers just-sympathy, like a woman who used to grab my arm and look at me with sad eyes, it only makes things worse. You don't need that type of emotion," she explained.

When Erin lost her hair because of treatment Nancy went to great lengths to have a wig made for her only to find out that Erin didn't mind being without hair.

"All we got out of the wig was a day of pictures. The wig was uncomfortable and she couldn't stand it. In ordering the wig I showed emotion, not wisdom," Nancy said.

"Bob handled it so well. He and Erin looked in the mirror together. Bob is bald, and he told Erin, 'At least yours will grow back.' After that I made her some little cloche hats for when it was cold. I almost ruined a lot with my anxiety."

PEOPLE TEND to sell children short, Nancy said, because at 4 Erin understood the concept of death, its finality and all of the ramifications of death, especially the loss to the family. She experienced the death of a friend, who also had leukemia, and a cousin who was drowned.

"When her cousin died she was upset because everyone around her was upset. Finally she said, in effect, 'Stop crying and get on with life,'" Nancy said.

"Erin was not afraid to die, but she was afraid to be alone," Nancy said.

Will she have another child, Nancy said she is often asked.

"I call that the 'puppy syndrome'. Like when a puppy is run over and you go right out and replace it. No child is replaceable, and the loss is as great if you have many children or one. The only difference is if you lose your only child your life style does change," Nancy said.

"Erin taught me to live life to the fullest but with the reality that it will end. I don't want another child to have to die or another parent to lose a child."

Florida Named U.S. Capital For Honeymoons

The designation was made by Bride's Magazine which made a national survey of its readers. Publisher Robert M. Thorsen presented Lt. Gov. Tom Adams a mounted and engraved Steuben crystal bowl to commemorate the occasion.

More than 400,000 newlyweds will honeymoon in Florida this year, Thorsen predicted.

"We estimate that brides and grooms will spend in excess of $100 million for their Florida honeymoons this year," he said.

The Florida honeymooners, Thorsen said, represent 15 per cent of the estimated 2,192,000 marriages which will take place in the United States in 1972.

Contrary to what many people believe that "people don't get married any more," Thorsen said, "Marriage is at an all-time high in the United States," and shows a continuous upward trend.

Drug Use Signs In Children

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Health Insurance Institute says the following signs may indicate a child is on drugs: A tendency to sit looking off into space; an appearance of intoxication with no smell of alcohol; staying out much later than usual and giving evasive answers when questioned about his activities; avid reading of books and articles on the drug culture; loss of appetite; rapid loss of weight.

Horns Effective For Decorating

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
(Distributed by General Features Corp.)

Although there's been a terrific uproar about white hunters who go out and shoot disappearing species of animals, there's no need to bury or hide the beautiful horns and skins from animals that are already dead.

Nature is profligate, so we shouldn't waste or destroy the byproducts of any life-death cycle. There's something very appealing about horns and bone carvings from Africa. Many junk and antique shops have samples left over from the Victorian era.

Now one manufacturer, Tyndale, has offered a variety of horns for decorative purposes. I'm not clear as to whether these are fabulous fakes or the real thing, but they are effective.

If a little bit of naturalism is right up your decorating alley, but you don't have room for a super game room, why not find a small corner where you can create your own little jungle? Plants are proliferating as decorations now, so you might want to create a semigarden at the same time.

If you do include living plants (the only kind), try to use a nononsense floor covering. Vinyl flooring that looks like woodgrain would be fine. Or an indoor-outdoor carpeting would cover the area.

The easiest way to get a woodsy look is through the use of some dramatic wall paneling. Leave it unstained or use a clear coat of varnish. Don't worry about it once it's installed. Hammer nails in it, hang plant brackets from it — nothing about it to be kept perfect. It's natural, remember?

The room shown also uses some handsome nonjungle furniture by Tyndale. The superchrome-type table makes a nice surface for your finest china in between game sessions. So don't hesitate to serve a glamorous midnight supper for two in this same area.

For color, try painting one plaster wall in a deep terra cotta or sunny yellow. Instead of a hanging lamp over the table, which would obliterate the view of paintings or horns on the wall, try solving the lighting some other way. A chrome floor lamp with swing arm would probably do the job. Or just go completely primitive and resort to candles or oil lamps.

Wrong Window Can Be Fixed

NEW YORK (UPI) — If an off-center window in a smallish room poses a decorating problem, a shade, hung reverse — roll to hide the roller within the window frame, will come to the rescue by creating an illusion of more space — particularly when chosen in a color that blends with the wall.

You Can Cut Your Food Bill

A few cents, saved here and there at the grocery store, can cut your weekly food bill anywhere from 10 to 15 per cent, U.S. Department of Agriculture food economists find. Try it and see. Take breads and cereals as a starter. As you shop, remember:

Bread is less expensive than rolls. Day-old bread, if available? is even cheaper.

Hot cereals cost less than ready-to-eat varieties; unsweetened cereals less than sugared.

Whole grain enriched or fortified cereal products usually are less expensive (and more wholesome) than fancy crackers and special breads.

Figure the cost and then decide which is for your family.

Stop before you holler about your food bill. Chances are you've got a lot of other things besides food in your shopping cart. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, over one-fifth of the money spent at grocery stores goes for non-food items — things like soap, paper goods, pet foods, clothing, cosmetics, cigarettes and alcoholic beverages.

SMALL GAME in a small corner: The big game motif continues to be popular even though none of us wants to decimate the animal population. Just use what comes your way naturally to create a tiny home jungle area such as this one by Tyndale's Josef Head.

'Tennis Everyone?' — A Fast Growing Sport

NEW YORK (UPI)—That cliche about "Tennis anyone?" looks as if it could become "Tennis everyone."

The keepers of statistics say the emergence of professional tennis as a glamour sport has been paralleled in growth by the amateur game.

Michael J. Burns, director of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association (USLTA), says the sport is growing by about one million more players each year, that today the number of players in the United States alone is estimated at 11.5 million.

There's no count available on the additional millions of spectators of a sport that, according to Encyclopedia Britannica, has its roots in a family of games played in Egypt and Persia 500 years B.C.

Boutiques featuring tennis garb are proliferating—and profiting. So are the stores featuring equipment, the tennis camps, teaching pros, courts (4000 built last year) and something now to make tennis a year-round game—the sophisticated, covered indoor facility with special appeal to the women.

Some of these facilities provide luxury lounges, fashion shops, nurseries and babysitters, women's leagues and tennis clinics.

And that's not including the "gate" for tournaments such as the rich U.S. Opens which just finished at New York's West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills or the Virginia Slims tours for women professionals. Last year, the tour drew an estimated 170,000. By the end of this year, it is expected to reach half a million.

Nor does that total count the earnings of the professionals. Last year, for example, Billie Jean King became the first woman to earn more than $100,000 for a year at the game. Spokesmen for Virginia Slims said the average of its touring pros was $30,000 to $35,000 a year.

Undoubtedly, much of the growing interest, particularly among the young, results from the national and international championship play of the teenage and early 20s groups. They can make it, why not we too?

Two girls with the charisma of youth and fearlessness against older, more experienced rivals are Evonne Goolagong and Chris Evert.

Evonne, just turned 20, became the darling of tennis from the time she came out of Barellan, a little village in New South Wales, and took the women's singles title at Wimbledon last year, one of the youngest champs in the classic's history.

Evonne, curly-haired, happy-go-lucky, is one-eighth aborigine and one of eight children of a Barellan sheep shearer.

Miss Evert is from a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., tennis-playing family; her father, Jimmy, is a pro at Holiday Park. They called Chris a "happening" last year when, only 16, she made her first appearance in the U.S. Opens and made it to the semi-finals. Back this year, she also made it to the semis, but lost out on the try for the top to Kerry Melville, a 26-year-old Australian.

But that loss can hardly dim the luster of the tennis idol whose crowd appeal one admirer compared to "that of a Shirley Temple of another day."

The blonde Miss Evert smiles at the comparision and says matter-of-factly, "An idol? Whatever I have become means all the sacrifice of work and practice is paying off."

It will pay off in money when she turns pro at 18.

The Everts and Goolagongs were the youth sensations of last year and this.

But other fans other days remember the magic of such names as Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly, the Californian, who in 1951 took command of the tennis world, winning the first of three successive U.S. championships at Forest Hills before she was 17 and then going on to sweep various internationals.

Who will be the hearthrobs of the future?

It could be the likes of something different in tennis— identical twin sisters swatting it out. Jill and Joy Schwikert, of Los Vegas, Nev., have just turned pro and signed with the Virginia Slims tour. Their mother is a teaching pro in Las Vegas and the twins said they figured their parents let them sign on "mostly to get us out of the house."

Exercise Does Not Affect Childbirth

Physiological data compiled on 150 women athletes indicates that strenuous exercise and sports activity has no adverse effect on the women's childbearing abilities. In fact, female athletes equal or improve their physical performances after bearing children, reports Dr. Ekaterina Zaharieva of Bulgaria, who reported her findings in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jane Trahey, advertising success story and women's activist, believes the woman who wants to move into the executive suite should study carefully the nature of the company's management before she joins it.

"If you see management at the top all male, you know you're in a male-oriented company," she said. "You don't stand a chance."

If you're already working for such a company, get out, says Miss Trahey. She can't understand a woman "holding still" in a company where the men run the show and decide on the promotions.

"AND I could throttle the woman who says she'd rather work for the man," said the Chicago-born woman who owns her own Trahey Advertising Agency.

"Women are serfs in most offices," she said. "They do most of the work for less pay than the man."

Equal pay for equal work is in most instances just not the case, she said, although "there's a lot of tokenism in management today." But she continued in an interview, you can take a woman and a man graduating from college at the same time and the man will be hired for a better job than the woman. The woman probably will start as a secretary and work up. "It's a hard road," she said.

IN MOST companies, you have to be a "super spectacular" to succeed, she said. "And how many are that talented!"

Miss Trahey cited some of the fields where management is male-oriented—"most industry, steel, insurance, automotive, television." She would aim a career "in the professions where the women are...retailing, fashion, and advertising "if you're creative."

Jane Trahey's career began in Chicago after graduation from Mundelein College when she went to work in the morgue of the Chicago Tribune. "My mother used to phone and as soon as someone would answer 'the morgue' she'd hang up."

LATER, SHE worked in the advertising department of the Carson Pirie Scott department store in Chicago, then went to Neiman-Marcus in Dallas as the store's advertising director. She came to New York in 1956 as advertising director for the New York-based Kayser Co., clothing manufacturer. One year later she went into the agency business as Trahey Associates.

Hers is what she calls a "middle sized" agency, with billings of more than $1 million annually. In 1970, she was honored by her profession as Advertising Woman of the Year.

Among her writings are three cookbooks, two humorous novels, and a play "Ring Round the Bathtub" which opened this spring on Broadway and had a brief run but has caught the attention of the movie industry.

SHE WAS trying for a funny play, she said, "but audiences are not ready for laughs these days. Nor are they ready for a family play."

"Probably it's the nature of our times. We're constantly at war. Remember, we've not had a Mark Twain in a long time."

Miss Trahey supports the women's liberationist movement and has a story on old-fashioned manners in the July edition of "MS", the liberationist magazine.

She is not, however, the out and out militant of say a Betty Friedan or Gloria Steinem.

"There are different types of people," she said. "But if there's a serious problem, you have to have the guerrillas. The press won't cover a nice meeting."

Good Friends Can Be Truthful; Let Her Know About Her Ego

DEAR HELEN:

We have a problem with Terry, our girl friend: she thinks she's skinny but her stomach hangs over her pants and her hips are too big for short-shorts. What she does to a mini skirt is ridiculous. She insists her waist is 24 but it's more like 31!

When we walk down the street she thinks people are looking at her because she has a good figure, but they're really staring at her poor taste.

She we tell her, drop hr, or just keep on being — THE EMBARRASSED TWO

DEAR EMB:

If you're good enough friends, you can be truthful but tactful. Let Terry know this kind of ego only weighs you down, and she's fooling nobody but herself.

Sometimes a girl's mirror tells her only what she wants to see, and it takes PEOPLE to make her see what she really is. — SUE

DEAR EMBARRASSED:

Pointing out a girl's faults "for her own good" is risky business — unless yours is the special kind of friendship that can survive truthful hurts. (And somehow I don't think it is.)

My I.G.A.P. ("I'm Guessing Again Perception") tells me you'd just as soon change this threesome to a twosome, and you're using "embarrassment" to justify it. — HELEN

DEAR RAP:

I am a 14-year-old guy, and getting high grades in school has never been a problem. But I don't do well athletically.

Now the kids who don't do well scholastically are treated just fine by the school system, which makes sure that they are developed to their full potential. They are put into separate groups consisting of underachievers like themselves, so their precious egos won't be damaged. They are coddled, protected, given sympathy, and shielded from would-be verbal assailants.

Now let us consider how I am treated. As an "underachiever" in athletic ability, have I had the special attention given to my scholastic counterparts? No! I have been put in with everyone else who is almost certainly more able than I am at any sport. As a result, I have been laughed at, mocked out, and given patronizing looks from ignorant gym teachers.

Contrary to what you are probably thinking, I am not a scrawny little weak runt with bifocals. I am six feet tall, and have no problem coordinating my body movements. I certainly have potential. It is the same potential of the stupid kid who isn't really stupid. The only difference is that his potential i helped to develop and mine is painfully ignored. — MARTIN

DEAR MARTIN:

Rights Of Women Published

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The opportunities and rights of federally employed women are summarized in a new publication, "Calling All Women in Federal Service," issued by the Women's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor's Employment Standards Administration.

Directed to both present and potential employees, the brief guide outlines various acts and executive orders which eliminate barriers to women's equal employment opportunity in the federal government. It also describes special programs available to women civil servants, including counseling, training and upward mobility opportunities.

Federal regulations governing part-time employment, maternity leave, maternity care benefits, membership in unions and associations and political rights are also included.

Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan Koontz, deputy assistant secretary of labor and Women's Bureau director, and Mrs. Jayne B. Spain, vice chairman of the Civil Service Commission, urged all federally employed women to become familiar with and avail themselves of their opportunities.

Both cited the federal government as a "pioneer" in equal opportunities for women. In 1883, the Civil Service Act was passed to provide that women must be administered civil service examinations on the same basis as men. In 1923, the Classification Act required equal pay for equal work.

Single copies of "Calling All Women in Federal Service" are available from the Women's Bureau, Employment Standards Administration, U. S. Department of Labor, Washington, D. C. 20210. Multiple copies are available at 15 cents each from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402.

Aged Need As Much Exercise As Ever

As a person ages he or she needs as much exercise as ever. To maintain his ideal weight between the ages of 30 and 60, men should consume 11 per cent fewer calories and women five per cent fewer calories.

Dr. Ralph A. Nelson of the Mayo Clinic reported these findings based on a 30-year study of medical records of patients at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.

Stretch Capability

Spandex is a familiar man-made fiber used in foundation garments, swimwear, support and surgical hosiery, stretch slacks and ski pants. A principal characteristic is its excellent stretch capability. It also resists deterioration from salt water, perspiration, and cosmetics. Most garments made of spandex are machine-washable and dryable. But as with any item, check hangtags and follow manufacturers' care instructions.

'For The Enjoyment Of The People'

The measure before San Rafael voters in a special election one week from today reads:

"Shall the City of San Rafael . . . incur a bonded indebtedness in the principal amount of $2,250,000 for the purpose of raising money for the acquisition of 'open space' or 'open area' for the use and enjoyment of the people of San Rafael?"

WE LIKE THAT "for the use and enjoyment of the people of San Rafael." That's what preserving open space is all about — or should be.

"Use and enjoyment" doesn't mean that the open space should be cluttered up with roads and recreation equipment and refreshment stands.

We can enjoy a wooded hillside without climbing it. We enjoy a beautiful, unspoiled ridgeline each time we drive past — and if anything has brought home to Marinites the need for preserving open space, it is the perching of buildings (often distinctly unattractive ones, at that) along those ridgelines.

But there should be a path up that wooded slope or onto that ridge for those who want to take it. It should be accessible. And where the topography lends itself, there should be a picnic spot with some facilities for disposing of garbage.

THE SAMPLE ballot argument in favor of the bond issue (none against it was submitted) claims there is no conflict between this proposal and the countywide park district to be voted on in November.

"The city bond issue," says the argument, written by Mayor C. Paul Bettini, "provides an emergency measure of saving areas which are in immediate danger of being developed. On the other hand, the countywide district would provide a long-range program of acquiring open space both within and but mostly outside of the San Rafael city limits."

This pretty well states the case. Whatever the fate of the countywide district, the demands on it will be suchthat it cannot be expected to save much of the fast-disappearing open space in San Rafael. The city has a list of eight properties on which development already is proposed — which presumably would be top priority if the $2,250,000 bond issue is authorized.

THERE IS A FALSE belief that taxpayers suffer from keeping land in open space. On the contrary, many developments fail to produce enough taxes to pay for the public services they require. An investment in open space, where it is needed to preserve the quality of life, thus can also mean a tax saving over the long run.

It will require two-thirds approval for the bond issue to pass. We hope the turnout next Tuesday is large — and that at least two-thirds of the votes are "yes."

SACRAMENTO SCENE

California Hasn't Stinted Higher Education System

By RUS WALTON

The next time someone tries to tell you that California taxpayers have shortchanged their colleges and universities, don't you believe it.

In the past 10 years we have shelled out $6.45 billion to support our system of higher education.

Annual expenditures for taxpayer-supported higher education have tripled since 1962. Then we spent $366 million; this year we will pay out $1.13 billion. That will bring the 11-year total to $7.58 billion — and that is quite a bag of coins.

It goes to support nine University of California campuses and 19 state college and university institutions, and to help finance the greatest network of community colleges in the free world.

WHILE WE TAXPAYERS have been making it possible for more and more young people to attend the state's colleges and universities, we have also been increasing the per-student support. In 1962, support per student at UC was $2,576 a year; today it is $3,372. In 1962, support per student at the state colleges averaged $1,026; today it is $1,519.

Nothing stingy about that.

Per capita taxes for higher education have also increased during the past 10 years: from $21.29 in 1962 to $54.19 as of today.

At the same time state expenditures for higher education were increasing 208 per cent in 10 years, total enrollment rose 168 per cent: UC, up 80 per cent; state colleges, 167 per cent, and community colleges, 190 per cent.

University and state college personnel also soared. In 1962, there were 23,224 persons employed by the University of California; today there are 41,996.

TEN YEARS AGO on the UC campuses there were two "non-academic" employees for every one on the teaching staff. Today, the ratio is almost three-to-one; which means that for every academician, there are three persons filing or sweeping or mowing.

The state colleges had 11,944 employees on 18 campuses in 1962. Today that total has swelled to 29,716 and there are 4,200 more non-teaching employees than there are educators.

This year there will be about 963,000 students enrolled in the state's total higher education system: 107,340 on the UC campuses and another 233,000 in the state colleges and universities.

To most young Californians, however, higher education means a community college. Some 623,000 students will be enrolled in those two-year institutions this year. Of that total, about 105,000 will be adult or part-time attendees.

Ten years ago there were 70 community colleges in the state. Since then the total enrollment has almost tripled and today there are 95. The master plan calls for another 34 within the next 10 years.

THIS GROWTH, and projected growth, reflects not only an increase in the number of high school graduates going directly into the two-year "Junior" colleges, it also indicates that more and more adults are attending part-time to expand their knowledge or to up-date their technical job skills. Community colleges will continue to take a more important part as the economy becomes more technical, as leisure time increases, and as the trend toward "life-long" learning develops.

While enrollment continues to climb at the community college level, it is down at both UC and the state colleges. Both systems fell short of their estimated registrations in 1971 and both will probably fall short again this year.

Concern now is focusing on what will be done in the 1980s with all the facilities and tenured staff as enrollment continues to shrink.

Terra Lindans Ready To Pay For Open Space

Home from vacation and catching up with August papers, I see an Aug. 18 editorial on the San Rafael open space bond issue. A correction should be made on one point.

It is true that those of us in the CSD area of Terra Linda will not be able to vote on these bonds, but if we annex to San Rafael at the November election, we will as part of the annexation agreement help pay for them. Indeed, these are bonds for which we as a community will be happy to pay! A major reason for Terra Lindans to annex to San Rafael is exactly this point: to join with our friends and neighbors already in the city to help formulate new San Rafael plans for greenbelts among our few remaining — and ever more precious — open hills.

Transition In Source Of Power Predicted

The oil companies keep telling us how much they are spending to keep us with the elixir of life (oil). Baloney!

In my lifetime I heard the same cry from the coal companies when the transition came from coal to oil.

All power is from heat. Yesterday was coal, today is oil, tomorrow nuclear heat. When we run out of the necessary elements for nuclear power there will be another transition. The sun? Who knows.

It has already started, ships and submarines on nuclear power.

We will have cleaner air when the autos drive into a service station and get a package the size of a battery (nuclear power).

Could I be a visionary?

Fatal Brawl Not Related To Open Door

In your paper of Sept. 7 an article appeared about a drunken brawl at the Open Door, a "ramshackle coffee house" at the heliport where one man was killed and one wounded and one man arrested.

This coffee house is not ramshackle but in good taste. It is a church sponsored drop-in place which helps, materially and spiritually, young people who are travelling and are in need. It is run by the street ministry who are very humanistic and spiritual people who sacrifice their time to help. At no time did anybody drink in there and the altercation was totally unrelated to the place, outside of which it happened.

Accurate Reporting On New Thrift Shop

I want to thank the I-J for the excellent coverage and timing on its recent article about the opening at the new Marin Child Development Center Thrift Shop with the photograph by Bob Hax.

Primarily, however, I wish to compliment Pat Balmes for her accurate reporting about the shop and its purpose. I know how difficult it can be to distinquish the uniqueness of the center and its clients from other therapeutic and educational services and other handicapped youngsters. I am familiar with the reporting of Pat Balmes so I was not surprised at the careful way in which she conveyed the information. I hope we have the opportunity again to have the attention of Pat Bwmes. Reporters like her make the I-J a valuable asset to the county.

One point I would like to add is that we are now accepting donations of merchandise, used or new, for the shop, and all donations are tax deductible.

College Ethnic Studies Actions Questioned

The item in tonight's I-J (Sept. 7) on the appointment of an administrator at the College of Marin, and of opposition to same, is of interest on three points, two of substance, one of style. Substantively, it is deplorable that, as stated, there is still no ethnic studies department at Marin, four years after such a department was approved, and it is unfair to hire an administrator for ethnic studies, not give him a real program to administer, and take his position out of the teaching staff of an existing department.

I do not question Mr. Iraheta's abilities in the least — it is simply unfair to both parties to graft him onto a department in order to "make do", thus taking classes from previously hired teachers, and expect him to both teach courses, some of which are not in his field, as well as administer ethnic studies courses . . .

As to style, it is interesting to note that as soon as a matter of controversy arises, the board retires to chambers. As the I-J has noted before, the Brown Act is often circumvented, and public access to information slighted, by such actions.

Reason For Backing Arrigoni's Opponent

I wish to comment on Paul Peterzell's recent column in the I-J regarding Supervisor Peter Arrigoni, the air pollution board, and my related endorsement of Barbara Boxer.

First, let me reiterate that my endorsement of Mrs. Boxer has nothing to do with the nature of Peter Arrigoni's voting record. It has to do with leadership styles.

I have served with Pete Arrigoni on the City-County Planning Council for over two years. His conservationist record on that important body is consistent and strong; he could be relied on in a pinch. His record on the smog board has also reflected a pro-conservation, anti-pollution stance.

The Callahan-Walker debate, although involving issues of policy, was in a very real sense a matter of personnel procedures, and it would be unfair to take Peter to task for his vote there. It was an area where reasonable men, of which Peter is eminently one, can differ.

Peter's record of attendance at the smog board — and here I erred, based on information given to me — has been 29 out of 35 sessions. Given his role on the board of supervisors and the coincidence of budget sessions with smog board meetings, this record is not unreasonable. Peter has been a conscientious public servant, and I have been proud to work with him.

Watergate Cases Put Heavy Loand On Republican Judge

WASHINGTON — Federal Judge Charles Richey of the District of Columbia Court is carrying a burden that puts him under the heaviest responsibility. He is the judge who will hear both the civil and criminal cases growing out of the bugging of Democratic national headquarters, an unprecedented exercise in political espionage long since outgrown the sniggering designation of caper.

The immediate challenge is whether one or both cases will be heard prior to the election on Nov. 7. Judge Richey must thread his way through a tangle of legalisms if postponement is not to follow postponement, with the suspicion that the power of the judiciary is being used to keep back facts that might harm the Nixon-Agnew ticket.

The five men arrested with all the tools of espionage in Democratic headquarters at the Watergate on June 14 have not yet been indicted. The trail leads through a murkey underground to individuals who had connections with the committee to re-elect the President. Into the Miami bank account of one of the five, Bernard Barker, two large deposits supposedly intended for the committee — one $25,000 and another $89,000 — have been traced. Why? No one has come up with the answers.

EDWARD BENNETT WILLIAMS attorney for Lawrence O'Brien, Democratic chairman at the time of the breakin, has been taking depositions in O'Brien's suit for $1 million against the Nixon campaign committee. Judge Richey on his own initiative ordered the depositions sealed. His reason was that disclosure might prejudice the chances for a fair trial for the five.

Yet taking the depositions in a law office and not under the jurisdiction to a trial judge is inhibiting. The witnesses are not liable to discipline for circumventing the questions or for refusing to testify at all.

Judge Richey now says that when the deposition taking is complete in a week or 10 days, he will reconsider his ruling. By taking the seals off the depositions some of the mystery would be cleared up and the public could feel more confident that justice will not be so long delayed as to be irrelevant to the great issue of corruption of the election process.

THAT A BURDEN of this magnitude should be put on Judge Richey says a lot about the method of selecting federal judges and the way that a particular case falls to the lot of a particular judge. Granted that he may have the wisdom of a Solomon and the virtues of an Aristides the just, his origins have a bearing on the heavy responsibility he has assumed.

He was appointed to the federal bench on May 19, 1971. Prior to that he had been general counsel to the Public Service Commission in Maryland. Spiro Agnew, as governor, had named him to that post and he had continued to serve under Gov. Marvin Mandel. In Maryland he has been known as "Spiro's Man."

When the Espionage case came before the federal court, one judge, William B. Jones, disqualified himself. He did so because he had been a Democrat and was appointed in 1962 by a Democratic president.

SURELY IN THIS instance the circumstances cry out for not only a special prosecutor but a special tribunal to hear the whole case without fear or favor. It is too much to ask of a judge serving scarcely more than a year to pass on this issue with all its ramifications and with what is certain to be an increasing glare of public attention.

For that matter, why not a thorough Senate investigation by the judiciary subcommittee of which Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is chairman? On that committee are Senators Charles Mc. Mathias, Birch Bayh and Philip Hart. They could be counted on for a close look, with the right of subpoena, at the whole affair.

The zero scenario of those fearful of a cover-up is as follows: The two men involved at one degree removed at one degree removed and with what appear to have been links to the Committee to Re-Elect the President and the White House, E. Howard Hunt Jr. and G. Gordon Liddy, will go scot-free while the five caught in the act take their medicine. The harm to the President in this scenario is minimal. The harm to public trust and confidence will be maximum.

LOUIS CASSELS

Poor We Have Always With Us —It's Time To Recognize This

Millions of middle-class Americans cling stubbornly to the myth that no one really needs to be poor in America.

They reassure each other at dinner parties that "those people" on welfare are chiselers who are too lazy to work.

Even some members of Congress are addicted to the notion that the nation's multibillion dollar outlay on public assistance goes mainly into the pockets of people who could support themselves if they tried, but who prefer sponging off the taxpayer.

The fact is —and it IS a fact, not an attitude or an argument, but a hard fact —that we have millions of hard-core poor in this country who are dependent on public support because they cannot earn a living.

There was a time when welfare rolls contained a substantial number of potential wage-earners. But most of these were weeded out through various federal and private job programs in the 1960's. At the start of that decade, we had nearly 40 million persons —one fifth of the population —living below the official poverty line. By 1968, that figure had shrunk to 25 million, or one-eighth of the population. Since 1968, there has been very little change in the number of poor, which indicates we are getting close to the rock bottom figure of unemployables.

Further evidence of this is found in the fact that only 12 per cent of the people now classified as poor are physically able to work. And most of that 12 per cent are women, with small children. Able-bodied males comprise only about 1 per cent of the total welfare roll.

THE VAST MAJORITY of our poor are old people, children, sick or handicapped people, and unmarried women who have no job skills to market even if there were day care centers at which they could park their fatherless children.

"Tightening up" welfare rules with "work-or-else" requirements —a favorite prescription of taxpayers who resent the welfare burden —obviously isn't going to make a blind 70-year-old widow become a self-supporting wage earner.

The choice our society faces is starkly simple: Either we can put the hard-core poor on some kind of permanent government dole, or we can let them remain mired in poverty and deprivation. People who prefer the latter course are entitled in our democracy to advocate it, but they shouldn't be hypocrites about it.

MOST AMERICANS probably prefer the former solution, and the only real issue among them is how best to arrange the necessary dole. President Nixon proposes a government-guaranteed cash income of $2,400 a year for a family of four. His Democratic opponent, Sen. George S. McGovern, after backing away from an earlier plan which was an oversimplified version of what economists call the negative income tax, now espouses a plan very similar to but somewhat more liberal than Nixon's. He would give $4,000 a year, partly in cash and the rest in food stamps, to a poor family of four. Both Nixon and McGovern stress that no aid would be given to anyone who's able to work but refuses to take a job when offered.

Petaluma Teachers Complain — But Principally To Each Other

Petaluma teachers may be outstanding in the classroom, but as militants they'ra flunking the course.

The air in faculty rooms is practically blue with rage in nearly all schools, but for the most part teachers seem able to complain only to each other. Some gripes were aired at last week's session with the Petaluma Board of Education, but most teachers seemed reluctant to lay their cards on the table as board president Arthur L. Lafranchi had urged them to do.

Most have been with the district for 10 years and were out of college before protest movements became routine. While the teachers express outrage with the system set down by administrators, they seem as closely restricted by their own system and feel uncomfortable making demands.

THE TEACHERS seem tied to the old-fashioned classroom atmosphere and when they appear at board meetings it is they who take on the role of meek and mild students, hesitant to question the authority of the board.

The teachers also seem to lack unity and spokesmen. The Association of Petaluma Area Teachers is a mild-mannered group with a wide representation, while the Petaluma Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO) is quickly gaining the distinction of being the militant group. The growing spirit of competition between the two will not be helpful at a time when a unified voice is needed.

IN COTATI, where everyone seems to be outspoken, the city council seems to have organized a hassling campaign to persuade City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen to resign voluntarily.

The council avoids his advice and has all but bypassed him in dealing with city employees. It has become rare that the person who is Salfen's first choice for employment is selected by the three young councilmen. He may be wise to always see that his real first choice is somewhere down near the bottom of the list.

Salfen has continually said he's going to hang on despite his poor council relations and feels he can weather the storm, as he did last year when former Mayor John Groom was trying to oust him.

Just a few years ago anyone would have laughed heartily at the thought of tiny Cotati becoming a hotbed of political intrigue.

Mine Survivors Give Up Mining

WEISER, Idaho (UPI)—The two lone survivors of the Sunshine Silver Mine disaster that killed 91 co-workers near Kellogg, Idaho, have given up the trade and left the area.

Ron Flory said he'd miss mining, "but I don't think I could ever go underground again."

Flory and Tom Wilkinson, who survived together for several days in the gas-filled tunnels by finding an air pocket and eating the lunches left by dead comrades, enrolled in a construction school following the May 2 disaster.

Chiang Home After Case Of Pneumonia

TAIPEI (UPI) — President Chiang Kai-shek has been released from the Veterans General Hospital where he was treated for "a mild case of pneumonia," reliable sources said today.

U.S. Presidential Campaigns Mighty Tough On Canadians

WASHINGTON — Every four years 40 to 50 million Americans vow that if their man doesn't win the presidency, they will move to Canada.

This year is no different, and I have heard many of my dearest friends say, "If McGovern is elected, I'm taking the family to Canada." Or "If Nixon gets in for another four years, I'm leaving the country."

THE TROUBLE with these threats is that the Canadians take them seriously. Since they are so short on population, the idea of 40 or 50 million new immigrants makes their mouths water.

The Canadians start building new homes and schools to accommodate the disenchanted American voters. Shopping centers are constructed, contracts are given out for drive-in theaters and motels.

Night classes are given on how to treat the new arrivals. Welcome Wagons are beefed up and new factories are build to provide jobs for the millions of Democrats or Republicans who say they cannot live in the United States under a Communist Democratic or Fascist Republican regime.

To facilitate the move, Canadian customs officials are told not to open any luggage of American emigrants. Canadian Mounties are instructed to go easy on traffic tickets.

BUT WHAT inevitably happens is that after the election the 40 or 50 million people who vowed they would go to Canada change their minds and remain in the United States to stick it out under "That Man in the White House."

I saw it happen when John Kennedy beat Nixon. I saw it happen again when Lyndon Johnson beat arry Goldwater, and again in 1968 when Richard Nixon defeated Hubert Humphrey.

Canada was waiting with welcoming arms for all the people who said they couldn't live in the United States any more.

Nobody came.

THE GREATEST cause of anti-American feelings in Canada can be attributed to our presidential election-year promises which people in this country have failed to keep.

How long can the Canadians keep building up their country for people who promise to go there and then refuse to go?

At the moment Canada is in a terrible quandary. The ambassador in Washington has reported that 45 million Republicans have vowed to go to Canada if George McGovern becomes President of the United States. He has also reported that surveys indicate that 40 million Democrats will come if Nixon stays in the White House.

Canada must decide in the next few weeks whether to go through the motions of preparing for them or to ignore these vows as idle threats. Suppose this time all the people who say they're going to Canada really do? Yet suppose the Canadians spend all the money and nobody shows up?

IT SEEMS TO ME it's incumbent on every American voter not to say he's going to Canada unless he really means it. If he is sincere about it, he should notify the Canadian immigration authorities.

I know it's hard to ask people at the height of an election campaign not to make threats they have no intention of keeping about moving out of the country. All I'm suggesting is that if you want to tell someone you're leaving after the election, tell them you're going to France, where they don't care if you come or not.

Natural Childbirth Film Planned

The Childbirth Without Pain League will present the film, "The Story of Eric" and answer questions about natural childbirth techniques.

Juice, Not Wine For Astronauts

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—If astronauts aboard next year's orbiting Skylab missions want to toast to their success during the spaceflight, they'll have to do it with orange juice, not wine, the Space Center has ruled.

Dr. Malcom C. Smith, chief of food and nutrition at the Manned Spacecraft Center, said Sunday space officials had considered letting the astronauts take sherry aboard two scheduled Skylab missions next year, but later decided against it.

"There were so many things against it, that the 'juice wasn't worth the squeezing,'" he said. "We could expect criticism if such a beverage were carried."

Blanket Field Trip Policy Considered

The Lagunitas School District board last night decided that it would prefer that parents give permission but once a year for their children to attend all field trips.

Parents who drive children on trips will be required to have a California Highway Patrol sticker certifying their car is in safe operating condition. They also will be asked for a certificate showing they are insured.

The board will ask the county counsel to verify the legality of the blanket permission before adopting it as policy at its next regular meeting, according to principal Harry F. Roche. The board, he said, wants to be certain that the policy statement meets insurance requirements so that children would be covered on all field trips.

The board also added $1,000 to the $500 budgeted earlier for consultant fees, according to Roche, because of more requests than anticipated from the school staff for the use of educational consultants.

The Lagunitas School District Board Also:

AMENDMENT — Voted unanimously to oppose the Wakefield Amendment which would prohibit busing of school children.

INTERNS — Learned that the University of Massachusetts will send a supervisor to oversee 10 teaching interns now in the school district.

OPENING — The board heard a report by principal Roche on first day of school. Only 473 pupils attended out of an enrollment of 490. Roche told the board he expected higher attendance after the first few days.

No Leased Housing Rise Promised

Marin County Housing Authority staff last night assured Santa Venetia homeowners that the number of leased housing units in Santa Venetia would remain the same for the present.

Homeowners also were told at last night's joint meeting that the authority would be more selective in choosing tenants for the existing 17 leased units in Santa Venetia, according to Gail L. Guillory, Santa Venetia Improvement Association publicist.

She said a liaison committee of residents was appointed to open lines of communication between the association and the housing authority.

Homeowners have complained of poor unit maintenance and tenant selection.

Under leased housing, a landlord leases his home or apartment to the housing authority, which in turn rents it to a low-income person for a price based on income. The remaining rent is paid by federal subsidy.

The housing authority board will hear a complete staff analysis of its leased housing program at 8 p.m. Sept. 20 in civic center planning chambers.

The association decided to hold its regular meeting on the first Monday of each month at 8 p.m. in Santa Venetia Middle School rather than John MacPhail School, Mrs. Guillory said.

Mill Valley Kidney-Defect Tests In School Approved

The Mill Valley School District last night agreed to participate in a program offering first through fifth-graders urine study for possible kidney defects.

The testing — sponsored by the Marin County Chapter of the Kidney Foundation of Northern California — will be done during October, according to a school district official.

Participation in the tests will be voluntary and parents will be asked to sign permission slips before their children are asked to bring urine samples to school.

The Mill Valley School District Board also:

STULL BILL — Adopted interim guidelines for the implementation of the Stull Bill, a state law which requires school districts to establish criteria to evaluate the performance of teachers and the ecuational progress of students.

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE — Endorsed a proposal from the county's school board association to establish a legislative committee which would monitor legislation in Sacramento of interest to local school boards.

RAILROAD — Agreed to write the Mill Valley City Council, opposing any proposed use of the railroad right-of-way near the new Mill Valley Middle School for a steam railroad or high-speed trains.

PORTABLE — Agreed to lease a portable classroom to Tamalpais High School District for adult education classes for $1,500 per year.

Trustees Will Tour School

Fairfax School District trustees will tour White Hill School grounds today at 7 p.m., then meet for a board meeting at 7:45 p.m. in the school.

The board will inspect a proposed debris disposal site on the school playground to determine how the area may be filled to raise the lot level, according to Gwyneth McGee, board secretary.

The board also will review a staff evaluation policy and hear a report on early childhood education.

Moratium Ordinance Shift Due

The San Anselmo Planning Commission last night postponed adoption of one of the strictest temporary bans on building, rezoning and subdividing in Marin County after deciding the ordinance requires revision.

"Commissioners put the ordinance under microscopic inspection and asked that some portions be reworded" for clarity, according to John T. O'Rourke, assistant city engineer.

He said the ordinance, first drafted by City Atty. John G. Buresh, will be redrafted by Commissioner John H. Colteaux.

The commission will consider the redraft at 8 p.m. Sept. 18 in city hall, O'Rourke said.

The four-month measure, which could be extended for up to two years, is intended to cover all undeveloped parcels, large or small and all commercial lots whether developed or not, he said.

The ordinance will have a loophole for builders by including a variance procedure and waiving the $25 variance fee for applicants who could develop without a variance in the absence of the proposed emergency ordinance.

Although the moratoriums adopted in other cities in Marin have concentrated on larger parcels of land, the San Anselmo ban would prevent any permanent change to undeveloped land without a use permit, he said.

The San Anselmo Planning Commission also:

CEDAR STREET — Denied Anthony Moreno's application for variances necessary to construct a duplex at 250 Cedar Street after a vote produced a 3-3 deadlock, with Commissioner John H. Colteaux abstaining. Some commissioners felt the impact of the proposal would be too great, while others believed a variance in order because of property slope, according to O'Rourke.

OAKWOOD AVENUE — Denied Dennis B. Channings's application for a two-lot subdivision on Oakwood Avenue after neighbors complained of density, traffic and congestion.

SUBDIVISION — Approved B. Kirchner's application for a two-lot subdivision at 249 Los Angeles Boulevard after making a lot line adjustment.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Sept. 18.

Sewer Charge Plan Delayed

Tiburon Sanitary District directors last night postponed any decision on establishing a sewer service charge at least until 1973, according to Robert A. Steerling, board secretary.

He explained the directors believed they must first determine the possible impact of a proposed Tiburon redevelopment agency on the sanitary district's assessed valuation. The district has always been financed on property tax revenues, Sterling said.

He reported that the directors also met with officials of the Tiburon Ecumenical Housing project, former Hilarita housing, and the district agreed to annex the housing project and provide service.

The directors also offered to serve developer Neil Smith's planned ecological school and some 40 proposed homes at Paradise Cove, after an extensive discussion of Smith's hopes to keep the area as natural as possible.

The board also approved grading plans for a new treatment building which will bring the district's plant up to tertiary treatment standards, Sterling said.

Hamilton's Sewage Fees Are Raised

The Novato Sanitary District Board last night approved a new agreement with Hamilton Air Force Base raising the amount that the district now receives for sewer service to the base.

The base will pay $2.44 per family unit per month compared to $1.05 in the past, according to Charles A. Joseph, engineer-manager.

The Air Force now pays approximately $14,000 per year he said. The new agreement will bring between $4,000 and $5,000 more per year to the district, he said.

The Novato Sanitary District Board also:

STUDY — Approved the district staff studying the infiltration of storm water into the sewer system. They will study flow during dry and wet seasons to determine source of leakage. Then they will figure methods to correct it and how much it would cost, Joseph said.

MAINS — Approved plans for a main extension 300 feet long on the east side of Wilson Avenue north of Shields Lane for Harold Aguirre and accepted the main extension to 16 lots of Tamack Estates at the northeast corner of Vineyard Road and Sutro Avenue for Kaehler-Timmer Construction Co.

RETIREMENT — Received notice of the retirement of plant manager George Gasper on Dec. 1. He has been with the district 17 years.

Candidate Picks Four Cochairmen

The four are former Fourth District supervisor George Ludy of Inverness, county planning commissioner Margaret Azevedo of Tiburon, Harold Hyde of Corte Madera, chairman of James Dougan's unsuccessful June campaign in the district, and Herbert Hawkins of San Anselmo, cochairman of the Marin County Democratic Central Committee.

Azevedo and Hawkins, who do not reside within the Fourth Supervisorial District, said they were backing Peevey because "the actions of any supervisor affect the entire county." They said Peevey's campaign "has brought together traditional enemies — people who otherwise would not even speak to each other."

Agency To Consider Asking For District

The Marin County Redevelopment Agency will considerasking the board of supervisors to create an assessment district to raise money to construct a second access road into Marin City at its meeting at 8 p.m. today in the planning chambers of the civic center.

According to Executive Director Wallace K. Sheppard, several prospective developers consider a second access route from Tennessee Valley essential to the success of any future housing developments in Marin City.

Autograph Session

Mill Valley author Jean Montgomery will autograph her latest historical novel for young people, "Passage to Drakes Bay," Saturday afternoon at Golden Hind Books in San Anselmo.

School Woes Tackled In Kentfield

Trustees of the Kentfield School District last night tackled scheduling and class size problems at Adaline E. Kent School, finding only temporary and partial relief.

The board voted to hire two part-time teacher aides for two weeks to help alleviate crowding in some classes.

Meantime, administrative staff told the board, it will attempt to find ways to meet requests for longer laboratory periods in such subjects as mathematics and science.

The board said it would hold a special meeting if necessary to consider a solution.

In other matters, the board approved hiring of Richard Birkett as a temporary teacher at an annual salary of $9,220 and of Frace La Boube as a part-time secretary at $318 monthly.

Traffic Flow Will Be Altered

Projects in progress on Highway 101 which will alter traffic patterns or affect the flow of traffic tomorrow were announced today by the state Division of Highways.

Sections of freeway involved are:

HOME BURNS IN CORTE MADERA

Corte Madera firemen scramble to the roof of the Vasili Gera home, 55 Mohawk Avenue, to fight a smoking blaze which gutted the kitchen and garage and left the rest of the house badly damaged. According to firemen, the fire started at 11:20 a.m. yesterday when carburetor solvent heating on the stove burst into flame. Andy Gera, 25, was treated at Marin General Hospital for second-degree burns of the right hand and forearm. The fire was contained in 20 minutes. Damage was estimated to be $20,000. Fairfax Council Rejects Drake Boulevard Widening

The prospect of a broader, busier Sir Francis Drake Boulevard through Fairfax was summarily disposed of last night by the city council. (Another council story, page 1.)

Since Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Broadway are to be resurfaced in the next few weeks, City Engineer Benjamin C. Albritton presented two possible plans for inexpensively improving traffic flow in downtown Fairfax.

Plan Two would have killed the 12 to 14 parallel parking spaces along the Parkade side of Drake and replaced them with another traffic lane.

Mayor Albert E. Gately said, "My concern is that I think every merchant on the north side of Sir Francis Drake, including the post office, except the beauty parlor, involve short stops. I couldn't see eliminating those parking spaces for those merchants on that side of the street."

But others, businessmen and spectators alike in the audience of 30, worried more about increased traffic. Said one man, "I think we worry too much about hustling traffic out of town. I would like to see some tickets hung on them when they don't stop for pedestrians." He was applauded.

Emmett Davidson of Fairfax feared adding even one lane would set a precedent for widening the thoroughfare to West Marin even more.

The council then by a 4-1 vote adopted the plan leaving Drake at two lanes. The county is now widening Drake in Kentfield despite opposition from the Marin Community College District Board, but has met opposition for any further widening from cities farther up the valley.

Councilman E. Ross Parkerson cast the only negative vote. "We are acting a little hasty, it seems to me, but that's the way it goes," he said.

The Fairfax City Council Also:

HUMAN RIGHTS — Agreed to find two volunteers to work with the Marin County Human Rights Commission.

MALPRACTICE — Continued to its Oct. 10 meeting an applicationby a group trying to hold a street dance outside the Pavilion to raise money for malpractice insurance needed for a proposed free clinic at Fairfax Community Church, because it wanted to find out more about support for the clinic and plans for the dance.

OPEN SPACE — Supported by a 3-2 vote the priority list for open space acquisition of the proposed county open space preservation program assuming the fifth priority item, rim of the Corte Madera drainage basin, includes much of the ridgeland about Fairfax. Councilmen Lee Nelder and Robert R. Souza voted against.

TOILETS — Heard a request by Fire Chief Charles Thornton to build toilets next to the refreshment stand at the city ballpark instead of on a retaining wall near the Bank of America, but the council unanimously stuck by the site previously approved.

SHRUBBERY — Voted 3-2 to cut the cost of landscaping around city hall from $1,181 to $540 by using grass seed and cheaper stone instead of sod and river-washed flagstone for a walk. Councilmen Parkerson and Frank J. Egger opposed, apparently favoring cutting the cost further.

FIRE ENGINE — Approved plans and specifications for a new 400-gallon-capacity fire truck and decided to go to bid for the project although Thornton favored buying it from Van Pelt and Co. of Oakdale. Budgeted is $38,000 for the truck.

DEBRIS — Declared debris on a parcel at Olema and Manor roads owned by Eugene Campini a nuisance and ordered the lot cleaned up.

PEDESTRIAN WAYS — Asked city staff at Egger's urging to report back anytime on the condition and location of pedestrian rights-of-way in the city.

PLANNING CONSULTANT — Took no action on hiring a planning consultant for the proposed Canon Village and Tennis Club on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard west of Manor Road and scheduled a discussion on the suit filed by the developer, Denkmann and Co., for a closed session with the planning commission at 7 p.m. next Tuesday at the women's club.

DESIGN REVIEW — By a 4-1 vote (Nelder opposed) reminded the city design review board to strictly enforce the new sign ordinance, Egger having expressed worry about two applications for variance pending.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Monday for a public hearing on the proposed zoning ordinance.

Five youths were injured yesterday, three of them seriously, in an automobile accident on Tiburon Boulevard, near Greenwood Beach Road, Tiburon Police reported today.

Michael Beryle, 17, of 46 Peninsula Road, Belvedere, was also reported in satisfactory condition with a cut chin, cut ear and cut hands.

The three youths were injured at 3:30 p.m., according to police, when a van driven by Luchessa crashed into a ditch alongside Tiburon Boulevard.

Police said Luchessa was speeding in his 1964 Dodge van and tried to pass another car. He hit the brakes when he realized he couldn't make it, but the van swerved into the curb. The van flew into the air, flipped over, and landed upside down in the ditch.

Two other Tiburon youths received minor injuries, Joseph Francis Hart, 17, of 5 Audrey Court and Jon Tone Airola, no age, 145 Stuart Drive.

Coast Guard Plans Will Be Discussed

Representatives of the Coast Guard will hold an informational meeting at 7:30 p.m., Thursday at the West Marin School in Point Reyes Station to explain the status of their building project and sewage system.

The meeting, sponsored by the Marin Coast Chamber of Commerce, is aimed at reporting changes in the housing plans of the Coast Guard from a year ago and the possibility of local residents hooking up to the proposed sewage system.

Wanted: A More Spectacular Plan

The San Rafael City Council last night took its first look at plans to develop courthouse square and called for a project "more spectacular" than has been proposed by the McKeon Construction Co. of Sacramento. (Two other San Rafael City Council stories, page 1)

Though one councilman said plans should proceed as proposed, others urged use of more stylish architecture.

The firm has proposed an eight-story office building (described as "boxlike" by the mayor parallel to A Street, a two-story office structure and a multilevel parking garage.

Attorney Albert Bianchi, representing McKeon, told the council that the project was a "several million dollar risk" and requested guidance before instructing McKeon to make alterations. Noting three council votes were required to approve the project, Bianchi said he was seeking advice from the "three final arbiters of good taste."

The planning commission Thursday unanimously approved plans for the project after recommending changes in traffic, parking and building location.

The council last night rejected a commission request that the eight-story structure be moved 10 feet toward Fourth Street when concern was expressed that the project might be delayed if returned to the county for concurrence.

Under a city-county agreement, at least 21 per cent of the 79,032 square-foot parcel is to be left as open space at the Fourth Street frontage. The 10-foot shift, which had been urged by the commission to allow more open area fronting Fifth Avenue, would require endorsement by the county which owns the land.

McKeon Construction Co. of Sacramento has paid the city $10,000 for the land, and must pay a $640,000 balance by Oct. 25.

Councilman Fred E. Jensen issued unqualified support of the plans as proposed by McKeon. "It's a nice layout and I wish we could start tomorrow," he said.

Other councilmen appeared less enthusiastic, but agreed development of the site was essential to the economy of San Rafael's downtown area.

Mayor C. Paul Bettini said the eight-story structure looked like a box and should be reduced in height if possible. "I want something more spectacular. . . an entrance of pillars or Spanish type gates," he said. Other councilmen nodded approval of architecture more in keeping with that of Mission San Rafael Archangel on Fifth Avenue.

Councilman Lawrence F. Mulryan said he was concerned with the bulbous appearance of the eight-story building's elevator.

Councilman John A. Miskimen, noting an appeal has been filed on planning commission approval of the project's use permit, did not comment on the plan.

The planning commission, meeting today at 7:30 p.m. in city hall, is expected to rescind its request that the buildings be shifted toward Fourth Street.

The City Council Also:

HILLSIDE AVENUE — Upheld planning commission denial of the Meadowhill Corp.'s request for a four-lot subdivision on the south side of Hillside Avenue between Ross Valley Drive and Westwood Drive.

DRUG FACILITY — Upheld planning commission approval of a Marin Open House drug treatment facility at 918 C Street after John MacPhail Jr. withdrew his appeal of the commission action.

DERBY — Approved a proposal by the San Rafael Jaycees to hold an Orange Crate Derby on Oct. 1 on the east side of Gallinas Avenue adjacent to Hoffman School.

BIDS — Called for bids for the supplying of road materials for 1972-73 and set 2 p.m. Sept. 25 as the time of bid openings.

SAN PEDRO ROAD — Approved a sanitary sewer drop manhole and acquisition of additional storm drain pipes in connection with the South San Pedro Road project at a cost of $5,700.

ANNEXATION — Agreed to meet jointly with the Terra Linda Community Services District board Sept. 28 in Terra Linda for an informational hearing on annexation of te district to the city. The time and place of the meeting have not yet been set.

MARIST — Approved 4-1 addition of a recreational swimming pool to a tennis club proposed for a portion of the Marist property at 1675 Grand Avenue. Mayor Bettini opposed the pool proposal, and agreed with concerned neighbors that a pool would create undue noise in the area.

REDEVELOPMENT — Set 8 p.m. Oct. 24 in city hall for a public hearing on redevelopment.

APPOINTMENTS — Announced that the terms of parks and recreation commissioners Norma Wall, Fred E. Jensen and Robert Schoen expier Oct. 1, and called for applicants.

MEETING — Set Oct. 30 as the date of its second regular meeting next month because of a conflict with a League of California Cities conference.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Sept. 18.

Belvedere Casts An Eye At Sub-Par Building Lots

The Belvedere City Council last night formed a three-man committee to look into the ticklish problem of how to deal with more than 100 contiguous substandard building lots in the community.

By a 4-0 vote, with Councilman David E. Bordon absent, the council appointed Councilman Allan Seinau, City Atty. Robert E. McKay and Leslie Graham, chairman of the city planning commission, to look into possible revision of the city's building ban to deal with the substandard lot question.

Although the planning commission and city planning consultants have recommended that no new construction be allowed on such lots, which adjoin property owned by the same person, Steinau said last night he believed the city should "meet each case . . . separately."

Property owners have protested to the council that they should not be prohibited from developing adjoining lots under their ownership because city building lot minimums were changed since the lots first were recorded. They claim financial hardship as well.

The three-man committee first will report to the planning commission, followed by city council consideration.

The Belvedere City Council also:

OPEN SPACE — Unanimously endorsed Tiburon's $1.5 million open space bond issue to be considered at a special election Oct. 3.

PARKS — Heard a recommendation from Gorge McCoy, director of the parks and recreation commission, that the city budget $3,000 a year for the next two ears to pay its share of repairing tennis courts at Del Mar School. On his suggestion, the council authorized City Mgr. William L. Cavalli to work with Pacific Gas and Electric Co. to get lights in the park.

BUMPS — Authorized extending bumps across San Rafael Avenue in order to slow traffic. As an experiment the city had placed the bumps half-way across.

FIRE WARNING — Voted to spend $2,500, with firemen transferring $500 from their budget, to buy a $3,000 Plectron alerting system for volunteer firemen. Plectron is a radio-like warning device in the firemen's homes which can tell them where to answer an alarm.

FIREPLUGS — Agreed to buy six fire hydrants at $270 each to be installed by Marin Municipal Water District on Acacia Avenue.

SAUSALITO — Supported the City of Sausalito in its request that Wolfback Ridge be included in the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

USE PERMITS — Denied use permits and variances to build on substandard lots to Steven Warren of 310 Belvedere Avenue, Cleon Arnold of 6 Paradise Cove and Allan Hulme of 10 Madrone Avenue.

DEBRIS — Passed an ordinance regulating rubbish and water dumped in the streets.

RECORDS — Introduced an ordinance requiring the seller to furnish the buyer of all available building records and reports.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Oct. 2 at city hall.

City Attorney On Hub List

The San Anselmo City Council will consider the recruitment of a new city attorney when it meets at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

John G. Buresh, San Anselmo's city attorney for the past 22 years, announced his retirement on Aug. 22 and though no effective date has been set, "we need some policy clarification," according to Alfred C. Kaeppel, city administrator-controller.

Kaeppel said that six applications for the post had been received, adding that the council would determine an application filing deadline.

The council will consider an appeal of planning commission approval of a use permit for a child care day center at 241 Los Angeles Boulevard.

The council will also consider a request by the City of Sausalito for a resolution urging inclusion of Wolfback Ridge in the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

Training Positions Will Open Soon

The San Rafael office of the State Department of Human Resources has been allocated 20 classroom training positions under the Manpower Development and Training Act.

The slots will go to disadvantaged unemployed, with disadvantaged Vietnam veterans getting top priority, according to Robert Beebe, manpower training specialist.

A disadvantaged individual is described as one who is unemployed and seeking employment, has an annual income not exceeding $2,000 and is one of the following: a school dropout, under 22 years old, over 45 years old, handicapped, a parolee or a member of a minority group.

HERE ARE SOME "BRASS TACKS" ABOUT AUTOMOBILE BUYING

Automobile SELLING is highly competitive business. The dealer with lower overhead REALLY has a competitive advantage. He can use this advantage to give his customers better deals.

In Marin County overhead IS lower and you'll find BETTER deals than you can find "over the bridge" - AND the service is LOCAL!

$500,000 Suit In Death Plunge

SANTA CRUZ (UPI)—The parents of a teen-ager killed in a fall from the boardwalk roller coaster have filed a $500,000 damage suit.

The Santa Cruz Seaside Co., owner of the boardwalk, and Arrow Development Co., Inc., manufacturer of the roller coaster cars, were named as defendants in the superior court action filed Monday by Mr. and Mrs. William D. Crook, Saratoga.

The Crooks accused the companies of negligence. They said there were "inadequate restraining apparatus" to hold the passengers in the cars and the cars were "carelessly and negligently" operated and maintained.

No Conflict Of Interest Ruled

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— City Attorney Thomas M. O'Connor has cleared two architectural firms of any conflict of interest in current renovation at San Francisco International Airport.

The architects are Dreyfuss & Blackford and John Carl Warnecke. The firms are designing a segment of the airport expansion program.

Another College Year

Four Prisoners From Nevada Now In Marin

Four Nevada State prisoners said by prison officials to be "prime movers" in a recent punger-strike there, have been transferred to San Quentin Prison.

According to San Quentin information officer Joseph R. O'Brien, the transfer of the four was done under the terms of an interstate agreement on the handling of prisoners.

The four will be interviewed later this week by the warden's committee at San Quentin to see where they will be placed in the prison, O'Brien said.

The committee will decide whether the Nevada State transfers will be placed in maximum security or integrated with the other prisoners.

Sheriff Shorn Of Long Locks

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — San Mateo County Sheriff Earl B. Whitmore has been forced to go back on a pledge that he wouldn't cut his hair until all nine inmates who escaped from the county jail last March were back in custody.

Whitmore's shoulder-length gray locks were snipped after he was handcuffed to a chair by members of the International Footprinters, a county association of businessmen and police.

Olympians Cast Eyes Toward 1976 Games In Montreal

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Editor

MUNICH (UPI)—The call went out, in the clear cool night air of Bavaria, for the youth of the world to "meet again in Montreal four years hence, in cheerfulness and concord" for the 1976 Olympic Games.

The moment was more poignant than ever before, because the 85,000 people in the Olympic Stadium here were all too well aware that the 1972 Olympics being formally closed will go down in history as the one in which gunfire destroyed "concord."

And there had to be wonder about what four years from now will bring in Montreal when once again the athletic youth of the world tries to meet for 15 peaceful days of competition in sport and game.

The Montreal organizers, whc have not completed their final preparations for the physical facilities or the program, have promised to "return the games to the athletes," an indication that the '76 games will be on a considerably less lavish scale than the $620 million enterprise staged by West Germany here.

In addition, there is an important congress of the International Olympic Committee scheduled in Varna, Bulgaria, in August 1973 at which many changes in the program will be proposed, among them the elimination of all team sports.

And, too, the Olympic movement now is coming out of the "Brundage era," which will end officially Sept. 30 when Avery Brundage, the 84-year-old Chicago millionaire who has been president of the I.O.C. for the past 20 years, steps into retirement and is replaced by Lord Michael Kallanin, a bluff, hearty Irishman with ideas different in many respects from Brundage.

So the shape of things to come in the Olympics is not clear today as the 12,000 athletes and officials who came here for the games, or at least the thousands still here on closing day, scattered to their homes in all parts of the world.

But if two notes came through clear and loud in the 55-minute-long closing ceremony Monday night in Olympic Stadium it was the determination of Olympic officials that their movement shall not die as a result of the violence here, and the exuberance of the youths assembled.

This was, supposed to be a toned-down closing ceremony, out of deference to the memory of the 11 Israeli team members who came here in peace and died on Sept. 5 when Arab guerrillas invaded the Olympic Village.

And the German organizing committee eliminated several items from the planned agenda for the windup of what they had originally billed as "the happy games." Bavarian dances and other festive music were eliminated.

But as the ceremony was carried off, it was hard to tell that any gaiety had been eliminated. The mood was one of youth's natural gaiety and optimism breaking out of the gloomy events of the past week.

There was no playing of "Auld Lang Syne," and there was no singing of "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow" for Brundage.

Only in few moments Brundage with tears in his eyes said "Auf Wiedersehen" to the people of Munich and told them, "We have celebrated these days of radiant happinesss with one another and have borne the difficult hours of terrible sorrow together with you all."

But when the time came to leve the stadium, as the band played its liveliest tune of the nght, a jazzed-up version that was played at the medals ceremonies during the games, the natural spirits of young people broke forth.

Going out, they flung their arms about each other, the athletes from some 120 nations, and loped around the track. As the large electric scoreboard at one end of the stadium flashed the five-ringed Olympic emblem and the words "Montreal 1976," groups of the athletes began waving at the crowd. The mood of excitement grew.

Then groups of athletes broke ranks and took one last buoyant run around the red track. Among the most exuberant, were those of Britain and Australia, Kenya, Mexico and Argentina.

If the Olympic spirit is to climb back from the tragic events here, the impetus could come from that precious spirit of youth.

Cablegrams Render Support For DeMont

The 20th Olympiad is over, thank goodness, but the talk about Terra Linda's Rick DeMont being stripped of his gold medal in the 400-meter freestyle event goes on.

Dr. Robert P. Knight Jr., a San Francisco psychiatrist, whipped off four cablegrams to Olympic officials in Munich shortly after the decision was made to take away Rick's medal, because traces of a drug, ephedrine, was found in his urine specimin taken after the race.

The calbegrams, which gave the professional opinion that the officials' swimming decision was all wet, were sent to Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee; Clifford Buck, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee; Dr. Winston Riehl, U.S. Olympic team physician, and Prince Alexandre de Merode, chairman of the Olympic committee on drugs.

Said the message:

"DATA APPEARING in article in Journal American Medical Association, Aug. 28, 1972, entitled, "Drugs and the Athlete," by Dr. Donald Cooper, Oklahoma State University Hospital, Stillwater, Oklahoma, stated clearly that no medical-scientific evidence exists which proves that any drug, including ephedrine, improves on the performance of any athlete. This article must be read before any effort is made to take away the gold medal from swimmer Ricf DeMont."

Dr. Knight sent a copy of the Cooper article to the I-J and said he felt there were two main points in the article. First, accoridng to Knight, no drug taken by an athlete has ever been proved, by medical-scientific research, to improve an athlete's performance in competition. His second point to be stressed was that frequently only the medal winners are subjected to the urinary tests for drugs and the losers rarely tested. Yet, on the whole, says Knight, far more losers will reveal the residuals of some sort of drug in their urine.

KNIGHT SAID it was the responsibility of someone on the Olympic Committee to know what drugs were in the medicine Rick was taking, since he listed the remedy, Marax, on proper forms before ever competing in the Olympics.

According to the 1972 edition of the "Physician's Desk Reference," a publication sent to all physicians in the U.S. free, Marax contains atarax, ephedrine and theophylline. Knight quotes this reference: "Ephedrine is of significant benefit in symptomatic relief ... in bronchial asthma. Theophylline is a particularly useful drug in the treatment of bronchial asthma. Atarax modifies the central (nervous) stimulatory action of ephedrine preventing excessive excitation in patients on Marax."

In other words, ephedrine alone can be called an "upper" but when it is included in the medication, Marax, it isn't.

KNIGHT RIPPED THE Olympic Committee and said it was a shame that DeMont had to take the punishment for its mistake. Said Knight: "None of the athletes, at least from the U.S., may be professional, but the Olympic Committee itself has to be professional, especially when it comes to drugs, medication, health, illness, and other such matters which belong to the province of the medical doctors (or at least pharmacologists).

"In other words, the blame for this incident is based on the ignorance and incompetence of the Olympic Committee itself (persons claiming to be professionals), not on Rick DeMont who, as Dr. Cooper stated at the end of his article, 'engaged in hard work, self-discipline, practice and sacrifice ...' "

But it's going to take more than a group of old men sitting around a table to stop this 16-year-old swimmer. If there is an Olympics in 1976, Rick will be back.

Healthy 49ers Set To Face San Diego

Combined AP & UPI

REDWOOD CITY — All San Francisco 49ers regulars should be healthy and ready for their National Football League opener against San Diego Sunday in Candlestick Park, Coach Dick Nolan says.

The Chargers edged the 49ers last month in an exhibition game in which cornerback Jimmy Johnson suffered a shoulder separation. Johnson and fullback Ken Willard, who also has been on the injury list, should be ready Sunday, Nolan said Monday.

Defensive end Cedrick Hardman, who had knee surgery during the off-season, has played in two exhibition games and may start Sunday, Nolan indicated. But running back Doug Cunningham and safety Mike Simpson, who were reserves last season, will remain on the injury list at least through Sunday, he added.

Marin, Southern Sonoma In High School Grid Stampede

High school football, which stepped gingerly into the spotlight last weekend with a nonleague game in Marin County and a jamboree in Sonoma, turns into a stampede this weekend.

Ten games will be played by high school teams from Marin and southern Sonoma Friday and Saturday, including two inter-county clashes. The junior college season also will open.

Marin Catholic High School's game with Rancho Cotate will be played Friday at 8 p.m. at the Rohnert Park school, instead of Saturday as originally scheduled.

The Wildcats, coming off an impressive 25-0 victory over St. Elizabeth of Oakland in the only game played in Marin last week, will face a team which went unbeaten last year. Rancho's victory was one of only two blemishes on the 'Cats' 1971 record.

Petaluma will play Sir Francis Drake in a Saturday twilight game at 5:30 p.m. at College of Marin in Kentfield in the other inter-county clash. The game was moved up from its original 5:45 starting time, Drake athletic director Carl (Red) Brown announced today.

The year's first night game will find Terra Linda playing host to Concord at San Rafael High Friday at 8 o'clock. The same field will be busy Saturday night as San Rafael hosts Lincoln of San Francisco, also at 8.

The only other games in the area will be held Saturday afternoon, when Riordan of San Francisco visits Novato at 1 and Cloverdale treks to Tomales at 2.

On Friday, San Marin High will journey to Healdsburg and Redwood will travel to Antioch, both at 8 p.m. Saturday, Tamalpais will play Bishop O'Dowd in Oakland at 1 p.m., and St. Vincent of Petaluma will confront De La Salle in Concord at 1:30.

College of Marin opens its non-league season with a jaunt to Merced College at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Bill Lee did a couple of things he wasn't supposed to do last night, to the delight of the Boston Red Sox, but he also didn't do something he was supposed to do, to their chagrin.

What Lee did was pitch 5⅔ innings, about double his normal work load as a short reliever, allowing just three hits and one run, after bailing out starter Sonny Siebert.

He also turned slugger, hitting a home run over the left field fence in the fifth inning to tie the game at 5-5. It was his first hit of the year.

Baltimore, meanwhile, crept within half a game of the top as Boog Powell hit a three-run homer to defeat Milwaukee, 3-2, and give Mike Cuellar his 16th victory.

NBA Hawks Get Erving Court Nod

NEW YORK (UPI)—An Atlanta superior court judge today cleared the way for basketball superstar Julius Erving to join the Atlanta Hawks of the National Basketball Association.

Judge G. Ernest Tidwell of Central Superior Court of Fulton County, state of Georgia, declared that a contract Erving had signed with the Hawks on April 10, 1972, was "now in full force and effect."

Erving, who starred last season with the Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association, has filed suit against the Squires, claiming that his multi-year contract with them was fraudulent. The 6-foot-6 former Massachusetts star then signed a contract with the Hawks.

Raider Quarterback Starter In Question

Neither quarterback looked sharp last Saturday night as the Raiders fell 16-10 on a wet field at Dallas, but coach John Madden hinted that the 26-year-old Stabler might be at the controls when the regular season opens Sunday at Pittsburgh.

"Probably the way we started tonight is the way we're leaning," Madden said of his starting lineup against the Cowboys.

Later he admitted there would be two changes, but that probably referred to cornerback Willie Brown and Jim Otto, two injured stars.

Otto's return is amazing since he was first announced out for six to eight weeks when he hurt his knee two weeks ago against Buffalo. But now he is apparently ready to start the season to keep alive his 168-game streak.

Brown missed the Dallas game because of wisdom teeth problems, but will be back. Young subs Dave Dalby and Alonzo Thomas looked great while filling in for Otto and Brown as the Raiders continue to show their great depth.

The Raiders Monday swapped veteran wide receiver Gloster Richardson to Cleveland for a 1974 draft pick. Richardsøn, acquired earlier this year from Dallas, previously played four seasons with Kansas City.

Fingers Falls; A's Drop Two

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—The A's' number was 15 going in and 15 coming out as Oakland dropped a tough pair of battles with Minnesota while Chicago downed Kansas City.

It closed the White Sox to within two games of Oakland just when the A's had seemed on the brink of blowing the race wide open.

It will be Jim Hunter going for win No. 20 tonight against Ray Corbin of Minnesota.

Monday's twin bill was taken by the Twins 2-1 and 3-2 and in each case it was a case of Rich Reese coming off the bench just in time to make life miserable for Rollie Fingers, who had come out of the bullpen.

Sal Bando unloaded a 400-foot homer to tie the count with two outs in the ninth but then Fingers took the loss when he gave up a single to Danny Thompson and a double to Reese, who had been brought in to replace Harmon Killebrew for defensive purposes.

In the nightcap, it was 2-2 in the ninth with Fingers again on the hill when Minnesota loaded the bases. Darold Knowles came in just in time to walk Reese, but it gave the second loss of the evening to Fingers.

Wayne Granger got the win in the opener even though he gave up the Bando blast. Bert Blyleven went the route for the victory in the nightcap.

Hart 'Showcased;' Giants Impressed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The wise guys said that Jim Ray Hart was brought up from Phoenix this fall to be "showcased" for a trade, maybe to an American League.

But the veteran belter has put on such a good show that he is likely to be back on the Giants' roster next spring.

He has hit three homers and, more importantly, showed none of the defensive lapses that have hurt him throughout his career.

"We've had many offers for Jim Ray," Manager Charlie Fox said Monday, "but the way he has played since coming back the offers will have to get better. In fact, we may not accept any of them—Jimmy looks that good to us right now."

Hart and the Giants open a two-game series in Candlestick Park tonight against Los Angeles with Tommy John (115) scheduled to go against the guy who has emerged as the ace of the Giants' staff this year, Ron Bryant (11-6).

The Hart Story Of Ups And Downs

Jim Ray Hart once again is trying to turn the clock back. He will be 31 next month. And that is an advanced age for a baseball player to pick up the pieces of a broken major league career.

Hart no longer is the happy-go-lucky kid he was in 1963 when he made his major league debut in Candlestick Park July 7. That was a Sunday and a record crowd of 42,787 jammed Candlestick to watch a doubleheader between the Giants and Cardinals.

HART, IN HIS debut, got two singles in the opener, one a 13th inning hit that tied the score 3-3 and kept the Giants alive for a 15th inning victory.

In his first time at bat in the nightcap, Hart's left shoulder was fractured by one of Bob Gibson's fast balls. Hart didn't appear in the lineup again until the final week of the season and he was hit in the head by a fast ball that sailed away from Curt Simmons in St. Louis.

So Hart's first season in the majors started with a broken shoulder and ended with a king sized headache.

IN 1964 HART hit 31 homers. Everyone predicted a great career for him. By the end of the 1968 season he had a total of 139 homers. In the first week of the 1969 season at San Diego he jammed his right shoulder in a pickoff play at first base. He hit only three homers in 1969.

Hart no longer could swing a bat as he once did. Even after a belated operation in 1970, Hart's home run swing was curtailed. And his throws from third base were erratic.

In 1970-71, Hart led a yo-yo, up-and-down life between Phoenix and San Francisco. He was dispatched to Phoenix this year before the Giants broke spring training camp. Then, he was recalled on May 12 but in nine games hit only .190, including one homer. And again he was sent back to Phoenix May 24. Nobody expected to see Hart in the majors again.

BUT THIS YEAR at Phoenix Hart hit .324, including 18 homers, 30 doubles, seven triples and 75 RBIs. So on Sept. 4 the Giants summoned him to the big time once again. There was lots of roster room because the 25-player limit now had been raised to 40 as it always is during the final month of a major league season.

On Sept. 5 in San Diego Hart hit a ninth inning homer that tied the score 3-3 and the Giants went on to beat the Padres 4-3 in 11 innings. The next night Hart hit a three-run first inning homer that started the Giants to a 6-0 win behind six-hit shutout pitching by Ron Bryant. It was Hart's 154th major league homer.

"I never gave up," said Hart. "My shoulder doesn't hurt any more."

FOR JIM RAY Hart that was a long speech. In all of his previous years with the Giants, Hart never said more than a couple dozen words. And he never said a harsh word about anyone. Even when Horace Stoneham banished him to Phoenix from the 1971 Spring training camp of the Giants after Hart reported out of shape, Hart wasn't angry although saddened.

When asked whether he intended to play himself into shape as Stoneham ordered, Hart said: "I'd better."

ASIDE FROM HIS injuries, Hart didn't take care of himself like an athlete should during the years he was belting homers. But the reports out of Phoenix this year gave Hart good conduct marks. One major league scout reported that Hart admonished a couple of young Phoenix teammates for curfew violations.

"Don't try to do it the way I did," Hart was reported to have told them.

Wooden Discusses Cage Row

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — John Wooden, ever the diplomat, refuses to be drawn into the great Olympic basketball controversy but the man who has coached UCLA to six straight National Collegiate Athletic Association titles says "it would be better if we accept our defeat."

Commenting Monday on Russia's much-discussed 51-50 victory over the Unites States in Saturday night's Olympic finals, Wooden said:

"We've got to face that we lost. It doesn't do us any good to mourn what has happened. In the long run, people aren't interested in the particulars. They're only interested in the final result.

"I was terribly disappointed we failed to win. I don't want to go into the reasons for it, though. I don't think it's in good taste to make excuses."

Wooden, whose Bruins will be shooting for their ninth national championship in 10 years this winter, was "surprised" at America's first defeat ever in Olympic basketball competition.

"I didn't think it would happen this year," he remarked. "In fact, I was more surprised at Russia beating us (the U.S.) in basketball than us (UCLA) beating Nebraska in football."

Despite the defeat, the UCLA coach of 24 seasons said America remained No. 1 in the world in basketball.

"I don't think they've (the other countries) come close to matching us yet," Wooden declared. "They're closing the gap but we're still out in front.

"Normally, the teams we sent to the Olympics are stronger than the other teams. I definitely believed we were stronger this year, too. But sometimes you can have an off game. Obviously, we had an off game against Russia."

A Gold Medal Winner's Distress

By MILTON RICHMAN

MUNICH (UPI) — The last day matched the general mood in the Olympic Village. Gray, dismal and overcast. There wasn't much laughter to be heard.

In the recreation area, where the athletes from all the different countries gathered during their off-time each day to play chess, ping pong or miniature golf, there was no one in sight.

Many didn't even bother waiting for the early evening closing ceremony in the Olympic Stadium which traditionally winds up the games. They had packed their belongings and hurried home.

If you had to put your finger on the prevailing feeling among those who lingered for those last few hours, it would have to be one of fruitlessness and disillusionment, a sense of not having achieved what they had really come here for.

Randy Williams, the 19-year-old U.S. gold medalist in the long jump, didn't have to think long when someone wanted to know how he felt about these Olympics now that they were coming to a close.

"Disappointed," replied the Fresno, Calif., youngster.

Disastrous for a 19-year-old kid who had come over here and won himself a gold medal?

"We put so much emphasis on gold," he said. "Winning gold medals is considered more important than winning friendship and peace. You've seen that flame on top of the stadium, haven't you? It's supposed to symbolize peace and friendship, isn't it? Those doves they turned loose and those balloons they sent up are symbolic of the same thing. Peace and friendship. Still there was Rhodesia and then the Israelis."

The politics here also distressed Williams, a University of Southern California student.

"When the Olympics no longer have politics in them, they'll be good, but I don't think that'll ever happen," Williams said.

"The old fogeys at the head of this thing run it like some kind of military institution. They think in terms of 1936 instead of 1972. The average athlete is 24. The guys running things are 65. How can they identify with the problems of somebody 25?"

Yes, Williams said, he was talking about the U.S. Olympic committee members.

"They're too old," said the young long jumper. "Certainly there's a generation gap. How could there help but be?" You take these Olympic committee guys. They stay at some of the finest hotels in Munich. They pay $5 a day for a room. Someone's picking up the tab. Who's doing it? Regardless, when a kid has a problem and wants to call home, these guys tell him they can't afford the money for such calls."

In common with practically all other U.S. athletes. Williams has little praise for the work of officials here at the Olympics, particularly those who were assigned to events in which the U.S. was involved.

"The referees and judges were a farce,'(he said.

Williams merely is echoing most of the other athletes. They not only say the officiating was bad, but also say they came here essentially to engage in sports and games and found themselves engaged in situations they never dreamed. Situations like bloody Tuesday when Arabs terrozied the Olympic Village and ultimately killed 11 Israelis.

Unhappy Times For 2 Veterans

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Woodeshick and Jim Nance, both 10-year veterans, were dropped by the Philadelphia Eagles Monday as National Football League clubs pared their rosters to the regular season limit of 40 players.

BITTER

"I'm extremely bitter, there's no avoiding it," Woodeshick said Monday after learning the news. "I love this ball club and the people in Philadelphia. Nobody deserves a winner more than they do."

Woodeshick, in his prime one of the finest power fullbacks in the NFL, has been plagued by knee injuries in recent years. But he claims the only thing bothering his leg this year is a cyst.

CASTOFFS

Also released by the Eagles were veteran tight end Don Brumm and rookie linebacker Will Foster.

Mackey, meanwhile, was seething because he hadn't been waived. Once the most feared tight end in football, Mackey has been dropped to second string behind Tom Mitchell and is looking to play elsewhere. The Colts want him to remain as a backup man.

REPORTS

Another Thomas — Duane — was also in the news. The controversial running back, traded from Dallas to San Diego earlier this year, talked with Charger Coach Harland Svare Monday but left camp again for the umpteenth time. He has yet to put on a San Diego uniform.

"I'd have to say now he isn't going to play," Svare said. "I don't know what to think. I can't believe he doesn't want to play. He has never told me he doesn't. With him it's difficult to tell.

IRREVOCABLE

Most clubs were expected to announce their final four cuts, which must be made by 4 p.m. EDT and are irrevocable, today. Waivers cannot be recalled on any of the final four cuts this week.

In moves announced Monday, Atlanta dropped quarterback Leo Hart, punter Billy Lotheridge, tackle Steve Okoniewski and running back Bill Holland and Denver sent tight end John Mosier to Baltimore, apparently to take Mackey's slot on the Colts' roster.

Dallas waived veteran linebacker Leroy Caffey and four rookies—Charlie McKee, Brian Goodman, Harvey Phillips and Robert West.

Giants' Baseball Attendance

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In 1957 the New York Giants drew only 653,923 fans to the Polo Grounds and owner Horace Stoneham decided to move his baseball team here.

The magic number — at the turnstiles —for this year's Giants is 44,936. They need that many paying customers for the remaining seven home games to match the 1957 season total.

The lowest attendance mark for the Giants in their first 14 years here was 740,720 in 1970.

In 1958, they played at tiny Seals Stadium but still drew 1,272,625 fans.

"That 1957 team wasn't a good one," Giants great Willie Mays recalled this spring before being traded to the New York Mets. "We were a lot better in 1958, and I think we would have done pretty good if we'd stayed in New York.

"But no one asked me what I thought," he added.

In their first years here, the Giants were assured of great crowds whenever the Los Angeles Dodgers came to town. A crowd of 13,584 for Sunday's doubleheader with Cincinnati pushed Giants' 1972 attendance to 608,987 for 62 home dates. The 1957 New York total was for 68 dates and was the lowest home attendance in the league.

This year the Giants may again be last in the National League in attendance. It's a close fight with the San Diego Padres, the only team under them in the division standings.

Carlton's Toughest Audience: Himself

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Steve Carlton's toughest audience is himself.

The superb left-hander, who seems to be almost singlehandedly keeping the Philadelphia Phillies from sinking into the International League, came up with what most observers thought was another fine performance Monday night.

But a flyball home-run and a lack of support at critical times proved Carlton's undoing as the Phils suffered a 4-2 loss to the New York Mets. The&loss left Carlton with a 23-9 record and three of those losses have been at the hands of the Mets. This loss just about ruined any remote chance Carlton had of reaching the 30 figure.

Carlton, who leads the league in starts, victories, shutouts, complete games, innings pitched and strikeouts, wasn't about to talk about the fact that the Phillies left six men on base in the first three innings when they had a chance to break the game open.

Instead, he discussed what he felt were his shortcomings. "The bases on balls beat me," he said, "I had five walks and more 3-2 counts than I've had all years. The fast ball kept sliding over the plate." But Manager Paul Owens was a more sympathetic viewer. "He didn't pitch that poorly," he said. "The guy is only human and you have to give the Met batters some credit. But I would settle for that kind of a game from my pitchers anytime."

He added, "We had Jerry Koosman on the ropes ih the first couple of innings. With one hit at the right time, we would have won the game 5-4 or 6-4 and everybody would have been happy."

Carlton was beaten by Duffy Dyer's homer that snapped a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning. Duffy also tripled in an insurance run in the eighth inning.

Koosman, now 9-11, went seven innings to get the win and Tug McGraw went the final two innings for his 23rd save.

Philadelphia got both of its runs in the first inning on Larry Bowa's single, a walk, Greg Luzinski's run-scoring double and Roger Freed's sacrifice fly. But the Phils couldn't take advantage of their other opportunities and were blanked the rest of the way.

In the only other games in the National League, Houston edged Los Angeles 4-3 and Montreal blanked St. Louis 4-0.

Many experts think Cesar Cedeno is the best young player in baseball and he showed why as the Astros edged the Dodgers. Cedeno not only singled in a run, he saved the game with his glove. With two out and two on in the ninth, Willie Davis hit a shot up the alley that seemed likely to win the game for the Dodgers 5-4. But Cedeno snared the drive with a diving catch to end the game and preserve the Astro triumph.

Mike Jorgensen drove in three runs with a double and his 12th homer and Balor Moore pitched his second straight shutout as Montreal blanked St. Louis. Moore allowed just six hits as the Expos pulled into a fourth place tie in the Eastern Division with the Cardinals.

FISH AND GAME

Trout Fishing Comes To Life

By AL GIDDINGS

Last week after our most successful sage grouse hunt, I ended the column with our arrival at Webber Lake near Truckee, in Nevada County. We had planned, if we were successful on the grouse hunt, to spend a day trout fishing at Meadow Lake about eight miles above Webber.

Usually about Sept. 1, the weather in this area really cools which in turn cools the surrounding lake waters. The trout then seem to come to life and some prize fish are taken. At Webber Lake things were still slow, although a state Fish and Game netting crew had recently taken a small net sample of the fish of the lake; the catches were inspiring.

A GOOD NUMBER of brook trout weighing a pound or so were netted, and one brown that weighed about eight pounds created lots of excitement for the anglers there, especially when this monster was held aloft for all to see, then released.

At Meadow Lake, the temperatures were down, so Mary, my wife, and I launched a cartop boat along the shoreline, rowed out a block or so, and dropped anchor. We used fly rods with two-pound test monofiliment, a size eight bait hook, and either roe or nightcrawlers for bait. We used the strip-cast method without a sinker, and then waited for a pickup. It was, perhaps, 10 minutes before I nailed into a good rainbow.

Mary caught the largest fish a few minutes later using boroxed steelhead roe, saved from last February, which was refrigerated but not frozen all these past months. Her fish was approximately 15 inches long. That's the way it went. We ended up with 13 rainbows that weighed close to 10 pounds. They were all red-meated, prime fish.

I TALKED TO Enos Foster of Woodacre who had spent the same weekend up at Medicine Lake in Siskiyou County. He and his gang all had a great time also catching trout. He did mention that the old general merchandise store, so long a part of the atmosphere at Medicine Lake, had burned down some time back. Now you must take all the gear and supplies needed for your campout. Too bad — the old buildings, and the prices, were something to see! But my point is that trout fishing in the high altitudes is beginning to get good.

Lots of people shiver and shake when I say we camped out. It's really not that bad, but the right gear is essential. Last year, Mary and I camped out for 22 days, and we can't wait for vacation time to roll around this year. The most difficult thing we encountered last year was a big wind. One time, the wind blew the tent down, another time it ripped the tent in one corner. A second problem was keeping the eggs, olive oil, water and other things from freezing when the temperatures got as low as nine degrees. We solved this problem by keeping freezables in the ice box, of all places.

OUR TENT IS 10 by 12 feet and holds a double sleeping bag, two chairs, a table, a coleman lantern and a heater, without being cramped. We also keep some of the food boxed and under the table. A suitcase with the needed changes of clothing also is an essential. We did not keep the heater on at night, but we did light it each morning before getting up. On the colder nights, we sometimes ended up with a heavy tarp entirely over the bed, and us too. Some of the times we cooked in the tent. Winter underwear is a must, and warm heavy clothes, plus rain gear is essential, also. If you are hunting, soft leather gloves help to keep your hands warm when carrying that ice cold rifle or shotgun. But camping out puts you right on the fishing or hunting spot all the time.

For the good of everyone, it's best about every five days to leave the camp and drive to the nearest motel, just for baths, and a general cleanup. It does something for you. One group which came along and camped next to us while we were away during a snow storm, couldn't stand that quiet, spooky looking tent and camp setup any longer, so someone zipped the tent open, thinking perhaps, we were in there. Of course we knew they had done this by their tracks in the snow.

BY ALL MEANS, use your venison, ducks, fish or whatever while camping out. The meals from your fresh fish and game have a flavor above and beyond that when these morsels are taken home and frozen — and then sometimes forgotten to be thawed six months later when the flavor is gone. You can't beat a well prepared meal in the mountains after an all day hunt. Ask anyone who knows.

Browns Cut Kellerman, 4 Others

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Ernie Kellermann, 28, a veteran defensive back, was one of five players released Tuesday by the Cleveland Browns to trim the roster to the regular season limit of 40.

Kellerman had been with the Browns for seven years after being cut in 1965 by the Dallas Cowboys, one of the few native Clevelanders to make the Browns.

"I'm told that Cincinnati is looking for defensive backs and that Paul Brown might be interested in me," said Kellerman.

The others cut were wide receiver Charley Brinkman, tight end Clark Hoss, offensive tackle Lynn Larson and defensive tackle Dan Parks.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Berkeley Is Scene For Passing Duel

BERKELEY (UPI) — There are likely to be plenty of passes Saturday down on the field when Washington State comes to call on California—and there might be a few passes thrown in the press box, too.

Coach Mike White said Monday the Bears would try to improve their pass completion record against the Cougars. Soph Steve Bartkowski completed 24 of 49 attempts last Saturday for 261 yards against Colorado although the Bears lost 20-10 to the high-rated Buffs.

Meanwhile, it was announced that Cal has listed its restriction against women in the press box for its home games this year.

Oregon

"Physically we came out of the Missouri game solid," said head coach Dick Enright. "We had the normal amount of bumps and bruises that you would get playing against a team running from the Wishbone."

Oregon State

CORVALLIS (UPI) —Oregon State Coach Dee Andros expressed disgust at his team's performance after viewing game films of the San Diego State clash last Friday night.

"We got outhit, outpassed, outrushed, out ball controlled and out everythinged Friday night," he said.

Monday's drill for the Beavers, who will face second-ranked USC, focused mainly on conditioning and agility drills for both the offense and defense. During the remainder of the practice the OSU offense worked out against a simulated USC defense and the defense was shown some of the USC offensive plays and sets.

Senior cornerback Bruce Frey was lost for the season. He will undergo knee surgery to correct an injury he received in the San Diego State game. Wayne Lightner will move into his position.

Washington

SEATTLE (UPI) —Washington Coach Jim Owens has made five changes in the starting offensive unit in an effort to get the Husky attack moving after Washington's 13-6 lackluster victory over Pacific.

Team Canada, Soviet Union Set 2nd Series

MONTREAL (UPI)—Canada and the Soviet Union have agreed to play a second exhibition hockey series in late 1973, the Montreal Star reported Monday.

The two nations are now midway through an eight-game series. The Russians hold a 2-1-1 lead after the Canadian half of the series.

The Montreal Star said it had been given word of the 1973 series by a member of the Russian party who sat in on a meeting with Al Eagleson, president of the National Hockey League Players' Association.

Ryun To Run In London Track Meet

LONDON (UPI) — Hard luck Jim Ryun will be among a group of U.S. Olympians competing in the Coca Cola international track and field meet at Crystal Palace, London, Sept 15, the organizers confirmed Tuesday.

U.S. track teammate Dave Wottle, the Olympic 800 meter champion, is in the field along with New Zealanders Roth Dixon, who won a bronze in the Munich 1500 meters, and Tony Polehill.

American Ralph Mann and Britain's David Hemery, silver and bronze medallists, clash in the 400 meter hurdles while in the 400 meter flat world record holder Lee Evans of the U.S. gets the chance to show what he might have done at Munich.

Evans was selected to run in the Olympic 400 meter relay but the U.S. pulled out of that event when two of its top hopefuls were suspended.

Petaluma Gridders Must Fight Off Inexperience

By PAUL DWORIN

Petaluma High School should be much improved this year, but it may have a difficult time bettering last year's 3-6 mark as every team in the North Bay League has a shot at the championship.

After last Tuesday's scrimmage with Cardinal Newman High School of Santa Rosa, Trojan coach Tony Kehl commented, "We saw some good things and we were pleased with the overall offense. Right now we're ahead of where we were offensively last season, but behind on defense. It's still too hard to tell exactly how good we're going to be."

One of the biggest problems confronting Kehl, and one that will most likely be the key to the Trojans' success this season, is inexperience. Petaluma will have only two returning starters from last year's squad on defense — Dennis Govan on the line and Vic Chadwick in the backfield.

On offense the situation is a little better, but not much, with linemen Bob Yamasaki, receivers Tom Mercado and Rick Mossi, and running back Mike Maselli the only returning starters.

Several newcomers to the varsity squad are expected to shore up the defense and strengthen the offense. Dan Solis and John Alejos both defensive backs, have been very impressive during pre-season practices, as has Tom Martin, a senior transfer from Terra Linda who plays defensive center and offensive end.

On offense Kehl has been particularly pleased with the work of Don White, a fullback, running back Steve Hernandez and quarterback Tim Wallmark, who is now number one.

So far the Trojans have been having more success passing than running. "We're striving for a more balanced offense, and it looks like we're going to attain it, but it's too early to tell," Kehl stated.

Petaluma's first game will be against Drake of San Anselmo, which has traditionally been a tough opponent for the Trojans.

Although the team isn't where Kehl wanted it to be, he feels that it will be ready for Drake. That game will be Saturday, 5:45 p.m., on the College of Marin Field.

"We're in shape now to iron things out and polish our offensive and defensive games to the point where we can be ready for Drake. We're going to approach the game with the attitude that Drake will be strong," he concluded.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Knowing Your Opponent May Determine Your Line Of Play

From time to time when you play bridge you should steal a look at your opponents. The idea is not just to see that they are still there, alive and well, but to make a mental note of who tyey are. In a tournament, knowing your opponent may determine your line of play. Today's hand, played in the recent national tournament in Denver, explains this odd principle.

WEST OPENS

Betty Kaplan opened the ten of spades from the West hand. Declarer put up dummy's jack, and Edgar Kaplan covered with the queen. The names are important because Kaplan is one of the all-time greats of the game and his wife has been well trained.

South took the top spades and ruffed a spade in dummy. He next led dummy's nine of diamonds for a finesse. When that held, he continued with the queen of diamonds; and this also held.

Declarer next tried a finesse with the queen of hearts, losing to the king. Back came a spade, and East ruffed with the ten of hearts to force out the jack. But now West was sure to get a trump trick with the nine of hearts, and the slam was doomed to defeat.

SHOULD NOT FINESSE

When the nine of diamonds won the first trick in that suit it was surely clear to East that South held A-J-10-x of the suit. Therefore East's kind of diamonds was doomed, and he knew it.

East would cover the queen of diamonds if he wanted to get declarer out of the dummy; but East would let dummy's queen of diamonds hold the trick if he wanted to let declarer stay in the dummy.

WON'T WORK

Take if from me: If a good player allows you to take a finesse when he could prevent you from doing so — the finesse isn't going to work.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Happy 80th birthday to Alfred A. Knopf — the publisher who gave the world some of its finest books. Your company's insignia — the Russian wolfhound — is known the world over and has come to mean good books in authorship and beauty of craftsmanship!

You were born Sept. 12, 1892, to Jewish parents in New York City. Your father, an advertising man, remarried after your mother died when you were four.

Your ambition was to enter law, but a Columbia University professor introduced you to literature and a school assignment got you an interview with British writer John Galsworthy. So you got a job as a clerk in a publishing firm, where you learned the business.

At 23 you launched your own publishing house, Alfred A. Knopf, Inc., from a single room on West 42nd Street, based on a mere $5,000 in capital. But that started it! On your Golden Anniversary of publishing in 1965 you had published 5,000 titles. Your books and authors had won 18 Pulitzer Prizes and six National Book Awards. Whether you are gardening at your home in Purchase, N.Y. today, or relaxing in your Manhattan apartment, we wish you: "Happy Birthday, Mr. Publisher!"

Fireman's Fund Moves Into New Office At Northgate

A reception welcoming Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. to its new office in Northgate Industrial Park will be held at 6 p.m. today.

Fireman's Fund will occupy the fourth and final unit of the Margarita Plaza Office Complex at Mitchell Boulevard and Paul Drive, developed by Dohemann and Co. The insurance building is of two stories with 16,000 square feet of floor space.

This is just an interim office for Fireman's Fund, which plans 300,000-square-foot data processing center on 38 acres of Lucas Valley Road on Highway 101. More than 400 employees are expected to operate the plant when it is completed in 1974.

A costume jewelry store called Accessories Unlimited will open about Nov. 1 in Northgate Mall, in a new building next to the new Sears, Roebuck and Co. complex.

Operator will be Marvin Baskin of San Rafael, who has about 12 years of experience in the field. He was formerly manager of Genco discount stores. Accessories Unlimited will carry costume jewelry and accessories.

The new costume jewelry store is the latest in a series of shops that have moved or are planning to move into Northgate Mall.

The spacious Pay Less Drugs and an expanded Chandler's Fabrics are already operating. Eureka Federal Savings and Loan Association just opened, and McKenzie's Children's Shop is in the process of moving to bigger quarters next door to its present location.

Other shops to follow include De Tour luggage, Bumbleberry Fun Family Restaurant, Clyde de Barcelona beauty salon, Parklane Hosiery, Shoe Den, Kinney Shoes, Regal Shoes, Foxmoor Casuals dress shop, Papsie's junior boutique high fashion, Brentano's, Abbey-Hallmark party supplies, and Catania Sound.

And when Sears & Roebuck's giant new retail outlet opens next month, Northgate Mall will be operating full blast.

Edward F. Jewell of Novato, a retired Air Force master sergeant, is the new part owner of the Town Club cocktail lounge at 1005 Grant Avenue in Novato.

He and his wife bought half interest in the bar this month and will operate it. The other owners are Harold L. and Pierrette D. Popiel of Denver. Jerry Bezenek, who formerly managed the bar, will continue to be the bartender.

The Town Club, a neighborhood cocktail lounge, is open seven days a week from 6 a.m. to 2 a.m.

Critters From Paradise Pet Shop at 5607 Paradise Drive in Corte Madera's Paradise Shopping Center is under new management and a new name. It is now called the Pet Set.

Lynn Woods of San Anselmo, who has about seven years of experience, took over the pet store last week from John Dauksha and James Hougan, also of San Anselmo. Dauksha and Hougan will continue to operate their Aquatics From Paradise fish shop at 5589 Paradise Drive.

Miss Woods, a breeder of champion Doberman Pinschers, said she will specialize in pet grooming and pet supplies at the new Pet Set. She will sell birds but no dogs or cats. The Pet Set will be open Tuesday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to about 6 p.m.

She also owns the Pet Set at 532 Third Street in San Rafael, but the name of her San Rafael store will be changed to Groovy Groomin'.

Miss Woods worked at Mutts of Marin in Strawberry for about four and one-half years and at the Pet Set in San Rafael for two and one-half years.

Richard B. Simkalo of Belvedere has been elected president and chief operating officer of Tami Inc., San Francisco clothing manufacturing firm. Simkalo was formerly with Bobbie Brooks Inc., serving as merchandising vice president of its misses sportswear division.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Attractively Priced Investment Trusts

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am interested in investing in one or two real-estate investment trusts. I would like information on them and the names of a few good ones so that I can study their comparative performances. — L.S.

A. Although market interest in this group is less enthusiastic than in the late 1960s when 60 new REITS were formed, there are a number of attractively priced issues well worth your consideration. One factor which should be studied prior to making any commitment is the trust's capability to originate new loans. Lomas & Nettleton Mortgage Investors (NYSE) is particularly strong in this area, reflecting the nationwide network of mortgage loan offices operating by Lomas & Nettleton Financial parent to the REIT's adviser L&N Management. As of March, 1972, 69 per cent of the firm's mortgage portfolio was in first mortgage construction and development loans, 30 per cent temporarily invested in VA loans and 1 per cent in second mortgages. Although the short-term nature of construction loans, generally under three years, allows L&N greater flexibility in dealing with interest rate fluctuations, it also increases the speculative characteristics of this issue. For the fiscal year ended June, 1972, earnings were up 55 per cent to $3.34 a share. The 87 cents a share dividend voted in July raised payments for that 12 months to $3.30 a share, producing an 8 per cent current yield.

Municipal Bonds; A Tax Exemption

By MARTIN SKALA
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK, N.Y. — To the average investor, the municipal bond market occupies a very specialized, and often mysterious niche in the financial world.

It's considered an intricate jumble of city, state, and school bonds, whose distinguishing feature is that interest payments are free from all federal income taxes.

The tax-exempt aspect has made municipals a favored investment vehicle for banks, insurance companies, and wealthy individuals. It has saved local government units millions of dollars in interest costs that might otherwise have had to come out of taxpayers' pockets.

But relatively few people are aware that municipals offer attractive rates of return, combined with a huge degree of safety and marketability, to less affluent investors as well.

One major reason why tax-exempts have been considered the exclusive province of the rich, asserts Michael T. Weissman, president of Paragon Securities, is that "Wall Street has done a poor job in merchandising municipals to the public."

Most brokerage houses don't give municipals the attention they deserve — they're too stock-market oriented," Mr. Weissman said in an interview. "Many brokers treat their municipal bond departments like stepchildren."

At Paragon Securities, by comparison, municipal bonds get everybody's undivided attention. Founded in April, 1971, with a staff of five, Paragon sold $750 million worth of tax-free bonds during its first year in business — more than any other firm specializing in tax-free bonds.

With offices in West Orange, N.J., New York City, and Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., Paragon now has a staff of 86 bond salesmen, backed up by a computerized trading department and a growing bond research staff. The firm bids on bond issues, engages in underwriting, and carries a sizable inventory as a market-maker.

Unlike many old-line brokerage houses, which do little to solicit business in tax-exempts, Paragon uses television advertising and direct mail to attract middle-income investors.

"There's a growing awareness that you don't have to be making $50,000 a year before municipals make sense in a portfolio," Mr. Weissman notes. "If you are in a $25,000 income bracket and own a municipal bond earning 6 per cent, the return is equivalent to a 10 per cent interest rate on a taxable investment. Obviously, the higher the income bracket, the greater the advantage of tax-free bonds."

An investor with personal income in excess of $15,000 may be a candidate for tax-exempts, according to Mr. Weissman. "A lot depends on the size of his savings account, future financial goals, and the ability to assume some limited risks in case the bonds have to be sold."

If interest rates were to go up, for instance, an investor who needed to cash in his bonds before maturity would be hit with a sizable capital loss.

For the well-paid professional or white-collar worker, municipals can provide yields equal to returns on taxable investments of 8½ per cent (based on a joint return in the 35 per cent bracket) up to 14 per cent for the wealthy resident of New York State or other high-tax areas.

For middle-income investors Mr. Weissman prefers to search out "undervalued" situations, where the bond credit rating may underestimate the issue's ability to meet its financial obligations.

Although New York City bonds have been downgraded by rating services in recent years, because of the city's well-advertised financial woes, Paragon believes the city's bondholders have little to worry about.

By law, the bonds have a prior lien on all taxes collected by the city. And the city is required to levy enough taxes to pay for all principal and interest on outstanding debt. "This makes the bonds as safe as many of those with a better credit rating," he says. "One can earn better than 6.5 per cent yield on a New York City bond maturing in 1980 — almost a full percentage point more than comparable issues."

Paragon backed up its confidence in New York's future fiscal soundness, when it snapped up $32 million of a recent $350 million city bond issue, the largest chunk subscribed by any underwriter.

"About $18 million went to our retail clients, the rest to institutions — and we were sold out in 10 days," he said with a smile.

Many smaller buyers dipped into their savings bank accounts to buy $10,000 to $15,000 worth of bonds.

In Paragon's opinion, Philadelphia, Jersey City, and Camden, N.J., deserve higher marks for fiscal stability than national rating services such as Moody's and Standard & Poor's have given them. Because their bonds are not top-rated, however, they provide above-average yields that make them more attractive to individual investors.

While most individuals are interested in general obligation bonds, Paragon steers the more speculatively inclined investors into industrial revenue bonds, many of which yield 7, 8 and 9 per cent tax-free. These bonds, which help finance the building of new factories, are guaranteed by industrial corporations, not government units.

And if the company — the sole guarantor — has had a bad year or two, its bonds sell at discounts. If the company doesn't default on its payments, and its balance sheet improves, the bonds may climb sharply in value.

New Muir Woods Zoning Is Asked

Currently, the area is zoned for 10,000-square-foot lots but under the proposal submitted by the Muir Woods Park Improvement Association, that figure would change radically.

The association asked that lands east of Panoramic Highway be rezoned to 20,000-square-foot lot minimum and the area west of the highway to one-acre lot minimum.

In deferring action, the commission said it wanted endorsement of the proposal from a majority of those whose property might be adversely affected.

"You're asking us to act in a confiscatory manner," Commission William B. Lyncy told association representative, adding he was leery of "blanket zonings."

Lynch was joined by Chairman Jack G. Nixon and Commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo in urging the homeowners' group to gain the support of owners of undeveloped land.

"There's nothing wrong with a community asking for rezoning," added Nixon, "but there is if those people affected disagree with it."

The commission also told the Muir Woods association it had failed to present adequate information to support its request for lower density zoning.

In explaining association reasoning, Robert Rydjord told the commission large properties shouldn't be broken up "just to satisfy the big money developers." He said the area should be protected and to allow dense development would only worsen sewage and traffic conditions.

Among those speaking against the rezoning was Del Goetz, who said it would result in the exclusion of low and moderate-income persons from the area.

"To deny people the right of access to this kind of life style is eminently unfair," she said, adding traffic congestion was caused by weekend visitors to the area and not by residents.

Other landowners charged that the imvovement association was composed of residents living on 5,000 to 10,000-square-foot plots but who now seek to stop others from doing the same.

After more than an hour of discussion, the commission referred the matter back to the planning staff and will consider it again Oct. 19.

Marin County Planning Commission Also:

HEARING — Scheduled Sept. 22 at 8 p.m. for a special meeting at Point Reyes Station to discuss limiting expansion of West Marin villages. The meeting will be held at West Marin School.

PRESERVE — Recommended to county supervisors that some 13 parcels of land remain in the agricultural preserve and be rezoned. Owners of the widely scattered parcels had requested exclusion from the preserve.

DEVELOPMENT — Continued to Sept. 25 a master plan and rezoning petition for 25 acres behind Marin Catholic High School in Kentfield. The land, owned by the Catholic Church, is proposed for 312 condominiums.

BLACK POINT — Considered but took no action on a proposal to rezone much of Black Point near the Petaluma River to a single-family residential designation. The land currently is zoned for industrial and low-density residential use.

MERRYDALE — Approved rezoning a strip along the west side of Merrydale Road in the San Rafael Meadows area for apartment use. An amendment to the county code will be sought at a later meeting to allow some office building use of the land.

LUCAS VALLEY — Continued to Oct. 30, a proposal to rezone the Big Rock and Foster ranches in Upper Lucas Valley for planned residential development. The ranches are currently zoned for two-acre lots.

NICK'S COVE — Considered but took no action on a proposal to rezone the historic Nick's Cove restaurant on Tomales Bay for commercial use. The area is currently zoned for limited agricultural. Another hearing was scheduled for Nov. 16.

APPEAL — Denied the appeal of Henry Bormolini and John Velcich of the zoning administrator's condition that they must place six feet of fill on their land near Novato before building a boat and camper storage warehouse. The land is located in the Novato Creek flood plain near Deer Island Road.

Brodnik's Son Is Sworn In

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Robert Brodnik, whose father was killed in the line of duty with the San Francisco Police Department, was sworn in Monday as a patrolman.

And, as his mother watched, he was given Star 1854, which had been his father's.

Joseph Brodnik, the father, was killed in 1969 during a burglary investigation. Six Latin Americans, known as "Los Siete," were acquitted in a long trial in the slaying.

The younger Brodnik is 23.

There were 40 others sworn in, including two policewomen and five other sons of policemen.

Girl Has To Buy A New Bracelet

CROSBYTON, Tex. (UPI)—Debbie Crump, 17, who used to wear a prisoner of war bracelet with the name of Navy Lt. Norris Alphonzo Charles inscribed on it, is in the market for a new one.

"I was watching the late night movie when they broke in with a news bulletin that three Vietnam prisoners had been released by their captors," Miss Crump said Monday. "By the time they got to the middle name, I knew it was the man whose name is on my bracelet."

She mailed Charles her bracelet with a letter of congratulations and went to nearby Reese Air Force Base to buy another one Monday, but found out they were temporarily sold out.

Fort Dix Assignment For Black General

FT. DIX, N.J. (UPI)—Brig. Gen. Julius W. Becton Jr., the sixth black general in U.S. Army history and a combat veteran of the 101st Airborne Division, became deputy commander of Ft. Dix today.

Becton, 46, is the first black general assigned to the sprawling military installation which houses some 40,000 persons, including dependents. He has spent 26 years in the Army, serving in the Pacific during World Wa II and in Vietnam where he was commanding officer of the 2nd Squadron, 17th Cavalry and deputy commander of the 3rd Brigade, 101st Airborne Division.

Tiburon Report Due On Stop Sign Plea

Pleas for improvement of Hacienda Drive at last night's Tiburon City Council meeting were blunted by a staff report and objections of residents on other roads. (Another Tiburon City Council story, page 1.)

The council, however, did instruct the staff to consider and report within one month on Hacienda Drive residents' request for a three-way stop sign at its intersection with Trestle Glen Drive.

Other improvement of the narrow roadway appeared doomed when staff said the city cannot work on the privately owned road unless it is dedicated to the city, and by objections of residents in other areas that their roads were more in need of repair.

The Tiburon City Council Also:

MAR WEST — Invited bids for a new retaining wall on Mar West Street, its cost estimated by staff at $13,500.

PROPERTY — Postponed to Sept. 25 adoption of an ordinance permitting auction of unclaimed property not in excess of $250 in value.

REDEVELOPMENT — Scheduled a joint meeting with the planning commission on Oct. 12 to consider formation of a redevelopment district for the downtown area.

ANIMALS — Approved the first reading of an ordinance amendment providing for an infraction rather than a misdemeanor for violations of the city's animal control ordinance.

Joint Coffee

A joint coffee for Barbara Boxer, candidate for Marin County supervisor, and Gene Turtle, candidate for trustee of the Marin Community College District, will be held at 8 p.m. on Sept. 21 in the home of San Anselmo City Councilman Martin G. Blinder, 50 Idalia Road.

Committee Cancels GI Overseas Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House committee complains it would cost taxpayers $10 million a year just to bring back from overseas the foreign cars American GIs buy.

The House Appropriations Committee Monday directed the Defense Department to cancel by Dec. 31 its new policy of paying the transportation costs. It approved an appropriation for the current year but criticized the Pentagon for deciding to absorb the shipping costs without consulting Congress.

Icelandic Gunboat Cuts Trawler Lines

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI)—An Icelandic gunboat today cut off both trawl wires for a British trawler fishing inside Iceland's new 50 mile fishing limits, the Icelandic radio announced.

The radio said it was the worst incident since the "cod war" began Sept. 1. The British trawler lost its expensive equipment.

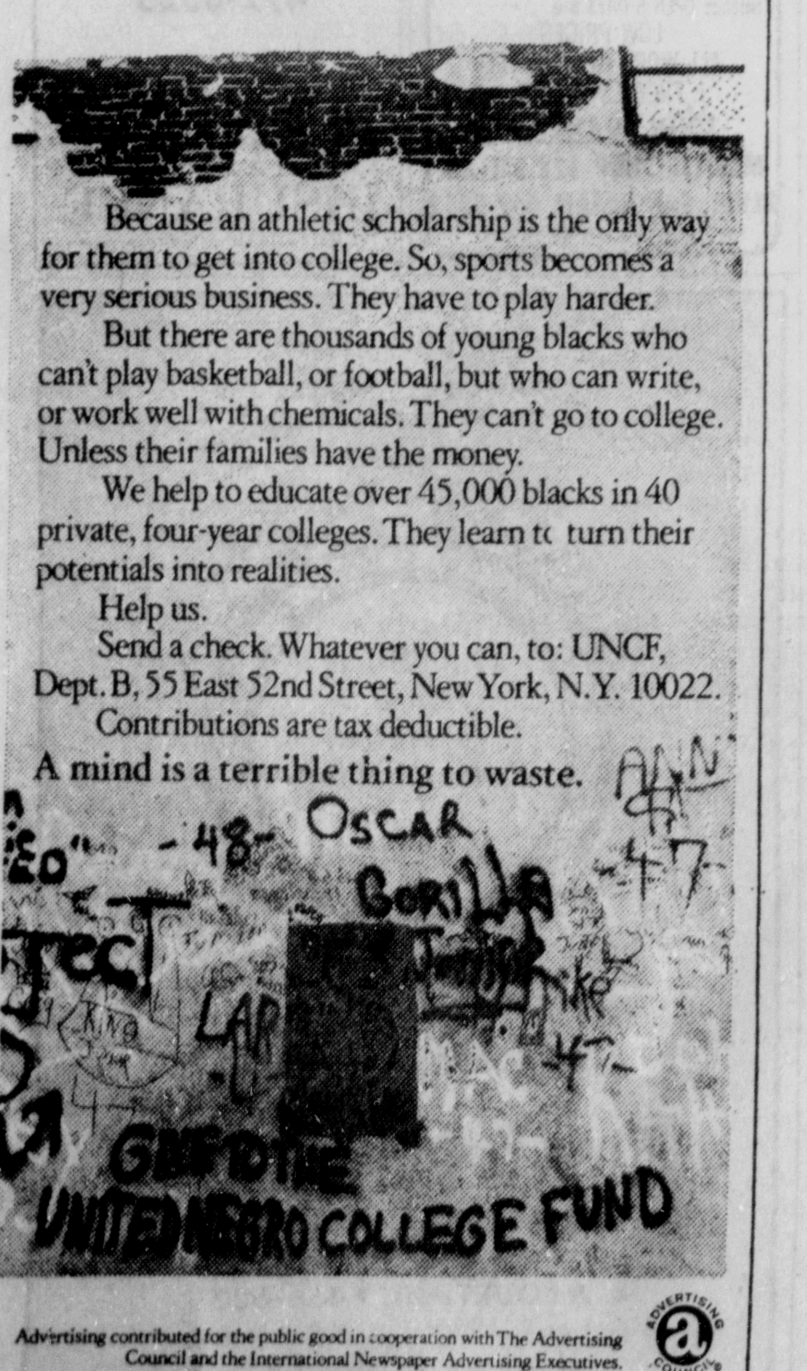
DID YOU EVER WONDER WHY SO MANY HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETES ARE BLACK?



Because an athletic scholarship is the only way for them to get into college. So, sports becomes a very serious business. They have to play harder.

But there are thousands of young blacks who can't play basketball, or football, but who can write, or work well with chemicals. They can't go to college. Unless their families have the money.

We help to educate over 45,000 blacks in 40 private, four-year colleges. They learn to turn their potentials into realities.
